WALKOUT ON 7 TRIANGLE JOBS IS THREATENED

Building Trades Council to Act if Carpenters Are Cut.

GENERAL CESSATION WOULD BE ITS REPLY

Subcontractors Will Meet Thursday to Plan Slash in Other Scales.

The cessation of all work on seven major Federal buildings projects was threatened last night by the Washington Building Trades Council if subcontractors attempt to carry out their contemplated downward revision of union wage scales.

Though the carpenters' union, which has already been notified of a reduction of $11 to $8 a day, effective Thursday, is not affiliated with the Building Trades Council, high union officials declared that a general strike would be called if there is an attempt to substitute nonunion carpenters for union carpenters.

Subcontractors on several major projects in the Mall will meet Thursday to devise a plan for the reduction of union wage scales in other building trades, John Locher, executive secretary of the council, last night told the Central Labor Union, and declared the first "move to effect such reduction will be met, if necessary, with a general strike by all affiliated building tradesmen."

Support Is Pledged.

The support of Government employes, the American Federation of Labor and the Central Labor Union was pledged to the carpenters and any other craftsmen threatened with wage cuts, in an address last night to the labor union by Richard A. Dickson, the president.

Early today the District Council of Carpenters was discussing the threatened wage cut at its headquarters. Though no formal statement was issued, the sentiment indicated that the craftsmen will refuse to take the pay slash, thus precipitating either a "strike" or "a lockout."

"Every possible support will be given to union workers by the Government employes, short of a strike against the Government," I have been informed," Mr. Dickson told the Central Labor Union.

Stage Set for Walkout.

If the carpenters refuse to take the cut, which seemed probable last night, the stage would then be set for a general walkout on the buildings where the carpenters have been notified of the intended slash. The Building Trades Council would then be privileged to remove all its affiliated craftsmen because it reserves the right to have its members work only with union men.

When and if the carpenters refuse to take the cut, the subcontractors would be obliged to hire nonunion men. Any union man who undertakes to work in defiance of the union's decision, under its laws, would

13 Julian Mail-Fraud Defendants Sent to Jail

Oklahoma City, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—The Julian mail fraud trial was delayed today until June in an unexpected move by Government prosecutors after thirteen of more than 50 defendants had been fined amounts ranging from $500 to $1,500.

Jail sentences of six months were imposed in addition to the fines. Among those sentenced were Sam Block, Herman Garfield, Lou Johnson and Mike Lawler, all of Chicago. The case against George Lurie, of Chicago, was dismissed.

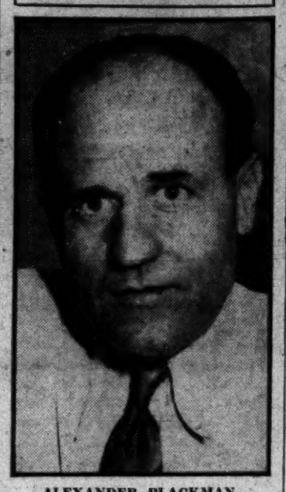
TARGET OF PLOT



ALEXANDER BLACKMAN

DYNAMITE PLANTED AT MAN'S WINDOW

Apartment Owner Blames Pair Who Broke Into His Building.

Two sticks of dynamite, found in the basement window of an apartment house at 719 Sixth street northwest, last night spurred police to a city-wide search for persons believed bent on vengeance against Alexander Blackman, owner of the building.

The dynamite was discovered by James Crump, colored janitor, as he was firing the furnace. He notified Blackman, who summoned police.

Private H. Boise, of the First Precinct, pulled the two sticks of explosives from a small hole cut in a screen of the window. He found a wire leading from the dynamite to a secluded spot in a nearby alley. The wire, however, was attached without a fuse or cap and would not have set the sticks off.

Blackman declared he believed two men who at one time broke into his apartment house were responsible for planting the explosives. His efforts to have them arrested, he said, prompted their attack.

The dynamite sticks were placed directly under Blackman's apartment on the first floor. He said he believed the planters strung the wire into the alley with a view toward returning later and setting off the explosion.

The sticks were turned over to Lieut. John Fowler, police ballistics expert, for inspection.

Snared Detectives Fight Guns in Dark

Man Is Killed in Tenement Battle After Police Quiz on Murder.

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Trapped in a darkened tenement house when they went there to question an occupant about a slaying, two Brooklyn detectives had to battle their way out through a barrage of pistol shots and blackjack blows tonight.

When an emergency squad arrived it was found one tenant had been killed, another wounded, and a 12-year-old boy passerby shot through the hand.

Coney Midway Hit By $150,000 Blaze

Flames From "Tunnels of Love" Give Firemen Hard, Icy Task.

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Flames, whipped by a freezing nor'wester, licked down the midway at Coney Island early today, destroying such famed attractions as the Kiddie Wonderland, the Tunnels of Love and the Caterpillar.

Two hundred firemen, on land and water, battled for several hours to check the conflagration. In the heavy wind, it took four to man a hose, instead of two. Much of the amusement row tonight was a mass of ice and ashes. The damage was estimated at $150,000.

A patrolman discovered the blaze in the Tunnels of Love. Just a year ago, fire caused $5,000,000 damage at the resort where millions gather each summer.

Patricia Regan Is Beaten By Robber in Hollywood

Los Angeles, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Miss Patricia Regan, actress, was recovering in her Hollywood home today from a beating and slashing administered last night as she was accosted on a street and robbed of her purse.

Police reports said the young woman was struck from behind with a heavy club, the blow causing two ribs to be broken and splintering her shoulder bone. As she fell, one of the attackers slashed the actress' wrists and fled with the purse.

MAN INDICTED IN EMMA KIRK KILLING FREED

Tucker Promises He Will Murder No One and Gets Liberty.

ALLOWED TO RETURN TO CALIFORNIA HOME

Was Once Adjudged to Be of Unsound Mind, but Is Now Restored.

Although he is under indictment for first-degree murder, George Pierce Tucker last night was on his way to Hollywood, Calif., to rejoin his wife and two children, while United States Attorney Leo A. Rover holds in abeyance here the indictment, pending Tucker's good behavior.

Tucker, in the most unusual appearance ever arranged in the District Supreme Court, yesterday was allowed his freedom from confinement when he raised his hand and, figuratively, promised he would commit no murders if allowed to go free.

Indicted for the murder of Emma Kirk, "umbrella recluse," 70 years old, at her home, 819 R street northwest, on January 23, 1926, Tucker was arrested on the Pacific Coast last year when he allegedly admitted perpetrating the crime. He was brought back here and promptly indicted.

Found of Unsound Mind.

When he was scheduled to be arraigned, he was found to be of unsound mind, suffering from a combination of a social disease and alcoholism. A jury found him to be of unsound mind, and Mr. Rover permitted him to be sent to St. Elizabeths Hospital, where skilled treatment restored his health to a great degree.

A month ago Mr. Rover was notified that Tucker was well and was able to stand trial, but the alienists then admitted that at the time he made his statement in California, he was of unsound mind. All of which meant that the "statement" was of no legal standing, and Mr. Rover decided that in the absence of any legal testimony connecting Tucker with Mrs. Kirk's death, his hands were tied. The Department of Justice agreed it would be futile to try Tucker on his past record, and when it was found that four witnesses from the Pacific Coast would have to be brought here for his trial, it was decided to take his personal bond and let him go free.

Thumb Print on Eyeglass.

Mrs. Kirk, an aged and wealthy recluse, was found dead in the front room of her home, her hands and feet tied and a shawl tied over her mouth. On one of her eyeglasses a single thumb print was found. This print, it was said, corresponded to some degree with that of Tucker. However,

8 Killed and 78 Hurt In Paris Plant Blast

Paris, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—An explosion of a boiler in the vast Renault Automobile plant in suburban Brilliancourt today resulted in eight deaths and injuries to 78 persons.

The victims were trapped under a falling wall. But for the light nature of the construction, the accident might have been catastrophic. An investigation was started into the cause.

Man Is Held in Attempt to Pass Alleged $10 Bogus Bill.

An attempt to pass an allegedly counterfeit $10 bill resulted last night in the shooting of two policemen, the arrest of the alleged counterfeiter, with his suspected accomplice and the launching of an extensive police drive against activities of a suspected counterfeiting ring in Washington.

So rapid were developments that early today a detail of police, headed by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent, and agents of the United States Secret Service, were combing the city in an effort to track down clews which they say were furnished by Lawrence DuMont, 25, who gave his address as 1650 Sixteenth street northwest, arrested after two policemen were shot in the foiled attempt to pass a bogus bill.

Lindsay Reaches London and Conferences on Debts Are Started.

London, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—A new British offer for settlement of the American war debt on a definite and final lump-sum basis is expected to result from consultations which Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador to the United States, inaugurated upon his arrival in London this afternoon with the "big five" of the cabinet.

The sums mentioned ranged from $1,250,000,000 to $2,000,000,000 for wiping the World War debt slate clean, the Associated Press learned in well-informed quarters.

Fire Disables Ship Off Oregon Coast

Motor Vessel Is Awaiting Assistance as Blaze Wrecks Controls.

Marshfield, Oreg., Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Her engines stilled by a fire today, the Furness Line motorship Pacific Shipper was lying off Coos Head tonight awaiting the Coast Guard cutter Redwing, which was on the way from Astoria to take her in tow.

Fire destroyed controls in the engine room, disabled the large motors and damaged the deck before it was extinguished by the crew. Answering a distress call, the McCormick freighter Charles L. Wheeler, jr., stood by, but its help was not needed. The Redwing was instructed to furnish a tow to the Columbia River, from which the Pacific Shipper sailed last night on the way from Portland to San Francisco.

The sea was calm. The cause of the fire was not reported by the officers of the ship. She carried no passengers.

Swallowed Bean Kills 14-Month Old Boy

Fourteen-months-old Phillip Santini died at Children's hospital last night from the effects of a bean which lodged in the nasal passage of his throat.

The bean was given to the infant by his two-and-a-half-year old sister, Fanny, it was reported, with whom he was playing on the kitchen floor at his home, 635 Florence street northeast. He was taken to Casualty hospital by his mother, Mrs. Lucia Santini, and later removed to Children's hospital where he died before the bean could be extracted.

Lunches Will be Furnished To Public School Children

Midmorning Recess Meal of Crackers and Milk Assured to Aid Undernourished Pupils; Parent-Teacher Board Is Reestablished.

All public school children in Washington will be assured of receiving morning recess crackers-and-milk lunches through the reestablishment of a joint committee of parents and teachers and school officials.

Decision to reestablish the committee, which did the same work two years ago, was reached at a conference yesterday in the office of Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools. The committee, representing the District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers and the public schools, will distribute the funds for the morning recess lunches in the schools. The money will be provided by Parent-Teacher Associations and other school organizations.

The committee is designed primarily to serve children in the elementary grades unprovided with the small weekly fund required for the midmorning lunches. The fact that many children are not receiving this nourishment was brought to the attention of Dr. Ballou last week.

Although many children are believed to be in need of hot lunches, particularly those who are reported to come to school without breakfast, the conference saw no way of meeting the expense of setting up cooking facilities to take care of these pupils.

However, it was decided to recommend to the Board of Education that cooking facilities now in some schools, be made available to the welfare agencies and other groups interested in preparing food for distribution to needy families.

It was also decided that the committee keep in constant contact with existing private and public welfare agencies to prevent duplication of effort.

G. W. TEACHER IS ACCUSED AT BARRY HEARING

Johnstone Told Students Senators Venal, Is Report.

COMMITTEE VERDICT DUE THIS AFTERNOON

Nye's Letter Charging Davis in $10,000 Contribution Is Pointed Out.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

Members of the Senate Judiciary Committee, filled with indignation because David S. Barry, sergeant at arms of the Senate, wrote in a magazine article that only a few members of Congress sold their votes for cash, yesterday found further fuel for their righteous wrath when they heard that a George Washington University professor had told students there were some venal men in Congress.

The university professor, William Crane Johnstone, jr., assistant professor of political science at the school, was brought into the affairs in the course of some rather sharp cross-examination of the elderly and dignified Mr. Barry by the committee.

The committee, which has been instructed to report to the Senate not later than 4 o'clock this afternoon what should be done about Mr. Barry for writing the much-discussed article in the New Outlook, is going to meet again at 10 o'clock this morning in the committee room to hear what Prof. Johnstone meant by what he is reported to have said to students about crooks in Congress.

Committee Is Indignant.

Prof. Johnstone last night refused to acknowledge he ever had had a photograph taken and told newspaper reporters that if he had a photograph he wouldn't let it be used in the newspapers if he could help it. He refused to discuss the matter beyond saying the whole thing was deplorable and any statement would have to come from Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the university.

The indignant committee members who flashed their verbal swords about the dignified suspended sergeant at arms, seized on mention of the professor's supposed teachings, after they had ignored quotations presented by Mr. Barry from statements made by other members of the Senate. Mr. Barry cited the senatorial statements as indicating that if they had ruined the reputation of the Senate he had but followed in the verbal footsteps of the senators themselves. But his argument apparently didn't convince.

Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, said the trouble about

Safe Robbers Get $250,000 Securities

George Bartle, Prominent Philadelphian, Victim in Home Theft.

Philadelphia, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—About $250,000 worth of stocks and bonds were stolen from the home of George K. Bartle, socially prominent, in suburban Overbrook.

The theft was revealed today when a list of the securities was sent out on the ticker of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange.

Included in the list is about $7,600 worth of negotiable bonds. Transfer of the remaining stock has been stopped. Mr. Bartle had gone to Florida, and had left the securities in a secret wall safe of his home. The thieves pulled the safe from the wall and apparently loaded it on a truck, driving away.

D. C. POWER RATES TO BE CUT FEB. 20

Accord Is Finally Reached Between Utilities Body and Power Concern.

Electric rates will be reduced on February 20 sufficiently to effect a saving to consumers of $562,000, Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, announced yesterday afternoon after revealing that an amicable agreement had been reached finally with the Potomac Electric Power Co.

Culminating several weeks of negotiations, the agreement, which will take official form in a District Supreme Court decree, is a compromise between the abrogated consent decree and the sliding scale drawn up by the commission more than a year and a half ago and later sustained with modifications by Justice Oscar Luhring in Supreme Court.

Monetarily speaking, the old consent decree would have provided but $382,000 for rate reductions this year as against the $562,000, whereas the Luhring decision, if sustained in the District Court of Appeals, would have made available $647,000. Last year $860,000 was devoted to rate cutting on a compromise plan.

A formal hearing to decide just how the reductions are to be applied to the several classes of electric service will be held on February 16.

Announcement that the commission and the power company had finally agreed upon a plan for ending litigation and making an immediate rate reduction came somewhat as a surprise yesterday, as S. R. Bowen, counsel for the utility, had indicated that his company's reply might not be ready until the middle of the week. It also was feared that the power company might again reject the proposed decree as its officials took so long to reach a decision.

A hasty conference was called of the members of the commission.

4 Marchers Held In Indiana Disorder

Police Are Called After Tear Gas Fails to Rout Group of 300.

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 6 (A.P.).—A demonstration by approximately 300 marchers at the Vanderburgh County Courthouse today resulted in considerable disorder and the arrest of four men.

The marchers came to the courthouse at the hour set for the weekly meeting of the county commissioners. They sang Communist songs and parodies in which the names of the commissioners were inserted. Food was demanded.

When tear gas bombs failed to disperse the marchers a squad of police was called, and succeeded in driving them away. No one was injured. Many women were among the demonstrators.

Efficiency Bureau Abolition Is Balloted

ENLISTED MEN HAVE PAY CUT

Civil Service System and Furlough Are Retained.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Approving economies estimated in the neighborhood of $20,000,000, the Senate last night passed rapidly through economy provisions of the Treasury-Postoffice bill and came at last within striking distance of dual Federal pay cut proposals.

Swift action on one after another of the retrenchment clauses, ranging from abolition of the Bureau of Efficiency to a 10 per cent cut in compensation of enlisted military personnel, paved the way for final action today.

When the bell rang for recess at 9:50 last night, Federal administrative furloughs had been continued another year, and the Civil Service Commission, facing inroads on its system of keeping personnel records, remained intact.

Hope to Finish Bill Today.

Again temporarily passing over such controversial issues as the Bratton 5 per cent departmental slash and the 1 2-3 per cent additional Federal pay cut, the chamber approved a host of less vital retrenchment provisions.

Members sat late in night session, with an eye to completing the bill today. Early in the afternoon, they voted to remove the ban on automatic promotions and salary increases. District teachers, firemen and policemen will benefit.

The Senate Economy Committe was beaten on only one important issue—its proposal to take from the Civil Service Commission its personnel records and permit the various departments to keep them instead.

Bratton's Substitute.

Led by Senator Dale (Republican), Vermont, chairman of the Senate Civil Service Committee, who argued the commission might just as well cease to function, members voted 39 to 32 to override the committee.

This action was taken in the face of a substitute offered by Senator Bratton (Democrat), New Mexico, which empowered the commission to furnish departments with a uniform system for keeping personnel records, under Civil Service supervision.

Although Senator Bratton declared his substitute had the support of the Civil Service Commission, and read a letter from Miss Jessie Dell, a member, to this effect, Senator Dale, who expressed doubt the commission "knows what it is doing," insisted that the section be stricken. His motion carried, after the Senate had first agreed to the Bratton substitute.

The Bureau of Efficiency was ordered abolished, to take effect the third calendar month following passage of the act, despite the protest of Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota; Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, and Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio.

Efficiency Bureau Loses.

Senator Nye made a vain attempt to have the bureau's functions and personnel transferred to the General Accounting Office. His amendment was voted down viva voce, although Senator Nye submitted an analysis of economies effected by the bureau, running into the millions of dollars.

U. S. WISHES LATINS TO AGREE ON CHACO

Stimson's Hands-Off Policy Follows Marines' Recall From Nicaragua.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The United States has indicated its desire to see the Chaco question, as well as the Leticia dispute, settled by the countries of Latin America themselves, it became known here yesterday. The general policy that Secretary Stimson has followed by removing the marines from Nicaragua and allowing Nicaragua complete autonomy in the administration of its own affairs has been expanded to include the same liberal principles toward the countries of South America.

The Chaco problem has been a thorn in the international body politic of South America for the last four years, and to date has defied the efforts of the United States, the League of Nations and the committee of neutrals for settlement. Bolivia and Paraguay are still far from agreement on the territorial claims of their respective governments for the Chaco, and this disturbed condition in Latin-American politics has been inflamed by the controversy between Peru and Colombia over the territory of Leticia, near the head waters of the Amazon.

Satisfied With Programs.

In the solution of both of these problems the United States has indicated its satisfaction at the encouraging progress that has been made thus far by the good offices of several South American countries themselves. Far from disputing these influences, the department of State has offered every encouragement to the peace proposals emanating from Latin sources.

The most recent of these peace proposals to settle the Chaco problem was the meeting at Mendoza between Argentine Foreign Minister Saavedra Lamas and Chilean Foreign Minister Cruchaga Tocornal, former Chilean Ambassador here. The two foreign ministers agreed to propose to both Bolivia and Paraguay the settlement of the Chaco on the same general basis that had been put forward originally by the commission of neutrals here under the chairmanship of Francis White, Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Latin-American relations.

U. S. Peace Aid Challenged.

In the absence of any formal announcement from the Department of State, it had been interpreted in several South American newspapers, that the Mendoza meeting between the representatives of Chile and Argentine constituted a challenge to the peace-making authority of the United States in Latin America. Argentine Foreign Minister Saavedra Lamas had in the past, on several occasions, indicated his preference for a unilateral solution of the Chaco problem that would redound to the credit of the Argentine foreign office, if not to his own personal interposition.

However, the Department of State has maintained its policy of favoring any and all solutions of the Chaco problem that promised any real effect. That is the reason that American approval of the Mendoza meeting has been so prompt and so genuine at this time, and likewise the United States on previous occasions has indicated its disapproval of the Argentine peace moves when these moves were predicated on grounds that seemed to be insufficient to the officials here.

In matter of fact, the Chilean Ambassador even before he left to take up his new duties in Chile held several conversations with officials of the department here in which he reviewed the possibility of peace along the lines worked out at the Mendoza conference.

Monroe Doctrine Unaffected.

It also was authoritatively declared yesterday that the United States does not regard a settlement of any Latin-American dispute by the Latin countries themselves as any violation of the Monroe Doctrine. This doctrine, in its many implications, has been always interpreted as having only special reference to European influences in Latin America, as placing the United States in a position of opposition to the extension of European political influence in this hemisphere.

The chances for settling the Chaco dispute seemed to be considerably brighter than at any time previously since the recent interest of the neighboring countries in the dispute. Argentina and Chile seem to have made definite progress in a satisfactory peace proposal, and Brazil is expected to concur in the details of the proposal, making it another ABC diplomatic success.

Details of the Mendoza agreement are being sent to the United States by air mail, and will be made public shortly after arrival here.

$2,860,000 Is Asked For Potomac Span

R. F. C. Loan Would Start Bridge From Maryland to Dahlgren, Va.

Application for a loan of $2,860,000 with which to launch the construction of a bridge across the Potomac River connecting Charles County, Md., with King George County, Va., has been filed with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, it was announced yesterday.

The proposed structure would extend from a point on the Maryland shore near Popes Creek to Dahlgren, on the opposite shore. Total cost of the enterprise is estimated at $3,365,000.

Authority for construction of the span has been sought in bills introduced in Congress and the Maryland General Assembly. The project is sponsored by the George Washington-Wakefield Memorial Bridge, Inc., of which Dr. Hugh H. Young is listed as president. John H. Mackall, former chairman of the Maryland State Roads Commission, and Bennett Crain are associated with the corporation.

Coyne is one of five men sought in connection with the killing, Boston authorities said. He was arrested by State police for carrying concealed weapons. His fingerprints and detailed description have been sent to Boston authorities.

Calvin Coolidge's Memory Is Honored by Congress

Joint Session, With President Hoover, Cabinet and Supreme Court Attending, Hears Chief Justice Rugg Extol Character of Former President.

(Associated Press.)

With impressive ceremonies, Congress yesterday honored the memory of Calvin Coolidge. Senate and House met in joint session, with President Hoover, Mrs. Hoover, high officials of the Government and the Diplomatic Corps present to pay homage to the late former President.

A hush in vivid contrast with the turbulent scenes the House chamber has known in recent weeks fell upon the throng as Chief Justice Arthur P Rugg, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, delivered an eulogy to his late lifelong friend.

"Calvin Coolidge passed from this life on the fifth of last month," Justice Rugg said. "No warning foreshadowed his going. The Nation was stunned by this sudden and unexpected event. The people of the country realized at once what a calamity had befallen them."

President Hoover sat in front of the rostrum, his arms folded and his head bowed. Before him was Vice President Curtis, the presiding officer, and Speaker John N. Garner, who sat to the Kansan's left on the Speaker's dais. On Mr. Hoover's right were the members of his Cabinet, and to his left were Chief Justice Hughes and the associate justices of the Supreme Court.

Speaker Garner assembled the House immediately at noon, and Vice President Curtis and the Senate entered. Garner surrendered his gavel to Mr. Curtis, who rapped and said:

"The two Houses of Congress and their invited guests are assembled to pay tribute to a great man and a popular President—a man who was loved and is mourned by all the people—Calvin Coolidge."

The Interstate Commerce Commission Male Chorus, directed by Commissioner Clyde B. Aitchison, sang "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go," and the Vice President called on the Rev. Ze Barney T. Phillips, Senate chaplain, who delivered the invocation.

In introducing Chief Justice Rugg, Mr. Curtis said:

"I present to you a man who graduated from the same college and was a warm personal friend of Calvin Coolidge—the Hon. Arthur Prentice Rugg, chief justice of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts."

"The perspective of time is required before a generation can arise with a wide vision, unwarped by interest and free from bias, able to appraise his achievements at their true worth," Chief Justice Rugg said. "But those who knew him and loved him can not help paying their tribute of esteem and loyalty."

The chief justice reviewed Mr. Coolidge's career, beginning with his early life in the Vermont hills, and sweeping through his experiences in the Massachusetts Legislature, the governorship, the Vice Presidency, the Presidency, and in the end, his return to "his humble home" at Northampton.

"A most remarkable achievement of his administration," Mr. Rugg said, "was the carrying home to the minds and hearts of his countrymen an unfaltering faith in his capacity and intention to do what was right under all circumstances."

"No personal ambition tarnished the great office of President. A great statesman is the product of heredity, endowment, education and the times. Mr. Coolidge was the son of generations inured to toil and discipline. He typified the characteristic of the race from which he sprang."

Howard U. Pays Honor To Memory of Coolidge

Speaking on the life of President Calvin Coolidge in the memorial service of Howard University yesterday, the Rev. Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, pastor of the First Congregational Church, where the President attended, called attention to the silence of the Vermont hills as reflected in the character of Coolidge.

In introducing the speaker, President Mordecai Johnson of the university stated that two of the most constructive and fundamental steps ever made in behalf of Howard University and Negro education were taken during Coolidge's administration.

The Rev. D. Butler Pratt, dean of the university's school of religion, offered the invocation and the benediction. There was a musical program by the university glee club.

Hitler's Success Acclaimed By Fascists in Other Lands

Quick Reactions Are Felt in European Capitals; Rome Press Asserts Berlin Developments Prove Cause Is Spreading as Planned.

This is the last of three daily articles on the growth of the Nationalist Socialist doctrines preached by Adolf Hitler, new chancellor of Germany.

By WALTER BROCKMANN.

Berlin, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Fascism as a world-wide governmental system—a "welt politik," to borrow a popular prewar German phrase—has been a beckoning vision to the National Socialists led by Adolf Hitler, chancellor pro tem of the republic.

No sooner was he in office than there were quick reactions in other capitals.

While the life of his regime depends upon the elections called for March 5, the character of those first responses abroad testified to the interest with which other governments have watched the spread of his doctrines both in the fatherland and in neighboring countries.

Rome Hails Result.

Rome newspapers described the developments in Berlin as a sign that Fascism was spreading and its tenets were being vindicated.

In Vienna the leader of the Austrian National Socialist party hailed Hitler's ascendancy as the first streak of light heralding the day of "anschluss"—the union of all Germanic peoples in a single state.

Paris, involved in a cabinet crisis of her own, commented upon the need for French solidarity to insure that national security which is so deeply embedded in the consciousness of every politically minded Frenchman.

Other capitals, less deeply stirred, saw no impelling reasons for apprehensions. They argued that swift developments of the past few months had, in fact, disposed of the main planks in Hitler's known foreign program.

The Lausanne conference generally is regarded as having ended reparations, France and Great Britain recognized Germany's right to equal armaments as a matter of principle and and erasure of the "war guilt" charge from the Versailles treaty is so universally demanded in Germany that it never has been considered a distinctive Hitler plank.

But Nazi emissaries are busy in various countries attempting to influence opinion here at home by drawing on incidents abroad.

Einstein Affair Cited.

Typical of this system, say authoritative Berlin sources, was the affair involving Prof. Albert Einstein with United States consular authorities.

When an American women's organization asked that the author of relativity be barred from the United States as a Communist suspect, say these informants, the ladies unwittingly contributed to the Nazi anti-Semitic campaign in Germany.

These authoritative sources assert that the plans to discredit Einstein were laid in Nazi headquarters, the "brown house" of Munich, and agents of the party in the United States did the rest by a "whispering campaign."

There are organized Nazi parties in Austria, Switzerland, England, Holland, Belgium, Denmark, Norway and Sweden. These nations Hitler would like to see joined in a "Nordic bloc" to check French influence in Europe and to forward his program against communism and what he calls "international Jewry."

All of these organizations preach 100 per cent nationalism. Irrespective of their strength and influence in the various countries, the anti-Hitler parties in Germany use the existence of these foreign parties as arguments in appealing to German voters to help check the spread of nazism.

BLAME FOR SENATE JAM HOTLY ARGUED

Watson and Leader Robinson Debate Responsibility of Two Parties.

(Associated Press.)

A Senate plodding sluggishly through piled-up legislative chores spent an hour yesterday in a bitter political quarrel over party responsibility that ended with the Democrats again demonstrating their power to block President Hoover's nominations.

Senator Watson, the Republican leader, forced the ballot in an effort to prove his assertion that a Democratic-Progressive coalition controlled the Senate after Robinson, the Democratic leader, had accused the Indianan of using "his heavy hand" to block appropriation bills.

The Watson motion to consider the last nominations of the Hoover administration, which the Democrats have halted from the session's start, was defeated, 41 to 31. Five of his party's independents — Borah, of Idaho; Blaine and La Follette, of Wisconsin; Brookhart, of Iowa, and Cutting, of New Mexico—voted with the Democrats.

Then, just before the Senate settled down to work again after the political oratory, Senator Borah said nothing was to be gained by trying to fix responsibility for the legislative tangle, since "it has been demonstrated here for three weeks or a month that nobody has control."

The fray started when Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, put into the record a political speech Senator Watson delivered last Saturday, criticizing the Democratic party. Senator Robinson said he had been unable to obtain a copy of the address, but judging by newspaper reports "the speech is as brazen a piece of political effrontery as has yet been produced by the bankrupt and lame duck leadership of the Republican party in this body."

With this as a starting point, Mr. Robinson continued to lash the Republican leader for what he termed Watson's "effort to hold the Democratic party responsible for the failures of the political organization with which he is associated."

"This is an illustration of the feeble and ineffective leadership which has marked the Hoover administration," Robinson said.

Delay Laid to Watson.

He said Watson had done nothing to speed legislation, but instead had delayed action. Then he compared the record of the Democratic House in passing all but four of the big appropriation bills with that of the Senate, which has passed only a $3,000,000 deficiency bill.

"If we pass these appropriation bills," Robinson shouted, "it will be through the cooperation of the senator from Oregon and those associated with him."

McNary, of Oregon, the assistant Republican leader, is slated for Watson's post after March 4.

Watson didn't come into the chamber until just as Robinson was concluding. He said he had not expected to find Robinson replying to a speech he had not read.

"The senator from Arkansas honors me overmuch," Watson said, as senators began to file into the chamber. "He gives me credit for a power and influence I have never had and if I had now I would not use in the manner he describes.

"Everybody knows that for four long years a coalition has controlled the actions of this body. The senator from Arkansas, with certain gentlemen on this side, had complete control.

"I have done nothing this session to obstruct legislation. When the Democrats come into full control, I hope they will be able to organize behind their measures in greater degree than at this session."

Robinson broke in to say the Democrats had cooperated in supporting all emergency legislation. Watson said that was because they "had no program and didn't know what else to do."

Robinson retorted that only the President can guide "the ship of state" and then told Watson, a lame duck, "we praise God his firm hand won't be here to guide the ship of state on the rocks" after March 4.

Vandenberg, Michigan Republican, agreed with Robinson that the welfare of the Nation "does not turn on holding an executive session" but insisted the vote was "a criterion of where the control lies."

"The vote is another demonstration that the Republican control is a theory and nothing but a theory," Vandenberg said. "It is a shadow; it has no substance."

Hale Blames Democrats.

Chairman Hale, of the Appropriations Committee, denied Republicans were responsible for delay on supply bills.

"Nearly all the time during the session has been taken by Democrats," Hale said.

One of the last to get in the political exchange was the gray-haired, blind Senator Gore, Oklahoma Democrat. He said Watson was wrong in moving the approval of "lame duck" appointments and cited the recent ratification of the "lame duck" constitutional amendment.

Just before the Robinson-Watson interchange, which closed with Watson's motion to "test" party control, Robinson demanded greater speed in handling legislation.

"I hope we can demonstrate a capacity to act and speed the work of the session," he said after calling for a night session last night.

Washington Scientist Burned in Alaskan Fire

Fairbanks, Alaska, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Dr. H. B. Marks, a scientist of the Naval Research Laboratory at Washington, D. C., burned his hands severely today in saving records from a fire which damaged a small building in which scientific experiments for studying the polar year were being carried on.

The fire was believed to have started from electrical apparatus.

CONFESSOR IS FREED IN KIRK DEATH CASE

in the absence of first-hand evidence, Mr. Rover decided that to attempt a trial and conviction would not be feasible and yesterday he ordered Tucker released on his personal bond.

A month ago Tucker was transferred from St. Elizabeths famous Howard Hall, for the criminal insane, to Gallinger Hospital when the Government physicians said he had regained his mental stability. He was indicted March 24, 1931, and has been incarcerated here since early in April, 1931, when he was brought back from California.

Palm Beach, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—George Jessel, comedian, has transferred to Norma Talmadge the commodious home here which he purchased last fall and remodeled at considerable expense.

The deed of transfer was filed at the courthouse today. The deed was made out from Jessel to "Norma Talmadge Schenck," and Jessel was listed as unmarried.

BOLTING SENATORS TO ESCAPE PENALTY

Republican Leaders Frown on Move to Discipline Roosevelt Helpers.

(Associated Press.)

Threats of disciplinary action against Republican Independent senators who bolted to Franklin D. Roosevelt vanished last night before the stern opposition of the party's leaders.

From within a group of Eastern Republicans had come what some referred to as "loose talk" about efforts to take away committee seniority rights from the bolting Westerners at the approaching party caucus.

This referred to such senators as Norris (Nebraska), La Follette (Wisconsin), Johnson (California), and Cutting (New Mexico), who spoke in behalf of the Democratic Presidential nominee in the last campaign. But Senator McNary, of Oregon, who will be the Republican leader in the next Senate, said:

"There will be nothing to it. I am opposed to it and nothing will be done about it."

McNary and other veteran regulars opposed to disciplinary measures perhaps have in mind the criticism that was heaped upon the party after the 1924 campaign when Senators Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Edge, of New Jersey, led a movement resulting in the temporary withdrawal of seniority privileges from Senators Ladd, Frazier, the senior La Follette and Brookhart. That action was for the bolt to the La Follette independent Presidential ticket.

McNary said yesterday he opposed that step nine years ago and was more determinedly against similar action now.

EFFICIENCY BUREAU ORDERED ABOLISHED

Senator Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, argued he would rather the bureau he maintained as an independent agency than shift it to the accounting office, whose functions are unrelated.

Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, finally succeeded in getting his amendment, providing that the Board of Tax Appeals approve all tax refunds over $20,000, attached to the economy section. This amendment, in its original form, calling for congressional review of tax refunds, caused veto of the first deficiency bill. Revised again, to provide for review by the comptroller general, the amendment was offered last week to the Treasury-Postoffice bill, and beaten.

Saturday Half-Holiday.

The Senate Economy Committee was overridden on one minor recommendation, which would have forced employes in veterans' hospitals to forego their Saturday half-holiday leave, when their services were needed. On motion of Senator Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, the proposal was amended to allow these workers to make up the time they are forced to work some other day in the week.

The committee accepted an amendment by Senator Austin (Republican), Vermont, exempting funds for vocational training and money for agricultural colleges and extension work from a general requirement that permanent appropriations be passed on every year by Congress. This was agreed to by the Senate.

An effort to require Army, Navy and Marine Corps officers to stay at their posts four years, when assigned to the Philippines, China, Puerto Rico, the Panama Canal Zone or the Asiatic station, was defeated, under leadership of Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania. He argued the move would seriously menace officers' health. As applied to Hawaii, the four-year requirement was permitted to stand.

Rights for Furloughed.

On motion of Senator La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, employes administratively furloughed for more than 60 days were given the same rights to civil service protection and inquiry as is now accorded discharged workers.

The 10 per cent cut in retired and active pay of enlisted personnel, with $1,000 exemption, was approved over the opposition of Senator Reed and Senator Johnson (Republican), California. An amendment by Johnson to restict the cut to active enlisted men was voted down.

An economy act modification, proposed by Senator Bulkley (Democrat) Ohio, seeking to equalize leave regulations of employes getting a straight 8 1-3 per cent cut with those getting 24 days leave in return for the slash was agreed to.

Printing Office Cut.

The Senate also agreed to the night differential cut for Government Printing Office employes from ½, as under the conomy act, to 1-3.

An amendment by Senator Connally (Democrat), Texas, denying retired pay to officers drawing more than $10,000 a year from civilian employment, was adopted. Immediately after, Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, entered a motion to reconsider.

A recess was taken shortly after Senator Bratton opened discussion of his amendment to reduce all appropriation bills by 5 per cent, but not before Senator Costigan put in his amendment to exempt employes from wage slashes or furloughs under the cut.

Senator Bratton said only about 7,300 employes were discharged as a result of the economy act, but the number would greatly exceed this if the Costigan amendment is agreed to. He estimated the savings under his own amendment at $140,000,000.

EMBASSIES DETAIL MOVES OF BULLITT

Answer Stimson's Request; American Is Reported on Skiing Trip.

The opera-bouffe atmosphere surrounding William C. Bullitt in international diplomacy was further illustrated by dispatches to the Department of State here yesterday in response to requests from Secretary Stimson for information regarding Mr. Bullitt's alleged unlawful activities in discussion with European governments.

These activities had been the subject of considerable senatorial comment last week and finally culminated in the demand formulated by Senator Arthur R. Robinson (Republican), of Indiana, to Undersecretary William R. Castle, jr., for authoritative information regarding the activities of Mr. Bullitt in Europe. Cabled newspaper reports from London, Paris and Vienna had tended to portray Mr. Bullitt as an unofficial agent of President-elect Roosevelt, discussing with European chancellors the revision of the debts and other subjects of great international moment. The President-elect denied these reports and Mr. Bullitt himself also was active in decrying the importance of his moves.

Embassies Abroad Reply.

Yesterday, the American embassies abroad replied to the official request and it was evident that some of the replies had been written by the Ambassadors with tongue in cheek. These replies were embodied in a letter to Senator Robinson, which was sent to him last night.

The response from the London Embassy was solemnly worded:

"I have been informed by reliable eye-witnesses that they have seen Mr. Bullitt leaving No. 10 Downing street on more than one occasion last month. Beyond this I have no data that I regard as valuable."

Visited Paul-Boncour.

The Paris Embassy cable declared: "One of the directors of the foreign office press section advised a member of my staff that Mr. Bullitt spent approximately half an hour with Mr. Paul-Boncour, then premier, at the foreign office, on January 27. During the conversation, Mr. Bullitt outlined various domestic questions and conditions in the United States and gave a sketch of probable policies of the incoming Democratic administration. Paul-Boncour made no appreciable reply. It was thoroughly understood on both sides that the meeting was in no sense a negotiation."

The next reply came from Berlin, where the official there declared Mr. Bullitt had called at the Embassy and said he was merely interested in foreign affairs.

In Austria, Mr. Bullitt called on the American Assistant Commercial Attache last December and said he was there incognito. "Last winter he had been in Russia for a short time and returned to Vienna this year but left for a skiing trip February 2. His hotel expects him to return in a few days. I have not seen him since."

"LAME DUCKS" END IS FORMALLY NOTED

20th Amendment to Constitution Proclaimed at Quiet Ceremony.

(Associated Press.)

The "lame duck" amendment was formally proclaimed yesterday by Secretary Stimson a part of the Constitution although it actually became effective with ratification by the thirty-sixth State—Missouri—January 23.

Secretary Stimson had hoped to have sponsors of the twentieth amendment in Congress, including Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, attend the ceremony, but pressure of business prevented the legislators from leaving the Capitol.

Only two nonofficial witnesses were present—Miss Belle Sherwin, president of the National League of Women Voters, and Clarence Martin, representing the American Bar Association.

All the Assistant Secretaries of State and many of the chiefs of divisions in the department witnessed the signing.

The amendment provides that hereafter the regular sessions of Congress will begin on January 3 and that beginning with 1937 Presidents will be inaugurated on January 20 instead of March 4.

The Secretary of State proclaimed ratification by 39 States, but he listed only those whose notifications had reached the department. Actually, 45 States have ratified, leaving only Florida, Maryland and Vermont to act if the amendment is to receive 100 per cent approval.

After being formally proclaimed, as provided by the United States code, the amendment took its place along with other amendments in the department's archives.

WOODIN HELD SLATED FOR COMMERCE JOB

Believed to Have Edge Over Straus for Roosevelt Cabinet Selection.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 6 (A.P.).—The name of William H. Woodin, gray-haired New York industrialist, bobbed up most prominently today in Democratic talk here for Secretary of Commerce—one of the few remaining uncertain posts in the Roosevelt Cabinet.

Coupled with Woodin's name was that of Jessie I. Straus, New York merchant leader, for the Commerce office, but the odds seemed to point to the former, who has been at the right hand of President-elect Roosevelt in his month of presidential study.

Mr. Woodin is president of the American Car & Foundry Co. He has been making a close survey of the whole railroad and industrial situation for Mr. Roosevelt.

Selection of Woodin means three New Yorkers, at least, in the Roosevelt Cabinet but geography is not the basis upon which the new President is making his selections. James A. Farley, for Postmaster General, and Miss Frances Perkins, for Secretary of Labor, are the other New Yorkers regarded as certainties in the Cabinet.

With Mr. Roosevelt fishing far away in the Bahamas, the leaders of Democracy continued today to speculate over patronage distribution. The genial, but silent Farley, national chairman, is the center of the party activity here.

Word was received here today that Senator Norris, of Nebraska, the Republican independent leader, has made no protest to Mr. Roosevelt against inclusion of several senators in his Cabinet. His word came in response to reports which circulated here yesterday to that effect.

Tax-Refund Plan Voted by Senate

Sums Above $20,000 Would Be Subject to Study by Appeals Board.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate last night adopted an amendment to the Treasury-Postoffice bill providing that all tax refunds above $20,000 shall be subject to the approval of the Board of Tax Appeals.

The amendment was sponsored by Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee.

McKellar's effort to have such refunds passed on by the joint congressional Taxation Committee recently led to a veto of the first deficiency bill by President Hoover.

HITLER FORCES DIET ELECTION IN PRUSSIA

Von Papen Succeeds Ousted Premier in State With President's Help.

Berlin, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Chancellor Adolf Hitler's new government today swept aside all barriers that had blocked its plans for the election of a new Prussian Diet at the same time that the entire nation is choosing a new Reichstag next month.

The government accomplished this end with the aid of President von Hindenburg, who ousted Otto Braun, the elected premier of Prussia, and vested his powers in Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen, who is the federal commissioner for the State.

This accomplished, Lieut. Col. von Papen and Hans Kerrl, the Nazi president of the Diet, voted for dissolution of the Legislature over the objections of Conrad Adenauer, president of the Prussian State Council and third member of the Diet triumvirate.

Last week the Diet itself and the Diet triumvirate—on which Premier Braun then sat—rejected a dissolution demand from the federal government. Under the Prussian constitution the triumvirate alone may vote dissolution, and that end was gained by ousting Braun and putting in his place Von Papen.

"Herr von Papen and Herr Kerrl took note of Herr Adenauer's objections and decided to dissolve the Diet, effective March 4," said an official communique.

Chancellor Hitler is returning to Berlin from Munich tomorrow. Herr Kerrl has called a meeting of the Diet standing committee for tomorrow evening to consult on a date for new elections. The date already fixed for the Reichstag elections is March 5, and it is a foregone conclusion that will be the date for the Prussian Diet voting, regardless of any objections the committee may raise.

LUNCHES ASSURED IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Parents and Teachers, was selected to represent the congress on the committee. Dr. Stephen E. Kramer, first assistant superintendent of schools, will be the public schools' representative.

Dr. Joseph A. Murphy, chief medical and sanitary inspector of local public schools, who attended the conference, expressed the opinion that the milk and cracker lunch provided children with the largest amount of nutrition possible in present conditions.

Others who attended the conference were: Assistant Superintendent Robert L. Haycock; Miss Fay L. Bentley, director of school attendance and work permits; Supervising Principals H. W. Draper, Julia Hahan, S. M. Ely, Florence H. Rogers, Elizabeth A. Hummer, Miss Inez H. Sager, school nurse; Mrs. L. B. Castell, first vice president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. H. N. Saunders, president; Mrs. W. A. Roberts, executive secretary of the Washington Council of Social Agencies, and First Assistant Superintendent G. C. Wilkinson, of the colored schools.

TWO BRITISH PLANES START LONG FLIGHTS

Youth, 19, Ready for Hop-Off to Africa as Mollison and Army Men Go.

London (Tuesday) Feb. 7 (A.P.).—While two British airplanes were well on their way on flights to South America and Cape Town, South Africa, another small plane was being groomed last night at Southampton for a record attempt to the South African metropolis.

The pilot of this third record-seeking venture will be Victor Smith, 19-year-old South African aviator. He plans to take off at dawn today from Southampton in an attempt to beat Mrs. J. A. Mollison's (Amy Johnson) mark of 4 days 6 hours and 54 minutes to Cape Town.

Meanwhile the woman flier's husband, Capt. J. A. Mollison, rested momentarily last evening at Barcelona, Spain, where he landed en route to Brazil. He took off at 8:11 a. m. (3:11 a. m., Eastern standard time) from Lympne, on the 4,800-mile flight, which he hopes to complete in three and a half days. Capt. Mollison landed at Barcelona at 7:45 p. m. (3 p. m. Eastern standard time), and after refueling, started again in the direction of French Senegal.

Two British army fliers, Squadron Leader O. R. Gaylord and Flight Lieut. G. E. Nicholetts, who seek a new world's record for a long-distance nonstop flight, passed Rhat (Ghat), in the Sahara at 2 a. m. (Greenwich mean time, 9 p. m. Monday, Eastern standard time) today.

They had flown 2,040 miles from Cranwell, England, from where they hopped off at 7:15 a. m., Monday (2:15 a. m. E. S. T.).

Rhat is an oasis in Tripoli, Fezzan, in the central part of the Sahara.

To establish a new mark, they must exceed by 62.14 miles the record of 5,012 miles Russell Boardman and John Polando, Americans, flew from New York to Istanbul. If they should reach Cape Town, their goal, 6,198 miles from Cranwell, they would have a comfortable margin.

They were piloting a Royal Air Force long-range monoplane equipped with a "robot pilot," an automatic device which will relieve them from the controls if they desire. The plane, powered with a 530-horsepower engine, was equipped with a short wave radio set with which they kept in contact with their home field today. The plane is the one used in 1931 by Gayford and Flight Lieut. D. L. G. Bett for the first nonstop flight from England to Egypt.

Fatal Los Angeles Robbery Is Confessed

Los Angeles, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Capt. William Bright, of the sheriff's homicide detail, said today Dan Droesch, 35, of Merced, Calif., had confessed he killed H. L. Whited, Crockett, Calif., jeweler, in a robbery of Whited's store December 5. The jeweler's widow and daughter live in Washington, D. C.

A former convict from Folsom Penitentiary, Droesch was arrested in Phoenix, Ariz. Officers said he was trailed there through pawned articles.

DISTRICT WILL GET POWER RATE CUT

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech, Assistant Corporation Counsel William A. Roberts, William F. Ham, president of the power company, and Mr. Bowen.

After the power company officials had agreed to acknowledge the right of the commission to establish rates independently—the point of issue throughout the negotiations—the secondary question of how much the sliding scale was to be modified in favor of the utility was decided. Gen. Patrick said afterward that the commission fixed the adopted scale and refused to alter its position.

The new scale provides that all profits in excess of 7 per cent in any twelve-month period shall be applied to rate reductions on the following basis: One-half when earnings run between 7 and 8¼ per cent, 60 per cent between 8¼ and 9 per cent, and 75 per cent of all excess profits above 9 per cent.

If the rate of return for any two consecutive years falls below 6¾ per cent, or if it falls below 6¼ per cent for any twelve-month period, the commission shall promptly increase rates so as to bring the earnings of the company as near 7 per cent as possible.

Luhring's Modification.

Under Justice Luhring's modification of the commission's sliding scale, profits in excess of 7 per cent would be applied to rate reductions as follows: One-half of the excess up to 8 per cent, three-fourths additional between 8 and 9 per cent, and five-sixths additional for all above 9 per cent.

This scale provided for a raise in rates if the average return for any consecutive five-year period went below 6¾ per cent or below 6¼ per cent for any twelve-month period.

Counsel for the commission and the power company and the people's counsel yesterday afternoon filed in District Court of Appeals a petition to remand the sliding scale case to District Supreme Court. This request is expected to be granted today, after which the attorneys will ask Justice Luhring to amend his former ruling insofar as the sliding scale is concerned.

Will be Retained.

The opinion that the commission has authority to fix rates without resort either to the courts or to the power company will be retained in the new decree. An agreement making clear the terms of the decree will be kept on file for future reference.

While similar in some respects to the old consent decree under which electric rates were reduced annually for seven years, it differs fundamentally in that it does not tie the hands of the commission. The new decree likewise gives the public a greater share of excess profits for rate reduction. The old consent decree provided that half of all earnings above 7½ per cent be applied to rate reductions.

The negotiations for amicable settlement were abruptly broken off about a fortnight ago because of a rift between the commission and People's Counsel Keech. The latter insisted that a decree proposed at that time did not insure the rights of the utilities body to fix rates independently.

His view was sustained by Mr. Bride, who differed with his subordinate, Mr. Roberts and Mr. Bowen. Later, Mr. Bride was instrumental in bringing about resumption of the negotiations which led to the present agreement.

MUTINOUS CRUISER OFFERS TO GIVE UP

Dutch Airmen Spot Vessel and Threaten Bombing; Boat Eludes Fleet.

Amsterdam (Tuesday), Feb. 7 (U.P.).—The mutinous native Sumatran crew in charge of the Dutch cruiser De Zeven Provincien in the Indian Ocean during the night sent a wireless message to the steamer Aldebaran, in pursuit with their commander on board, offering to surrender on condition they not be punished.

They guaranteed the safety of the European officers and noncommissioned officers on board the warship, but reiterated that the seizing of the vessel must be regarded as a protest against the wage cuts in the Dutch navy.

It was said here it was unlikely the Dutch navy would accept the conditions.

Medan, Sumutra, Feb. 6 (U.P.).—Naval seaplanes spotted the cruiser De Zeven Provincien, manned by a mutinous native crew, steaming toward Surabaya, Dutch East Indies, today.

The aviators pointed to bombs slung under the wings of their aircraft as a warning that they would bomb the cruiser if the mutineers did not surrender. Although the cruiser continued on its course, no bombs were dropped, however, as naval authorities prefer to capture the ship intact if possible.

The native crew of the cruiser overpowered officers not ashore and steamed out of the port of Olehle, on the north coast of Sumatra, Saturday.

The mutineers broadcast a wireless addressed to the "World Press." It read:

"We intend to proceed to Surabaya. We do not intend any violence, and will return the ship over to our commander the day before our arrival at Surabaya.

"Our object is to protest against the unjust wage cut, and to protest the arrest of those protesting last week. No one on board has been hurt. On the contrary, all is well."

The message was signed, "The Crew."

A Dutch flotilla has been ordered in from the other side of Borneo and was expected to intercept the cruiser before it can reach Surabaya.

The commander of the cruiser followed in pursuit in a smaller government ship, the Alderbaren, but it was doubted he could catch up because the cruiser is much faster.

Dutch authorities were seeking to contact the mutinous crew and persuade them peacefully to hand over the ship. They will seek to prevent the vessel's reaching Surabaya, at all costs, it was indicated.

Musical Sketch Has Opening Here Tonight

An original musical sketch entitled "Music Gossip After the Opera" will be given its first performance here at the Washington Club, 1010 Seventeenth street northwest tonight. The sketch is directed by H. LeRoy Lewis, and the cast includes Mrs. Carl Chindblom, wife of the representative from Illinois, pianist; Mary Owen, soprano; Catherine Toomey mezzo-soprano; Raymond Piggott, barytone, and Adolf Roland, the only member of the cast who does not play a musical part.

MANCHUKUO DRAWS CENSURE AT GENEVA

tee of nineteen recommended that the league members by prohibited also from granting even de facto recognition of the new regime.

The committee even exceeded Secretary Stimson's historic letter to Senator William E. Borah, on February 25, 1932, in which Stimson accused Japan of violating the Nine Power and other treaties, and urged strong moral pressure by the nations against Japan.

The basis for the league's recommendation against reorganizing Manchukuo will be the statement that "the present situation in Manchuria is not compatible with the Kellogg pact, the Nine Power Treaty and the League Covenant."

Actual condemnation of Japan for alleged violation of these three international instruments, hence, will be contained in such a statement, when read in conjunction with the remainder of the committee's report that China is not responsible for events in Manchuria since September 18, 1931.

The drafting committee of the league will start writing tomorrow morning the formal recommendations, as decided upon today.

(Associated Press.)

Although the committee of nineteen which is drafting the report of Geneva on the Manchurian dispute is reported to have asked Russia and the United States to join in a declaration against the recognition of Manchukuo, Secretary Stimson said yesterday that no such request has yet reached the State Department.

It was made clear by the Secretary of State that there has been no change in the policy of the American Government not to recognize any gains made in violation of treaties, but he declined to discuss the work of the League of Nations conciliation committee, on which the United States, being outside the league, has no representation.

Nude Deal

Raleigh Probes Charges of Lobby Orgies Joined by Legislators.

Raleigh, N. C., Feb 6 (A.P.).—Police Chief Clarence Barbour said today he is investigating reports of gay "lobbying parties" at which nude women are supposed to have danced before a group of North Carolina legislators.

Barbour said he had been informed such parties had been held, but that so far his investigation has not disclosed anything tending to substantiate the reports.

The News and Observer said "leaders in the lobbying ranks of the beauticians claim the party was a 'frame up' to discredit their bill."

The News and Observer's story followed remarks on the Senate floor last week by Senator Boggan, of Anson County, concerning lobby parties allegedly given by proponents of a bill now before the Legislature to regulate the practice of cosmetic arts in the State.

SENATE BODY VOTES DIRECT RELIEF SUM

Wagner Hopeful of Passage of $300,000,000 Bill Despite Jam.

(Associated Press.)

A broad program for expanding the Federal Government's vast aid to the unemployed emerged from a Senate Banking subcommittee yesterday with strong Democratic support.

It provides for adding $300,000,000 to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's fund for direct relief loans to States and liberalizes the law under which that organization can lend for construction projects from its gigantic $1,500,000,000 fund.

Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, sponsor of the bill, announced he would press for early approval by the full committee and the Senate. He expressed hope for its enactment at this session, despite the legislative jam.

Most Important Feature.

There is already pending before the Senate a bill sponsored by Senators La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, and Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, to provide $500,000,000 for direct grants to the States.

Probably the most important feature of the bill reported yesterday is its elimination of restrictions now surrounding loans to States and municipalities for construction.

Under the present law such loans must be self-liquidating without the aid of taxation and "economically sound" in addition to being adequately secured.

The Wagner bill as drafted by the committee yesterday would permit any adedquately secured public loans that are "needful and in the public interest."

Bitter Complaint Made.

Bitter complaint was made to the committee during hearings that the restrictions in the present law, with its interpretation by he corporation, made the huge $1,500,000,000 fund ineffective. Witnesses pointed out that little more than $150,000,000 had been loaned.

The additional $300,000,000 for direct loans to States was voted by the committee in response to testimony by Charles A. Miller, president of the corporation, that the present fund would be exhausted by June.

Wagner originally proposed to throw the entire resources of the corporation open for this purpose, but Miller opposed that and suggested an additional $150,000,000.

House Member Accused.

Pottsville, Pa., Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Judge Henry Houck today ruled that G. F. Brumm, of Minersville, representative in Congress, had incurred illegal election expenses in 1930. He ordered the findings sent to Gov. Pinchot for transmittal to the Speaker of the House in Washington.

MRS. WANDERWELL QUOTES GUY THREAT

Widow Testifies He Vowed He'd "Get Even" With Slain Adventurer.

Long Beach, Calif., Feb. 6 (A.P.).—In a halting voice, Aloha Wanderwell, blonde widow of Capt. Walter J. Wanderwell, testified today William J. (Curly) Guy had threatened to "get even" with her husband after a disagreement over money.

She said Guy, accused of slaying the adventurer aboard the Wanderwell yacht Carma last December 5, made the threat after Wanderwell rejected a demand for funds growing out of an expedition between Buenos Aires and San Francisco.

The testimony cropped out unexpectedly at Guy's trial as the defense cross-examined the young widow. Guy's counsel quickly made a counter move.

Hesitates Over Amount.

"How much did Guy claim Capt. Wanderwell owed him?" Eugene McGann, counsel for the defendant, inquired.

"I don't recall just how much it was."

McGann pressed the question. The witness tilted her head to one side and placed her fingers against her cheek, glancing at the ceiling as she sought to reflect. Then she replied that she believed it was "about $200."

"And you say," McGann resumed, "that Capt. Wanderwell had $600 in his wallet when his body was found on the Carma?"

"Yes," she replied.

Widow Breaks Down.

The slow speaking widow became the center of two brief flurries of excitement in the courtroom during the morning session. When the State summoned her to complete direct examination as court convened, she was nowhere to be found. A bench warrant was issued. After a 15-minute search she sauntered into the courtroom, escorted by a bailiff who only chanced upon her as she entered the corridor.

Tardiness cost her a court order that she be held in custody until counsel for both sides had finished with her examination.

Again, half way through the morning sessions, she broke under an outburst of emotions and cried as the defense counsel mentioned the "body of your husband."

The court called a recess until she recovered her composure.

BRITAIN MAY OFFER LUMP SUM PAYMENT

ment has paid the United States $2,007,348,298 on the war debts.)

A communique issued after the British Ambassador's conference of an hour and three quarters in the famous white and gold cabinet room gave no hint of what he had told the cabinet "big five"—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, Lord President of the Council Stanley Baldwin, Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain and Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade. Nor is an official announcement expected here of the success of the ambassador's mission.

Sir Ronald's consultations will continue daily for about a week. "Golden silence" will envelop them, but persons in position to know the situation believe that a new era of Anglo-American debt negotiations dawned today.

It is stated that what may be called the Chancellor Chamberlain phase of outspoken debt diplomacy is ending. Having influenced British views in the British notes late last year, repeated them in his recent speech at Leeds, and repeated them again for American newspaper correspondents last week, it is believed that Mr. Chamberlain's program now will be merged with more conciliatory cabinet opinion.

The outcome of the new developments may enable Sir Ronald to return to Washington with a comprehensive plan for settling once for all one of the most difficult of all post-war problems.

Post's $10,500 Photo Test Devoid of Commercialism

Names of Entries in Century of Progress Competition for 51 Most Charming Girls Withheld; Newspaper Holds Exclusive Authority.

There is positively no commercial object associated with The Washington Post's $10,500 search for 51 charming girls to officially inaugurate the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago next June. For this reason The Washington Post will not divulge the names and addresses of contestants until the winning group is announced following the conclusion of the contest on Saturday, April 15.

This definite statement is made as the result of the flood of inquiries which has followed the publication of pictures of 20 charming girls in The Post's rotogravure picture sections of the last two Sundays. Underwood & Underwood, Harris & Ewing and other photographers whose credit lines have appeared with pictures have also been asked to identify contestants, but have refused to do so, by request of The Post.

This explanation is made to those who may have wished to verify their own personal recognition and also as an assurance to prospective entrants that they will not be annoyed by solicitors of any type.

The Post's Queen Contest is conducted by exclusive authorization of the Century of Progress International Exposition and is a dignified and sincere method of finding 51 of the world's most charming girls to add a touch of colorful beauty to the opening ceremonies at the great world's fair on June 1.

The entire group will be selected from photographs submitted personally, or by friends or relatives, and they will be brought to Chicago for a period of two weeks as the guests of The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune. Under proper chaperonage they will enjoy every entertainment available in the city and at the exposition. They will reside at the most luxurious hotels and every expense, including that of transportation and the providing of beautiful gowns, will be borne by these newspapers.

From the group three will be selected to receive $5,000, $3,000 and $2,000, respectively, in cash awards and to officiate as queen and her first and second ladies in waiting. In addition, all of the girls will receive international recognition for their feminine charm.

No entrance fees or other expenses or obligations are required to share in this great opportunity. Every unmarried girl with the exception of professionals such as stage girls and artists' models and employes of The Washington Post is eligible to compete. It is only necessary to mail a photograph that has been made within the past twelve months and is at least 6 by 8 inches in size to the "Queen Contest Editor, The Washington Post," accompanied by the transmittal coupon which appears upon this page today or by the same information written upon a separate sheet of paper and pasted to the back of the picture.

STRIKE ON 7 MALL JOBS IS THREATENED

then lose his identity as a union man.

Having then become nonunion, the other building tradesmen, reserving the right to work only with union men, could refuse to go on. That this will be the course pursued was strongly indicated by Buildings Trades Council officials.

Mr. Locher declared that the cessation of work would not be a "strike;" it would be a "lockout." "The men," he said, "are willing to work for the union wage scale and when they report for work and the employers refuse to pay them the union scale, the men are locked out. They do not declare a strike."

The mechanics of calling a general cessation of work are these: The union men, having been locked out for refusal to take a lower pay, or nonunion men having been employed to take the place of the union men, the Building Trades Council would call a special meeting. The question would be aired and the business agents of the various crafts would be empowered to call their men off the jobs.

The whole controversy is due to be discussed today at a meeting of the Building Trades Council. The sentiment of the council, Mr. Locher said, was voiced by him at the Central Labor Union meeting when he said the council will "participate in a general strike, if necessary, to defend the wage scales."

The buildings which will probably be effected by a general "strike" or "lockout" would be Archives, Labor Federal Postoffice, extension to the Congressional Library, Interstate Commerce Commission, Justice and the extension to the Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Locher also pointed out that the differences in the wages are due only to a small group of contractors. "Seventy-five per cent of the trades affiliated with the council," he said, "have agreements with the employers."

"A survey the council has made throughout the country," he said, "has demonstrated that where wages have been reduced there has been an additional stoppage of work because of the drop in purchasing power."

The seat of the controversy is the interpretation of the Bacon-Davis law, which requires that on all Government jobs, contractors shall pay not less than the prevailing "rate of wages for work of a similar nature."

FORCING TAKEOUTS.

IN the early days of Contract, players found it necessary to use Forcing bids in greater profusion than they do now, because the technique of the game was not sufficiently developed. Players did not understand the meaning either of playing tricks or honor-tricks, and the tendency was either to go too high on weak hands or to play game hands for part-score and Slam hands merely for games. As a result, the tendency to force on hands that looked at all good, after partner had opened the bidding, became almost an obsession.

In writing "Contract Bridge Blue Book" I laid down the proposition that a Forcing Takeout should not be made when partner held less than 3 honor-tricks, and, of course, this carried with it the thought that the hand making the Force had cards which gave substance to the bare structure of the honor-tricks. In actual play, however, it has been demonstrated that it is dangerous to force after partner has opened the bidding with such a hand, say, as

Hearts	10 9 8
Diamonds	A 9 5
Clubs	7 6 3

The hand has 3 honor-tricks, but even if you would add another ½ honor-trick, the question of the Force would still be on the borderline, as, while the hand would probably produce three notrump, it is by no means a certainty.

Thus, in the Culbertson System of 1933 the general requirement for a Forcing Takeout after partner has opened the bidding, is the holding of 3½ honor-tricks. With honor-cards, or favorable distribution, it makes the game probable. The element of favorable distribution usually includes the requirement of a fit in the suit bid by the partner or the alternative of a strong suit of your own.

The hand below is an example of a splendid Forcing Takeout—that is, a bid of two over one:

North—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding: (Figure after bid in table refers to numbered explanatory paragraph.)

North	South
1♡	2♠ (1)
2NT	3♡
3NT	5♡
6♡	Pass

1—South is sure of game. His hand contains not only 3½ honor-trick, but an absolute fit in partner's suit. The Forcing Takeout is in every way to be preferred to an immediate Raise to game in hearts, which, in this case, might readily have shut out the makable Small Slam.

Contrast the hand above with the hand below, in which, while the Responding Hand holds 3½ honor-tricks, he does not make a Forcing Takeout, but elects to use instead the 99 44-100 per cent Forcing One-over-One of the Culbertson System.

North—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding: (Figure after bid in table refers to numbered explanatory paragraph.)

North	South
1♡	1♠ (1)
2◇	4◇
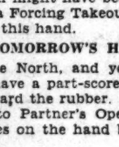
Pass

1—South again holds 3½ honor-tricks, but the hand, as a whole, is much weaker. In the first place, it does not fit with partner's heart bid, and, in addition to that, it contains practically no playing-tricks outside of the honor-tricks. The result is that, with this holding, North and South finally reach a game in diamonds, but avoid the bidding of a Slam, which might have been the result had a Forcing Takeout been made with this hand.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

You are North, and you and your partner have a part-score of 40 and a game toward the rubber. How do you respond to Partner's Opening bid of two spades on the hand below?



You may read the expert method tomorrow.

KING OF THE JUNGLE

by CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

Kaspa, the lion-man found as a child in the African jungle by a lioness and raised with her own cubs, is brought to Canada by Martin Sefton and is recognized by James Horton, wealthy Canadian publisher, as the grandson and sole heir of his millionaire friend, Denison Starke, now dead. Under the care and tutelage of Sefton, Kaspa is prepared to go into society and meets Denison Starke's sister, Mrs. Johnson Marley, her two stepchildren, Lucian and Sheila; her beautiful companion, Madeline Moore, and Sheila's fiance, Reeves. Madeline is strangly drawn to him. One day, while attending a circus, two lions start fighting with a tiger, and the trainer, in trying to stop them, is wounded by one of the lions. As the trainer crawls out of the cage door, the tiger shakes himself free and starts out of the open door. Kaspa rushes down from his seat and with the aid of the two lions, kills the tiger. The ringmaster runs up with a rifle. Kaspa turns upon him, masking the snarling lions with his body, growling and snarling like the animals he protected.

CHAPTER XVII.

THE ring-master, white faced and trembling, backed before the advance of this terrible figure, its face streaked with blood, its clothes flapping about it. The man was uncertain for his own safety and inclined to guard himself with the rifle. Sefton was in time to prevent that. He recovered from his helpless stupor, and, being equipped with the courage that faces death with reluctance but determination, he saw his duty clearly and did it. He passed within two paces of the lions, and it was extraordinary that they did not attack him; he caught the ring-master's rifle and began to explain the incredible truth that all was now well, and that Kaspa, being half a lion himself, could control the lions and prevent them from doing further damage.

The ring-master argued and protested. He had never heard of such a thing, and in any case he was much too worried and excited to act upon anything other than preconceived ideas. An escaped lion was dangerous and must be shot or captured. It could only be captured by men with nets and ropes, and here were none of those things; therefore shoot the lions before they did further mischief.

By the time he had told Sefton this and several artists and helpers had gathered behind him armed with a miscellany of articles, from axes to kitchen knives, Kaspa had shepherded the lions back into their cage and was talking to them in their own language, explaining his presence and the uselessness of resisting men and guns.

Now that the danger was over every one recaptured his presence of mind. It was quite easy to see what should have been done. The ring-master should have exhorted the audience to keep calm and to file out quietly. Reeves should have aided by his example; Lucian should have jumped to assist the circus staff, and so on.

Nobody had done these things, and in consequence they were all annoyed with the only person who had acted naturally and courageously, to wit, Kaspa.

Little Kaspa cared for their opinions; he was interested in his new friends and the details of their capture and life in the circus.

The ring-master began by demanding compensation for his tiger, which he said could have been overpowered and recaged without difficulty but for Kaspa's interference.

Kaspa directed Sefton to pay the man the value of the dead animal, and also to purchase the two lions, which he was determined to take back with him to Honeydale.

These negotiations resulted in Sefton losing his temper and accusing the manager of being a rogue and a robber.

"Pay him the money," said Kaspa impatiently. "Are we tradesmen that we should bargain with the fellow?"

Sefton paid him the money. The manager promised to look after the lions until they could be delivered the following day. Kaspa reluctantly accompanied his tutor out of the tent. The rest of the party followed, pushing their way through a crowd of people who strove to catch a glimpse of the man who was supposed to have killed a tiger with his hands and thrown a couple of lions back into the cage from which they had escaped.

"This is the limit of nastiness," declared Sheila, listening to the gable, and watching the blood-stained, tattered figure of the lion-man towering above the excited crowd.

"I agree," her lover muttered. "When one brings out a wild animal one must expect something of this kind. It is like traveling with a freak show."

When the car was out upon the deserted road to Honeydale, they were all relieved. Sefton drove, with Kaspa sitting beside him. He cast anxious glances at his friend's torn face and hands, but Kaspa seemed unaware of his hurts.

The encounter with the tiger and the meeting with his own people, as he considered the jungle folk to be, had awakened old memories in his mind. He was more of a lion than a man that night, and the others in the car with him were no more than monkeys, full of silly chatter and flustered actions.

Madeline was silent and preoccupied. She was now fully aware that Kaspa was a potent force in any sphere of action. Previously she had regarded him as a sort of wild, untamed creature, invincible upon his own ground, but singularly helpless among civilized mankind. She realized that she had been mistaken.

Kaspa was a force to be reckoned with in any company. He had dominated the circus tent, and every one had been conscious of that dominance. If Kaspa could be persuaded to become a respectable citizen, he would become a power in the land. Power radiated from him. He was a forceful personality, the most forceful she had ever met. She compared him with Reeves, a strong man in his way, but infinitely weak beside the lion-man.

New thoughts were born of this realization. Kaspa could be made into a great man if he could be influenced to direct his endeavors in the right channels. Why should she not influence him? Poor boy; he was so friendless and alone in a world so strange to him. He had Sefton, but Sefton was different.

Madeline felt that no one could understand the lion-man as she could. She was convinced that she had the same wild nature, long suppressed by the conventions of her upbringing; but an integral part of her once it was realized.

When Kaspa had sprung to do battle with the tiger she had felt a surge of primitive emotion such as she had never before experienced. There should be a new interest in her discontented life; she would be Kaspa's friend and strive to mold his splendid character into something still finer—and more gentle.

When they arrived at Honeydale, she insisted upon bathing and doctoring Kaspa's wounds. The others gathered in the drawing room, drinking cocktails and talking excitedly about the events of the night—all except Sefton, who wandered restlessly about, one moment assisting Madeline, the next arguing with Lucian and Reeves, who were protesting against Kaspa's avowed intention of bringing the lions to Honeydale and allowing them to run loose.

"They will be quite safe," he explained. "Kaspa can control them and, of course, they will be securely caged when their master is not with them."

But Lucian protested that it was "a bit thick," and Reeves said: "If you think I am going to let Sheila stay here with lions roaming about, you are mistaken. That fellow is not responsible; you ought not to let him do just what he likes."

In another room, caring nothing about this altercation, Madeline was fixing the final bandages on Kaspa's lacerated arms. Her curly brown head was bent within a few inches of his face, and the scent of her hair was in his nostrils.

She finished her task with a final pat and looked up smilingly. "There, does that feel better?"

Kaspa grunted softly. The wounds were nothing to him, since they were not dangerous.

Madeline took the bowl of discolored water and walked out onto the veranda, where she emptied it on the grass.

Kaspa followed on silent feet. There was no conscious intent in his action; he wanted to be with her, so he followed her out into the warm night, where the crickets were chirping and the breeze brought the smell of pines from the forest. When she turned it was to find his great form poised before her.

Without thinking, Kaspa took her in his arms. The bowl fell unheeded to the ground with a clear, ringing noise. He buried his face in the white curve of her neck and so held her, his whole body trembling. After the first instinctive resistance Madeline lay quiet in those mighty arms. The breeze sighed softly in the creepers and the crickets sang their shrill monotonous song.

Kaspa raised his head and sighed deeply. In the starlight he could see her large shadowy eyes looking up at him.

He essayed to speak, but only a soft purring sound came from his lips.

"Kaspa, I love you," said Madeline, gently.

He had never heard so sweet a sound. It seemed as if the whole music of the wilderness; the notes of birds, the fluting of the wind in tall trees, the sound of falling water, distant and subdued, had coalesced into one song of human passion He sighed again. Her soft body, held against him, was dearer than life itself; her radiant eyes were more beautiful than the stars. This was the culmination of all joy. He was unconscious of everything but this precious creature that was his.

And then he saw her eyes go startled. The habit of watchfulness reasserted itself; he turned his head like a flash. The strained white face of Sefton appeared in the doorway. He did not speak but passed them quickly and ran down the steps into the garden.

Kaspa released Madeline and stood staring after his friend, a stricken expression on his face. He heard Madeline sob, and then she ran past him into the house.

Kaspa made no movement to follow her. He cleared the veranda railing with one catlike leap and vanished into the night.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

THIS morning's mail brings a cheery, happy letter from a bride-to-be who writes that she is keeping her job in a Wall street banking firm until the very last minute. Being an efficient young woman, she is planning many household duties well in advance. She writes amusingly of delving into kitchen and linen problems and now knows which weaves are most beautiful in damask, which sheeting will stand most wear in bed linen. She has even decided on kitchen colors for curtains, pots and pans and geraniums! Now she turns to this column for a list of bathroom and beauty aids.

First, I want to warn against nonessentials. Don't you all hate the ever cluttered bathroom medicine chest? And speaking of medicine chests, if you are marrying an orderly male soul (and I hope you are), get an extra medicine chest for "his highness." He will want much room for his various razors and shaving things. Arrange the lower glass shelf high enough so there will be room for his hair tonics and after-shaving lotions. Men won't confess it, but they are vain creatures.

Your list may include everything in a drug store sale "throw-away" if you have many imaginary ills or it may be as simple as an occasional bicarbonate of soda dose. Of course, it will depend on your own habits, but here's a sample list:

Hand and guest soap (purchase in dozen quantity for special price).
Hand and nail brush.
Bath soap, bath salts, bath and back brushes.
Porcelain cleansing powder and special bathtub brush.
Several tooth brushes, tooth paste and dental floss.
Talcum and dusting powder.
Mouth wash.
Hand lotion, nail floss, emory boards, cuticle scissors, cuticle oil, nail white and hand cream.
Shampoo, comb cleaners, an atomizer for spraying hair.
Instead of listing minor accident aids, get a little first-aid kit containing gauze, bandage, &c.
Iodine and mercurochrome, of course.
Bicarbonate of soda, olive oil or mineral oil.
A pound roll of absorbent cotton.
Cleansing tissues.
Liquid and powder deodorant.
Rubbing alcohol.
Nasal and throat spray, hot-water bag or heating pad.
Cleansing fluid or powdered cleanser.
Magnifying mirror.
Tweezers.

This list can be elaborated, but will give you a fair start. Your bathroom essentials will be shower curtain, bath rug, bath mats, window curtains, bath scale and hamper in same or contrasting shades. Also glass accessories for lotions and salts and bath powders as costly as you wish.

I have a bulletin which tells how to "care for your toilet articles so that they will serve you better." A self-addressed envelope will bring it to you.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

A STUDY by the New York City health department of the death rate of babies in that city in 1895 and each year thereafter until and including 1931 shows not only how much safer baby life is, and the fields in which most of the improvement is found, but it also indicates the fields in which attention must be centered now and for the next 30 years. What is reported from New York City is true, in a general way, of the country at large.

In 1931 the death rate of babies under 1 year of age was only 37 per cent of that of 1896. Since 1932 was a safe year for babies, the probability is that a hazard to a baby's life was three times as high in 1896 as it was in 1932. There are not as many babies born now as compared to 1896, and since those born are so healthy, it follows that the total number of babies dying in 1932 per 100,000 probably was not more than one-fifth or one-sixth that of 1896.

The overshadowing danger to babies in 1896 was chlorea infantum and the diarrheas. Babies had poor milk in 1896 and they paid for it in sickness. The digestive disturbances of babies are now of secondary importance. The death rate from these disorders is only about one-thirteenth of that of 35 years ago. The problem of feeding the baby has virtually been solved.

The second group of disorders to which babies were exposed at the earlier date were congenital deformities, injuries at birth, and the diseases peculiar to babies less than 1 month old and particularly those that start in the first week of life. In 1931 this group had mvoed from second to first place. The death rate from this group of disorders is almost as high as it was 35 years ago.

The third in rank in the first year of the period studied was the group of respiratory diseases and especially pneumonias and bronchitis. This group has moved up from third to second place. Babies are somewhat safer now from pneumonia, coughs and colds, but the improvement has been less than that in the field of digestive disorders. There has been great decrease of the hazard due to infectious disease. The rate of improvement here has been greater than that of any ohter group, except the digestive disorders. The tuberculosis rate is falling satisfactorily.

What are the fields on which the efforts to improve things should be centered? First in rank are those things that are liable to happen to a baby before and during birth and during the first week or two thereafter? The need here far surpasses all others.

Second, ranks the respiratory group. Babies are fairly safe now in summer. It is the winter and spring that "get them." They are safe as to food. It is the artificial heating, poor ventilation, lack of sunshine and open air and exposure to the cold and the pneumonia infection that is hard on them. They still need protection against whooping cough and measles. Not many persons are seriously affected by these two diseases, but nearly the entire number who are endangered by them are babies less than 2 years old.

29th Year in Post Here Is Marked by Dr. Simon

The twenty-ninth anniversary of the installation of Dr. Abram Simon as rabbi of the Washington Hebrew Congregation was observed quietly at his home, at 3722 Harrison street northwest yesterday, where he is still seriously ill.

Usually, the anniversary is recognized with a celebration at the synagogue and other festivities. Dr. Simon has been ill for several weeks with a nervous breakdown which followed an attack of influenza. Members of the family said his condition is still precarious.

The Meanderer

Finds Clews to Men's Fashion Trend . . . Checks and Plaids . . . Native Neckwear . . . A Style Show.

If the girls are "going Gibson" or have gone—can the men be far behind? They aren't. No Gibson girl stepping out of her calendar need feel strange among the men's styles slated for spring and that are here, in part. Numerous experts in suits and haberdashery assured the Meanderer of that yesterday. And a men's style show proved it.

What Scotland Yard calls the "dominant clew" is the emphasis on pattern in men's wearables. Checks, to be specific, and plaids, to be even more so. In suits, socks, shirts and scarfs. One men's shop is making quite a thing of pleated-bosomed shirts—even some with palpable dicky-bosoms, at $1.95, and are all loaded up with lumbermen's check shirts in very suave fabrics.

The same store is doing something interesting with men's wool and silk and wool hose, in a riot of colors and at 55 cents the pair or six pairs for $3. As well as a really novel necktie at $2 the copy, woven of native wool by American Indians in New Mexico.

Another place where Washington men go for something special will soon have ready a chart of 12 authenticated Scottish clan plaids, with neckties and other accessories in those plaids.

Flannels, still with emphasis on checks, are going to be the favorite textile here and also around and about in other towns this season, opines the style augur of this place.

The price level of quality goods, he says, is slightly below what it was before the war. He is careful to explain that part of the reduction has been made possible by increased efficiency in manufacture. He also points out that in times like these, when really good merchandise can be had at a low price, it is doubly essential to watch for quality.

At the style show the suits revealed the promised patterns—pin, pencil and chalk stripes and dots and figures. Did we mention checks and plaids? Colors are lighter, and light gray is leading, with light tones of tan and brown next. Double-breasted suits will number about one-third of all the suits worn from now on, this store believes. All the suits at the show are going on sale Thursday at $20, but orders ahead of then will be filled. All those style-show suits have two pairs of pants.

Telephone your questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 52, and they will be promptly answered; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

AS hard as it is to describe in words a perfect creation of a couturier, this one is simply too lovely not to attempt! Worth offers it—an evening gown, hand embroidered in pale pink soutache braid on tulle. Assisted, as it were, with pale pink silk thread—but all in the scheme of things!

A high draped collar is attached to the bodice in an odd way which leaves part of the breast and sides of the body of the wearer exposed, and the pointed decolletage of the back does the same. A narrow band of fur outlines this odd collar—which seems to have been put on right over the original decolletage of the gown—yet is such an important part of this same decolletage!

Can you picture it? It was really lovely!

* * * *

How important are manners and styles of dress to womankind? Important enough—and not of new importance, either. For in the reign of Heliogabalus, perhaps not the best Emperor of Rome, but unquestionably an elegant—there existed an assembly or official group of women who dictated the styles and the manners of the women of that day!

Wouldn't that be an idea, now! And how much coufusion it would save poor fashun crickets like myself—not to mention the harassed couturieres, and the mere woman who finally spends her husband's good money for these styles. Oh, well—and we speak of progress!

* * * *

I suppose that you think a stocking is a stocking? Or that hosiery is hosiery—or a lot of stockings. Well, watch here and find out!

Some Questions in Francais.

Pourqoi? (por-kwah) why?
Ou? (oou) where?
Quand? kand) when? (The a as in "father.")
Comment (kaw-maw) how?
Quelle heure est-il? (kell-er ay teal) what time, or hour, is it?

* * * *

Any one can think of a tablecloth and napkin set! Or a bedspread design! But isn't it funny how one never can—when we get right to where we want to make one! So save yourself all the trouble of wondering and trying to find a design that suits you by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, which gives you several ideas and designs. These are new, original and suitable for either tea sets or spreads and pillows. "Mi Rancho Bonito" is simply too cunning! And new, too, in the way colored scraps are used to achieve it.

A blank scrapbook costs 10 cents anywhere. And many a Dah-ray fan keeps one in which to keep these leaflets—because they are timeless—and so often something that we might not want right this minute, but will want some day. A cheerful friend writes: "Darling-Dahray: Whenever I get into the dumps I rush out the scrapbag—oh, a glorified one, in which I put remnants and things that dignify the name of "scraps"—and then take out my scrapbook of your leaflets. I just work off my mood through my fingers! And achieve inner peace and outer beauty." There was more very nice, encouraging to me, and helpful. Thank you, friend fan!

What Today Means

By MARY BLAKE

"AQUARIUS."

IF FEBRUARY 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6:45 a. m. to 8 a. m., from 10 a. m. to 11:15 a. m., and from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. The danger periods are from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m., and from 7:15 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

Influences operating on this date will tend to make this a day of apparent calm. Beneath the surface, however, the emotions will be at full play and you will experience a variety of emotional ups and downs. It will in all probability be a day on which you will want to keep pretty much to yourself.

The child born on this February 7 will be keenly alert to all that goes on about him. He will be quick to sense the unexpressed feelings and emotions of others. Inclined to be supersensitive himself, he will show great sympathy and understanding toward others. From early childhood on, he will seek to aid others. Look for him to follow some career wherein he can be of service to mankind.

If February 7 is your birthday, you are inclined to be a person who thinks much of "self." You are prone to pamper and baby yourself at every turn. You make the flimsiest of excuses by which to condone your shortcomings. You are not averse to using a lie to get yourself out of petty difficulties and especially is this true if you are cornered unawares; invariably though, you "come clean" in time. In matters of great import you are extremely honest and you are absolutely trustworthy when it comes to handling other people's money.

Born on February 7, you are really a person of considerable energy. You have the physical stamina to work hard if you want to, and whatever you do you go about it in a logical manner. You know how to use your brain. You have the power of making others like you, regardless of your feelings toward them, and this quality makes you unusually successful in directing others individually or in groups. People are inclined to work and to work hard for you, because they like you. You are not particularly kind nor considerate of others. When it comes to those you love, the family and children, you are inclined to indulge their every wish; nothing is too good for them. You will go short yourself and deprive yourself of little things in order to give to them. You are a generous mate and parent.

Successful people born on February 7:

Cyrus Wakefield, manufacturer and philanthropist.
Abiel Abbott Low, merchant.
George P. Putnam, publisher.
Noadiah M. Hill, linguist.
Jacob M. Da Costa physician and author.
Charles Fordney, member of Congress.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

HERE'S a charming two-tone model. Its clever lines are slenderizing for the stout woman and makes the short woman appear much taller.

The wrapped treatment gives it loads of snap and dash.

Dark blue crinkly crepe silk made the original. A crepe print, in blue and white, proved flattering contrast for its upper bodice and the sleeves.

Style No. 2746 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust.

Size 16 requires 2½ yards of 39-inch material with 1 yard of 35-inch contrasting. Price of pattern 15 cents.

Something New! Something Different!

We are proud of our new Fashion Magazine for spring. It's much larger and different than any issue previously published. It's 48 pages.

This book contains all of the new spring styles for women, misses and children.

In addition, it contains the most interesting illustrated articles—Beauty Hints, Hairdressing, How to Reduce Sensibly, Poise as Aid to Fashion, Dressmaking Hints, Knitted Sweaters, Quilts and Embroidery, &c.

The supply is limited and so we suggest that you send 10 cents for your copy today. Just write "Fashion Magazine" on any piece of paper, inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin and mail your order to Fashion Department, The Washington Post, Fifth avenue and Twenty-third street, New York City.

Raw, Tender Nose and no wonder!

Rubbed, inflamed with harsh, damp handkerchiefs, when it should be gently treated with KLEENEX Soft, absorbent—now costs but 25c

MUCH of the misery of a cold comes from irritation caused by damp handkerchiefs.

This discomfort is avoided when you use Kleenex—a soft, cloth-like tissue, many times more absorbent than cotton or linen.

Since the cost is very low, a tissue need be used but once. Thus, you have a clean tissue every time—soft, soothing and dry.

Much more healthful

Kleenex is not only more comfortable, it is infinitely more sanitary. A cold-filled handkerchief re-infects the user, spreads infection to others. Kleenex fibers are so powerfully absorbent that they hold germs securely, harmless, until the Kleenex can be destroyed.

No disagreeable laundering

When you use Kleenex there's no disagreeable handkerchief washing, no laundry expense. And the hygienic Kleenex habit actually costs less than having handkerchiefs laundered! Kleenex is sold at all drug and department stores.

HIGH COURT DECIDES STATE TAXING CASES

Sustains Right of President to Change Duties Without Disclosing Reason.

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court of the United States yesterday removed 17 cases from its docket, including a number in which the rights of States to tax were involved.

It upheld the Missouri bucketshop act, the Alabama ad valorem tax of 1923, and the Tennessee act of 1925 taxing gasoline stored in that State.

In addition, it sustained the authority of the President to change customs duties without disclosing confidential information submitted to the Tariff Commission.

Cheyenne and Rock Springs, Wyo., and certain officials of that State were granted a review of a decision by the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals holding a license on excise tax of 4 cents a gallon on gasoline purchased outside the State by the Boeing Air Transport, Inc., and brought into Wyoming for use in its planes in interstate commerce was invalid.

A review also was ordered on the appeal of the Montana Public Sevice Commission from a decision by a three-judge Federal court prohibiting it from enforcing an order requiring the Great Northern Utilities Co. to file natural gas rates for Shelly, Mont.

The Supreme Court yesterday ruled that States have the right to tax electricity generated by companies operating under Federal license.

The point was raised by the Lexington Water Power Co. in assailing the South Carolina levy on power generated or sold within the State, but the court said the Carolina law was valid.

SENATE BARRY QUIZ INVOLVES PROFESSOR

the Barry article was that it was written by a man who had been in the service of the Senate for the last fourteen years and the people of the country would believe it was written by a man who knew what he was writing. The article could not go unchallenged, Mr. Borah said.

Mr. Barry said that undue emphasis had been put on his suggestion there were not many crooks in Congress who sold their votes. He urged that on the whole his article was a defense against criticisms and gossip about the members of Congress.

"If it is an offense to have said what I said in my article," Mr. Barry told the committee, "then not I alone am guilty, for on the 10th of May, 1932, Senator Glass, of Virginia, speaking on the subject of opposition of certain bankers to the proposed legislation in regard to branch banking said:

"'They hired a skillful and persuasive lobbyist and paid him a high salary to come here to Washington—worse than that, they hired some Congressmen to my positive documentary knowledge—to oppose even that small measure of branch banking.'"

Contribution of $10,000.

Mr. Barry called attention to a letter written by Senator Gerald P. Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, to the late Senator Thaddeus Caraway (Democrat), of Arkansas. The Nye letter dealt with reports of payments of moneys to Senator James J. Davis (Republican), of Pennsylvania, who was said to have failed to report a campaign contribution of $10,000. The Pennsylvanian and Senator James E. Watson (Republican), of Indiana, were said to have purchased stock in a sugar holding company, the Dahlberg Corporation of America, paying for the stock with notes which were later canceled. Senator Nye said that investigation had not shown justification for pursuing the matter.

Another senator, within the last few days, Mr. Barry reminded his senatorial inquisitors, had predicted passage of a measure because "the interests" were behind it, and the gathering of groups of lobbyists who frequently filled the halls of Congress also was a matter of frequent and wide comment.

All in all, Mr. Barry said, "it might be a fair inference that there are some men subject at least to influence, and my inference was based on a general knowledge of conditions surrounding Congress and not on any concrete cases such as that spoken of by Senator Glass.

Suggested Direct Election.

"I employed my inference to dispute a popular impression that Congress is filled with grafters."

Senator Thomas Walsh (Democrat), of Montana, reminded Mr. Barry that he had suggested direct election of Senators, prohibition, woman suffrage, veterans bonus legislation indicated a radical change for the worse in the makeup of the Senate There probably were as many corrupt men in Congress before those things were done as now, Mr. Barry said.

Senator Karl C. Schuyler (Republican), of Colorado, asked Mr. Barry if he believed there were any senators or representatives who have or do sell their votes. He was bound to believe there were in the face of the statements of Senators Glass and Nye and other things, Mr. Barry said Senator Schuyler pressed him for any knowledge that a senator or representative had sold his vote. Mr. Barry said he didn't have definite knowledge and repeated the statement when Senator Borah asked the same question.

Student Gives Information.

His article, he repeated, was aimed at the general belief that Congress is corrupt. That feeling isn't general, Senator Borah said. Well, said Mr. Barry, the idea was taught in schools and colleges right here in the National Capital. He knew young men going to college in New England who have the same idea.

It was this reference to schools that brought about the committee's decision to question Prof. Johnstone. He got the information from William Cheatham, who is a student and also is employed in his office, Mr. Barry said, after having refused to tell the student's name until he had conferred with him.

He agreed to furnish the committee with all correspondence with Frank A. Tichenor, publisher of the New Outlook. Alfred E. Smith is editor of the magazine, but Mr. Barry said his dealings had been with Mr. Tichenor.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

"Keep Your Face Toward the Sun and the Shadows Will Fall Behind."

WHO is the best speller in the Government service? The Federal Diary is setting out to learn the answer and as result herewith announces its forthcoming first annual spelling bee.

The National Press Club has extended use of its facilities for the occasion.

Remember how you used to recite rhymes for spelling difficult words. For instance, they had a rhyme for Pennsylvania and the whole class used to sing out:

"P-E-N-N-S-Y-L-V-A-N-I-A."

And Mississippi was spelled:

"Crooked letter, straight letter, crooked letter, crooked letter, straight letter, crooked letter, crooked letter, straight letter, crooked letter, crooked letter, straight letter."

And we even used to sing the alphabet to the tune of "Yankee-Doodle."

Ah, it all comes back to us. Let's hope it all comes back when the Blue Back Speller is brought into play once more. And if there is any doubt, the final authority, of course, will be Webster's Unabridged Dictionary.

Plans are still in a formative stage. But we know the contest will go over in the same great style that the Federal Diary's first annual grand ball was presented.

THE first three to sign the coupon will be constituted a committee on arrangements for their respective bureaus in the Federal Diary Interdepartmental Spelling Bee. So be prompt.

And before we forget it, there'll be some valuable prizes naturally, and they'll be well worth trying for. The event will be staged late this month, the date to be announced soon. Watch for further details.

Meanwhile, brush the dust off the old speller and, if necessary, stay up late at nights studying the contents.

Who is the best speller? The Federal Diary will answer the morning after the big contest. Remember, you'll have some real competition, but that will only add to the glory of the winner, for the Government service represents workers from every State in the Union. Your home State will be listening in the night of the contest. Again, clip the coupon or send in your own application and address the Federal Diary.

How well can you spell?
We dare you to try—
So sign the nice blank
And see how you rank.

It costs you no dough
To enter this test;
Just write down your name—
It may bring you fame.

Word bees hold no sting
For those wide awake,
But those blue-colored spellers
Trip many good fellers.

So You're Looking For a Spelling Champion in The Federal Diary

OUR EXCLUSIVE STORY.

Yesterday it was learned exclusively by The Federal Diary that the retiring ten Cabinet members will receive medicine balls from President Hoover as farewell gifts. Sixteen balls have been received at the White House. Names of the other recipients have not been learned.

He is homely. He is uninteresting. He is stupid. Who? Your hubby. You praise him? No. Like fun you do! Who are you? An unappreciative wife.

He is handsome. He is interesting. He is clever. Who? Somebody else's husband. You praise him? Yes. Of course you do! Who are you? An unappreciative wife.

Newsy Bits Net Prize To Woulfe, Agriculture

IT gives us great pleasure to nominate and elect Louis V. Woulfe, Agriculture, this week's prize winner. Small in stature, Mr. Woulfe is oversized in energy capacity. He has that friendly smile we like to be greeted with and his handshake reveals the warmth of friendship and sincerity.

Louis V. Woulfe.

Several years ago, Mr. Woulfe entered the office of the Assistant Secretary of Agriculture as a clerk and by dint of conscientious and efficient work, he advanced to a position of high executive responsibility. He has the distinction of serving successively with five Secretaries of Agriculture—David F. Houston, Edwin T. Meredith, Henry C. Wallace, Howard M. Gore and William M. Jardine.

Woodward & Lothrop wins the distinction of redeeming Mr. Woulfe's merchandise order.

It's really easy to win a Federal Diary prize. Try it.

SUNDAY FILMS BILL IN LEGISLATIVE MILL

Would Allow Each Prince Georges Town to Vote on Amusements.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 6.—Bills permitting Sunday movies in Prince Georges County and reducing the interest rates on delinquent county taxes were introduced in the House of Delegates tonight as a Montgomery County bill levying a tax for the Cabin John Park Fire Department was presented.

The Sunday movie bill would allow each town to decide by a referendum whether or not it wanted "amusements, entertainments and games" on Sunday. There is no provision in it for relaxation of the blue laws except in incorporated towns and then only by direct vote of the citizens.

The interest on delinquent taxes in Prince Georges is reduced from 12 per cent per year to 8 per cent by the terms of the bill offered as a part of the county delegation's relief program. It will take effect on taxes coming due after this year. Another bill, to postpone tax sales from the first Monday in March to the first Monday in September is being drafted as another part of this program.

Cabin John Park Taxes.

The bill to raise taxes for the Cabin John Park Fire Department limits the amount of this levy to 10 cents per $100. A smaller amount may be levied if it will raise sufficient funds for the department. The tax will be imposed only in a part of the Seventh and Tenth Election Districts.

The only local bill in the Senate was one introduced by Senator Lonsdale G. Sasscer to postpone signing the Prince Georges County levy for one month. By the present law the county commissioners must decide by the last Monday in March the tax rate they will levy. This year action by the Legislature on tax relief will not be settled by this time, so the commissioners are given time to see what the Legislature does before they fix the tax rate.

A hearing was held tonight between the Prince Georges delegation and representatives of incorporated towns in the county to decide how road rebates should be handled under the proposed gas tax diversion law. No decision was reached, although it was plain that the towns desired to receive the same sum under the new law that they now receive from the county road tax. Another meeting is expected to be held soon to draft a law covering the distribution of gas tax revenues to towns for street maintenance.

Teacher Pensions Menaced

A bill designed to save Maryland $1,000,000 per year by abolition of the school teacher's retirement system was introduced in the Senate tonight by Senator Dudley G. Roe, of Queen Annes County.

Senator Roe's measure provides that teachers now on pension continue to receive their pensions from the money paid in by the State since the system was inaugurated in 1927. Employed teachers who have contributed to the retirement fund would receive back the amount they have paid in, with interest. It is estimated the bill would raise the tax rate in Baltimore, if that city continues its own retirement plan, by 5 cents on $100.

In the House bills calling for repeal of Sunday blue laws in Baltimore and Alleghany Counties were introduced. Another blow at antiquated laws was dealt by a measure calling for abolition of the whipping post as a punishment for wife beating.

10 Are Arrested In Raid at Dump

Quantity of 'Derailed' Rum Also Is Taken in South Washington Drive.

In a raid on the jungle of South Washington, Sheriff R. F. Fields and Arlington County police last night arrested ten colored denizens of the dump and seized a quantity of "derailed" liquor, a potent concoction, said to be comprised of denatured alcohol and various poisons, sweetened with brown sugar.

Charges lodged against those taken into custody in the raid, which Sheriff Fields characterized as "a drive to clean up the dump," included vagrancy, carrying concealed weapons and violation of the prohibition law.

With Sheriff Fields were Deputy Sheriff Harry L. Woodyard and County Policemen Ernest Miller and John R. Burke.

YOUR INCOME TAX

NO. 7.

RETURNS OF HUSBAND AND WIFE.

If husband and wife should each have a net income in excess of $4,000, but neither a net income in excess of $6,500, it is to their interest, in filing separate income-tax returns for the year 1932, to divide the personal exemption of $2,500 between them, as shown by the following illustration, in which the husband claims $2,000 and the wife $500:

Net income, husband	$6,000
Personal exemption	2,000
Taxable, at 4 per cent	4,000
Husband's tax	160
Net income, wife	4,500
Personal exemption	500
Taxable, at 4 per cent	4,000
Wife's tax	160
Total tax, husband and wife	320

The normal tax rate being 4 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income in excess of the personal exemption and other credits and 8 per cent on the balance, any other division of the personal exemption would have subjected part of the husband's or wife's income to the 8 per cent rate.

A husband and wife, aside from dividing the personal exemption, may further decrease the amount of their total taxes by filing separate returns where their joint net income is sufficiently large to be subject to the surtax—that is, in excess of $6,000.

4 Students on Probation After Cheating Escapade

"They played a kid's prank, but acted like men in coming up and confessing," Dr. R. A. Pearson, president of the University of Maryland, declared yesterday afternoon in commenting on the case of four students who broke into a professor's room last week to inspect questions in an examination paper they were about to take.

Despite the demands of the Diamondback, the weekly student paper at the university, for the expulsion of the boys, they will be allowed to remain at the university on probation, Dr. Pearson said.

However, they will be required to repeat the first semester work, to apologize to the professor for what they did, will be denied any participation in athletic and social activities during the scholastic year, will be required to report regularly to the dean of their college and will be required to pay for the damage they did in the professor's room.

This punishment was ordered by the faculty committee on examination procedure, on approval of Dr. Pearson, following an investigation. The committee was encouraged to be lenient because this is the first case of the kind that has been made public at the university.

Rebel Priests Face Swift Punishment

Mustapha Kemal Declares Religion No Shield for Uprising.

Istanbul, Turkey, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—President Mustapha Kemal indicated tonight that priests and others involved in Sunday's uprising in the holy city of Broussa will be punished quickly.

The episode developed when a mosque muezzin, or crier, called the faithful to prayer in Turkish, as the president had ordered, instead of in Arabic.

"Those who attempted to use religion to disturb the nation's tranquillity will certainly not escape the talons of justice," President Kemal said.

Why ACACIA Premiums are LOW

Acacia Continues to Progress and Its Policyholders to Profit

WITHOUT borrowing any money or selling any securities, Acacia paid from current cash income every claim presented during the year, on the day it was received in proper form. In addition, customary new investments were made, its assets increasing $4,143,645.76 during the year—almost 10%.

Acacia's assets at the close of 1932 were 45% greater than at the close of 1929, and its surplus was increased by 37% during these three years.

DIVIDENDS CONTINUE AT SAME RATE

Notwithstanding the fact that Acacia's premium rates are much lower than those of any other mutual old line company, lower than many stock companies, Acacia more than earned its dividend over all expenses and therefore can say definitely for 1933 that its dividends will not be reduced, thereby maintaining its record for real low cost insurance. This is the result that comes from careful selection of its policyholders, and prudent and economical management.

TO CHECKMATE JAPAN.

The committee of nineteen, appointed by the League of Nations to deal with the dispute between Japan and China, has agreed to base its recommendations upon a declaration against recognition of the bogus state of Manchukuo. The committee will recommend that no member of the league should recognize Manchukuo and that all league members refrain from co-operation with that phantom government. The United States and Soviet Russia, it will be suggested, should be asked to join other governments in refusing recognition to Manchukuo.

The nations can bring to naught the attempt of Japan to absorb Manchuria, and it is their duty to do so, in view of Japan's pledge to respect the territorial integrity of China. It is not necessary that war should be employed as an instrument of policy in combatting Japanese treaty violations. By no stretch of reasoning is it incumbent upon any nation to acquiesce in the conquest of Manchuria by entering into relations with the fraudulent state which Japan has erected. They can not countenance Manchukuo without countenancing the violation of treaties guaranteeing the integrity of a nation's territory. If they should condone such a violation no nation could place further reliance upon treaties. The result would be military preparations on a scale never seen before, at a cost that would keep many nations in poverty.

How can Japan maintain the farce of compelling the world to admit Manchukuo into the membership of nations? If the nations stand firm, Japan must abandon the attempt or undertake to make war against every nation that refuses to become a party to the Manchurian conquest.

Every day increases the staggering burden which Japan has assumed. China's opposition stiffens in Jehol, while the people of Japan protest against crushing taxes. The discovery that Japan has antagonized the whole world is beginning to have its effect upon the Japanese people. They are still hoping that their dream of conquest will come true, but the wall of world opposition rises higher in their sight, and they see no increase in the pitiful stock of national resources with which to surmount this wall. Indeed, the task of fighting China alone grows more difficult and costly, and the deeper the Japanese penetrate into Jehol the greater their losses and hazards. If they go much further they will encounter the cavalry of Soviet Russia, which is much more mobile than the mechanized Japanese forces. Air forces find that they are powerless without a complete ground base.

Firm and united refusal to recognize Manchukuo on the part of the nations will bring Japan to terms.

FUEL VS. WATER POWER.

President-elect Roosevelt's plan to develop a gigantic power project in the vicinity of Muscle Shoals calls into question again the relative merits of fuel and water in the generation of electric power. The Department of the Interior has issued a memorandum (prepared before Mr. Roosevelt's project was announced) showing that 67 per cent of the electricity produced for public use in the United States in 1931 came from plants using fuel. The modern tendency is to use coal instead of water in the development of power.

In the last 12 years the amount of power generated from a ton of coal has more than doubled. Efficiency in the use of coal for this purpose was increased 20 per cent during the five years ending in 1931. Constant improvements are made in machinery for the generation of electricity from fuel.

In some localities fuel is being substituted for water power, although hydroelectric plants are not being driven out of operation on a large scale. In 1926 35.5 per cent of all electricity for public use was produced by water power. Five years later that percentage had fallen to 33. It remains to be seen how long hydroelectric power can hold its own, if the development of fuel efficiency should continue.

Private enterprise is able to keep abreast of developments of this kind. It is characteristic of American business that it adopts the most efficient and inexpensive way of doing things. But the Government is handicapped in this respect. Thousands of jobholders, politicians, lobbyists, local interests, etc., prevent changes that would otherwise be made for the sake of economy. For this reason, aside from all other considerations, many citizens are appalled at the prospects of the Government plunging into the power business on a commercial scale. A start has already been made at Hoover dam in the Colorado river. Another project of this kind might commit the Government to a policy that would ultimately result in large losses to taxpayers.

UNSOUND MORTGAGE RELIEF.

A timely warning against radical legislation to relieve the mortgage situation was sounded a few days ago by Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. Too little attention has been given to it. Congressmen and others who are dealing with the subject show too much disposition to do "something" to aid debtors and not enough inclination to survey the whole subject from a comprehensive viewpoint.

The kernel of Mr. Fort's warning is this: "The general situation in the country on legislative change in the terms and conditions of collecting mortgages is a very serious threat to any new lending". Farmers and other property owners are in difficulty because values have fallen and credit is not available to them through the ordinary channels. It has been suggested in many State capitals and in Washington that farm mortgages be arbitrarily scaled down by legislative act, or that a moratorium be declared relieving all mortgagors from payments during this period of adjustment. These measures are aimed to relieve debtors, but, as Mr. Fort points out, they may do more harm than good.

The effect of making debt collections more difficult is still further to dry up the stream of credit. If mortgage holders should be forbidden to collect what is due them, even in cases where there is no excuse for failure of the mortgagor to pay, no more money would be lent. Private capital would be entirely withdrawn from the mortgage field, and debtors would be in a worse situation than they are in today. The greatest hope for lasting relief lies in voluntary adjustments and a freer flow of credit, not in freezing credit tighter.

Most institutions are showing remarkable leniency in cases where debtors are willing to cooperate. The process of adjusting mortgages is going forward with accelerated movement. If any legislative action is found desirable, the most extreme caution is necessary to avoid further credit stringency.

FILIPINOS SEEK TRAP-DOOR.

Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo joins with Senator Manuel Quezon and other Filipino leaders in condemning the independence act without recommending its defeat by the Philippine legislature. The general attitude of the Filipinos seems to be bitter disappointment at the type of act passed by Congress. Yet there is a disposition to accept the measure and experiment with independence at the expense of Uncle Sam.

The chief objection which Senor Quezon raises to the independence act is absurd. The Philippines, he says, are raising 1,200,000 tons of sugar. Under the independence act they are allowed to ship only 850,000 tons duty free to the United States. Five years after the new Filipino government begins to function a graduated duty will be imposed upon sugar being shipped to the United States, the rate increasing every year. Senor Quezon complains bitterly of the injustice of this arrangement, while at the same time advocating immediate independence, which would put up a tariff bar against all sugar and subject the industry to certain ruin. Yet he seems to be unaware of the hopeless inconsistency of his position.

With the fundamental weaknesses of the independence act, the Filipinos seem to be little concerned. Fear for the future when the islands shall be completely on their own responsibility seems to form no part of their objections to the measure. It is becoming clearer every day that they do not expect the United States to relinquish its responsibility for the islands.

This view is confirmed by the following observation in Senor Quezon's address:

> No sensible person will deny that if, at the end of the prescribed period, the finances of the Philippine government or the state of law and order in the islands is made to appear as not propitious, with the withdrawal of American sovereignty from the Philippines, America's responsibility before the world and before the Philippine council would justify the United States in withholding recognition of the promised independence.

Here is a hint of what may be expected to happen. The Filipinos are likely to accept the independence act, while continuing to complain bitterly of its restrictions. If independence should fail and the business of the islands be paralyzed, as is probable, blame will be heaped upon Congress and the United States will be called upon, in the name of humanity, to rehabilitate the Philippines once more. Filipino leaders will disclaim responsibility for the debacle on the ground that the independence act is not what they asked for.

In this way the Filipino agitators for independence may join in the wild experiment without assuming responsibility for its outcome in the eyes of their constituents. Uncle Sam will be the goat. If Congress thinks it has finally disposed of the Philippine issue it is due for a rude awakening.

RUSSIAN SLAVE LABOR.

The conscription of many thousands of peasants and laborers for compulsory service in the lumber camps of Northern Russia comes at a very embarrassing moment for the propagandists who are trying to convince the American people that the Soviet no longer engages in such practices. Every able-bodied man in the northern region is being forced to leave his own work and his home to toil in the timber camps. Soviet lumber available for export has fallen short of the quota fixed by Dictator Stalin. To hasten production an army of peasants is drafted for this work, and no one can refuse to serve without putting his life in jeopardy.

Restrictions upon labor have been steadily augmented in the Soviet during recent months. A few weeks ago an effort was made to "anchor" industrial labor by means of the passport system. Every citizen over 16 years of age must have a passport or face expulsion from the cities. The G. P. U. has been instructed to drive out of the cities all citizens who are not permanent workers, and large numbers are now migrating back to the farm to avoid the dragnet of the secret police.

The Soviet has discovered that its economic system can not be operated without compulsory labor. Millions of people have flocked into the cities from the collectivized farms to avoid intolerable conditions there. Vagrants wander from one city to another in the hope that food and shelter will be available. The result is serious overcrowding and food shortage in the cities, while many agricultural sections can not obtain sufficient labor.

Stalin has decided that the "floating population" must be eliminated from all industrial areas. Human rights, which in civilized countries can not be denied to any citizen in normal times, are completely disregarded in Russia. Laborers are subject to the whims of the dictators. Every individual in the Soviet is a slave to the government and may be forced to labor under militarized conditions. The Soviet grabs the proceeds of all labor, and uses some of the money to spread Communism.

In spite of these conditions, the propagandists in this country are pressing for recognition of the Soviet.

HIGH MOTOR TAXES.

If other forms of property were taxed half as much as the oppressed automobile there would be no deficit problem for State and national legislators to worry over. The American Automobile Association has been compiling statistics to show just what is being piled on motor vehicles, directly and indirectly, and to point a warning that the stage of diminishing returns has been reached. It seems that even this willing modern horse is being ridden too hard when the total revenue exacted annually from motor traffic approaches one-fourth of the value of the vehicles.

Last year the registered motor vehicles in the United States, numbering 24,276,000, paid a total of State, county and municipal taxes amounting to $1,015,000,000. This was divided between registration and wheel taxes, $355,000,000; gasoline taxes, $515,000,000, and personal property taxes, $145,000,000. In addition the new Federal taxes for six months of 1932 amounted to $84,293,000, making a grand total of $1,099,000,000. This figures out an average total tax per car of $45.28.

In figuring the percentage that the total tax represents in proportion to the value of an automobile the A. A. A. estimates from the total production and cost that the average retail value per car is $728.41. The value of this average unit throughout the average life of seven years is placed at 25.48 per cent of the retail purchase price. This amounts to $185.60. Upon this valuation the annual average tax of $45.28 is readily figured to be 24.4 per cent. Upon the average valuation of a car throughout its theoretical life of seven years it pays a tax of 170.8 per cent.

With regard to registered motor vehicles it is shown that the 1930 total of 26,545,281 declined to 24,276,000 last year. The depression undoubtedly was largely responsible for this, but the A. A. A. feels that a 20 per cent increase in the average tax of automobiles had something to do with it.

Max Litvinoff, Soviet delegate to the arms conference, suggests that an aggressor be defined as any state that attacks or invades another. That's fine, but what about attacking and invading in self-defense, as Japan claims to be doing?

Editor Al Smith, did you print that article in malice, or do you claim an editor's privilege of blaming it upon the typesetter?

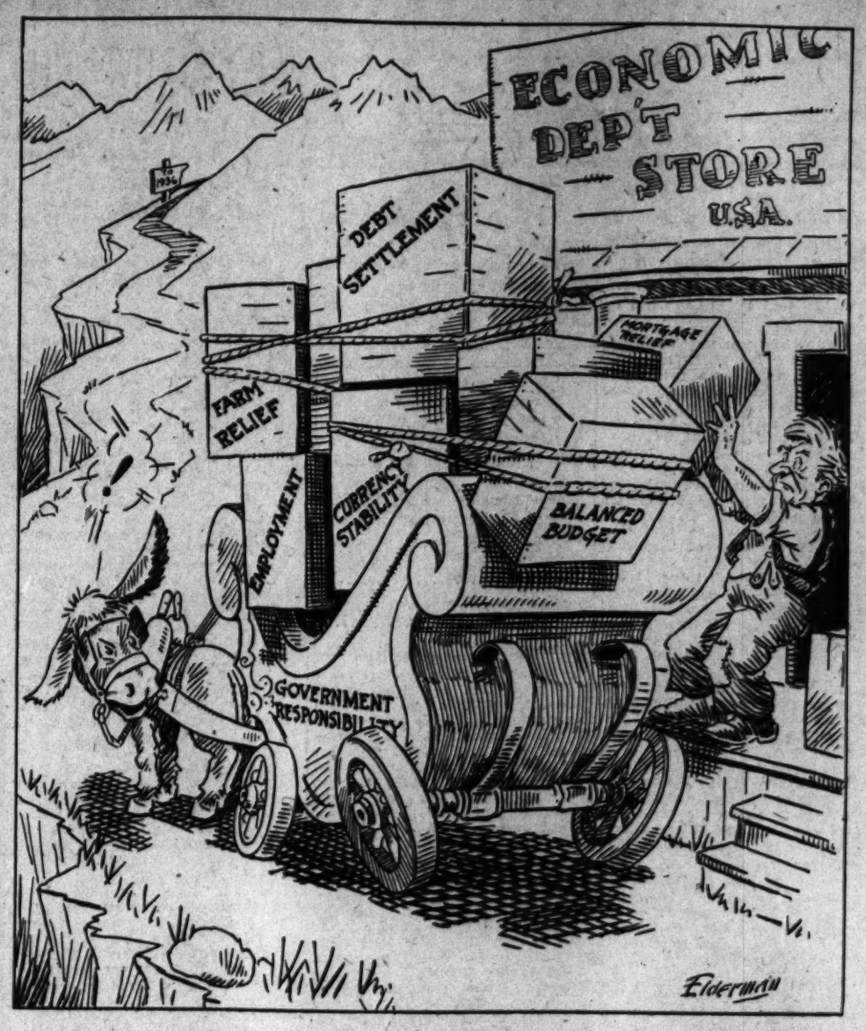
FORTUNATE CALIFORNIA

From the New York Times.

California, like Kipling's sailor, is of "infinite resources and capacity." When her climate fails her, and her boosters sink up to their ears in the depression, and her coffers are empty, and even Hollywood loses its tinsel of vitality and high salaries, she is fortunately still able to appeal to her rich uncle at Washington. It was not so long ago that he decided, at the insistent request of her two favorite sons, to "improve navigation on the Colorado"—which the Lord never intended to be a navigable stream—by building a dam in Black Canyon to cost $165,000,000 of Federal money. Imperial Valley would be protected from floods, Los Angeles would have more light and power, and the parched throats of those who dwell in the cities of the South would be comfortably moistened.

When Eastern taxpayers objected that this looked a good deal like a dole for California, they were solemnly assured that the enterprise was to be entirely self-supporting—the more alluring word "self-liquidating" having not yet come into common use. Sale of electric current would more than reimburse the Federal Government for its expenditure. Besides, the interested California cities were to be partners in the enterprise. They would not only contract for part of the current but put up the money for an aqueduct and a transmission line. But after the crash the $220,000,000 which the engineers estimated it would cost to build the 239-mile aqueduct no longer seemed the mere bagatelle it had looked like in the confident '20s. So Los Angeles undertook to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation the $40,000,000 needed to finance the work for two years. The money came so easily that it then put in a bid for the loan of a further $22,800,000 for the 271-mile transmission line.

In approving this application the R. F. C. is careful to note that the loan "will make possible an expenditure of $21,500,000 for materials and labor outside of California." Very likely, but all for California's benefit.



About to Start.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE PROPHET.

I met a gloomy prophet, all a-tremble and a-flutter.
His eyes saw only tragedy; his voice could only mutter:
"The race is doomed beyond a doubt
And all the joys we bragged about
Must join with History's Down and Out."

He read me figures by the page, to prove beyond denying
That all our boasted heritage is either dead or dying.
"Men, money and machines," said he,
Have wrecked the world on land and sea,
And they mean the doom of you and me."

But I remembered all the old wise heads at times would ponder
And see all splendor in the past and only gloom off yonder.
Old Samuel Johnson in his beer
Dropped many a sad and salty tear,
So sure was he that man's end was near.

And I recalled three years ago the prophets wise were yelling:
"Keep buying! Things are going up! Don't ever think of selling."
If when the sages all were glad,
Their judgment proved to be so bad,
Would you trust them now just because they're sad?

Many a Problem Goes Unsolved Because the Right Method Looks Too Simple

By ROBERT QUILLEN

TECHNOCRACY is not the only way to save the country.

There is another method, unfailing and simple, that would solve all of our economic and social problems promptly and finally.

The two methods have nothing in common, but their way is blocked by the same obstacle. And if the obstacle could be removed, thus giving the technocrats an opportunity to prove their worth, technocracy itself wouldn't be needed.

Assume, if you will, that technocracy could be stripped of its big words and made to mean something. Assume that it could, if given the opportunity, solve the problems of mankind.

That isn't enough. There are two tests that a theory must stand. First, will it work. And, second, can it get a chance to work. The power in lightning is useless until men find a way to harness it.

How can America harness technocracy and submit the Nation to the control and guidance of the technicians?

By amending the Constitution? By means of a revolution? One or the other would be required.

It takes emotion to achieve a revolution. Can you imagine frenzied citizens fighting in the streets to make technicians masters of America?

Who has the enthusiasm, the patience and the millions necessary to support the long campaign required to amend the Constitution?

It can't be done. Whatever the merit of technocracy, the people won't give it a chance. Their unwillingness to try it is the insurmountable obstacle.

What, then, is the other method, unfailing and simple, that can't work because the people won't try it?

It is a way of life, taught and exemplified some 1900 years ago by Jesus of Nazareth.

Briefly, it consists in complete unselfishness, service, loving one's neighbor as one's self, doing good, caring nothing for wealth, doing to others as you would have them do to you.

This plan would solve all problems in a day. But it can't work because the people won't try it, and they won't try it because each one hopes eventually to find a more gainful method.

POLITICAL COMMENT

A Governor's Hard Job.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Both Ohio and Indiana are facing identical situations of "emergency revenue" legislation. Both Gov. White and Gov. McNutt and their respective Legislatures were elected on pledges of economy and budget adjustment.

Both governors in their addresses to the assemblies have told the lawmaking bodies that governmental expenses must be reduced, yet both have reluctantly admitted that something must be done to meet emergencies. This, of course, means new taxes, or further cuts in budgets. Necessity for poor relief animates the situation in Ohio. Indiana by all estimates will find a deficit of at least $3,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year in September.

Mr. Hoover Warns Again.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

For the third time since he submitted his budget to Congress for the next fiscal year, President Hoover has warned the House that it is steadily increasing the inevitable deficit. Increases over his revised recommendations now total $163,000,000. The House still has time to pare down most of the expenditures advised by its committees, but it is not likely to do so at Mr. Hoover's bidding.

Eight Headaches to a Senator.

Kansas City Times.

There may be critics who will object to the Government's buying 800 aspirin tablets at 85 cents a hundred for the Senate last year. But for once we range ourselves on the side of the Senate and against its critics. That would be only eight tablets a year for each senator. We insist that if being a senator causes only eight headaches a year, both the country and the Senate are lucky.

The Same Result.

Indianapolis News.

Another thing that has been demonstrated is that a car going 60 miles an hour will hit a concrete abutment just as hard this year as it did last.

Domestic Allotment Plan.

Christian Science Monitor.

America is hearing much about the domestic allotment plan for agriculture and is destined to hear more during the next two or three months. The House of Representatives' farm bill recently passed was an adaptation of the plan, if not a manhandling of it. The Senate committee which has received the bill hopes, it is reported, to restore it somewhat to the lines of the original project. President-elect Roosevelt is generally assumed to be in sympathy with it.

More Extravagance.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The National House of Representatives passed an appropriation bill providing $966,838,000 for expenditures for war veterans, an increase of $18,000,000 over the veterans' appropriation for the current year. So doing, it completely ignored the ultimatum of the American people last fall for a reduction in the expenses of Government. Reflecting even less credit on the House than the vote itself is the fact that the amount was voted without debate.

Other appropriation items, inconsequential in comparison, were debated in the interests of economy. Not so the most gigantic sum of them all. It concerned war veterans, thousands of whom are wholly without so much as a semblance of a just claim, and so it was passed without question. No one rose to protest. Not a member stood forth to offer an amendment reducing the sum. The spectacle of such subservience to a special group at the expense of a deficit-burdened Nation is a disgrace to representative government.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Effort to Keep Up Wages Is Destroyed When Congress Cuts Pay of Federal Employes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It has been said that economy, like charity, should begin at home. The writer would suggest to the senators and representatives that they should practice a little economy in the Capitol and vicinity before they attempt to "press down upon the brow" of the poorly paid Government employes this "thorny" crown of so-called economy—the kind of economy that will turn out thousands of Government employes to join the ranks of the 11,000,000 other unemployed, men and women, many of whom are on the brink of starvation. We are of the opinion that there are more and better ways of balancing the budget than by reducing the salaries of Government employes.

Some time ago the President called the big business men of the country together and tried to persuade them not to reduce the pay of their employes and not to lay any of them off. Then soon after this, the heads of the Government and the members of Congress commenced to cut the Government employes' salaries, and they are still keeping up the "good work."

Tariff to Protect America Against Depreciated Currency Imports Would Help to Solve Unemployment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I notice that Representative Snell (Republican) has introduced a bill in the House that provides for a protective tariff on all imports from nations that have gone off the gold standard. This bill should be enacted, for it would result in doing more to solve the unemployment problem than all other plans put together.

Actual Experience With Inflated Currency in the 60's—Bad for Workers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is scarcely possible that our young senators and others who want inflation of our currency, can have had any experience with attending conditions. In 1860 we had gold pieces of $1, $2.50, $3, $5, $10 and $20. Our silver coins were 3, 5, 10, 25 and 50 cents, and some dollars. Our 1-cent pieces were copper and about the size of our present half-dollar.

Then came the Civil War, with its demands for quick response to its needs, and with mounting prices, which always accompany Army requirements, when no supply is at hand, and the Government issued the "greenback," in needed denominations. When one's small change was exhausted, one could piece out with postage, stamps—3-cent stamp was in use, as now. But this was not sufficient, and a fractional paper currency was issued—small bills of 3, 5, 10, 15, 25 and 50 cents, and if one had two or three dollars of this money, he would have a roll of "shinplasters" (the common name for them), larger than his wrist, and seemed to have a lot of money.

In 1863 my father paid $18 for a pair of high boots, for all farmers and mechanics wore such. To pay for them, he delivered 30 bushels of corn and two sacks of potatoes. Women's shoes, marked at $3 (gold price), cost two and one-half times that amount in paper money—$7.50—and carpenters, masons and others got $2 a day, of 12 hours, and a man with a pair of horses got $6 a day and his dinner, but he fed his team himself.

In 1865 I paid 40 cents for a spool of white cotton thread. There seemed to be plenty of money, but it bought less, and prices were higher.

Germany tried inflation recently, and a 20,000-mark bill would buy one-half dozen eggs! Inflation is a trap, and once set, the Nation suffers, as does the individual citizen, and the working class first feel its jaws shut upon their shins, and are the last to be relieved when the tide turns. Watch your step, Mr. Senator, and you, citizen, call on him to defend you against the dire results of an inflated currency.

ARTHUR GIBSON MORSE.

Suggests Protection for Pedestrians in Matter of Cars Turning Corners.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why can not the police give proper protection to pedestrians at crossings on the green light against automobile traffic making turns? Watch a few moments at any prominent corner and see the green light thus set against the pedestrian in the middle of the street.

Why are automobiles permitted to run with one light, and that often the inside one? Why do not the regular police assist at all times the traffic police? They have to know the regulations. A few arrests, if only to put the offender to the inconvenience of loss of time in appearance, would have beneficial effect. The traffic police from time to time should issue advance notices when drives are to be made to enforce regulations made for the benefit of all.

Much interest is being evinced in the musical sketch, "Music Gossip After the Opera," which is to be given tonight at 8:30 o'clock at the Washington Club, 1010 Seventeenth street northwest. Several society hostesses are planning to take groups of dinner guests to the club. Among them are Mrs. Walter Taylor Wheatley, Mrs. Charles Colfax Long and Mrs. Gerrit Miller, jr., who has a guest here from New York.

Among the younger groups to attend is a party of which Miss Mabelita Mead is hostess.

Mention is made in this sketch of several folk who were quite prominent in Washington society in the period which the sketch involves. Among them are Anna de Koven, daughter of former Representative Henry Farwell and wife of Reginald de Koven, noted principally for his gay operetta, "Robin Hood," and his work as first leader of a symphony orchestra of any permanence in Washington. Also Andrew Carnegie and Mrs. Humphrey are discussed in anecdotes.

Mrs. Arthur B. J. Williamson, wife of the master of the Fourth Degree in this juridiction, will head the list of ladies serving as the reception committee for the ladies attending the first ladies' evening of the year to be given by the Washington Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, at the Mayflower Hotel Tuesday evening. Assisting Mrs. Williamson will be Mrs. Thomas J. Trodden, Mrs. Andrew J. Scullen, Mrs. James B. Flynn, Mrs. William H. Murray, Mrs. Michael B. Casey, Mrs. M. J. McAuliffe, Mrs. James A. Sullivan, Mrs. D'Arcy Magee, Mrs. F. J. Hemelt, Mrs. R. B. Fields, Mrs. Francis R. Hillyard, Mrs. George F. Howell, Mrs. Albert J. Sardo, Mrs. William Ross, Mrs. Eugene Baczenas, Mrs. J. Fred Brady, Mrs. George R. Ellis and Miss Diegelman. On the entertainment program for the evening is Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, of Georgetown University, as guest of honor; Mrs. Agnes Whelan McLaughlin, Miss Grace Mary Colliflower, Mrs. Bernard Fitzgerald and Mrs. Thomas A. Cantwell.

The Quentin Roosevelt Unit of the American Women's Legion will hold its annual card party at the Mayflower Hotel on February 17.

A small but appreciative group braved the storm last Saturday afternoon to attend the International Art Forum's fourth musical lecture. Miss Hester Walker Beall talked on "Shakespeare's Life and Works," following it with recitations from several of his plays. She was assisted by Mr. Maurice Jarvis. The musical part of the program was contributed by Miss Margaret Louise O'Brien, who sang Elizabethan songs, accompanied at the piano by Mr. Norman Daly.

Among the newcomers to this series were Senora de Campos-Ortiz, Mrs. George Carter Lafferty, Mrs. J. G. McCrone, Mrs. Philip George Walker, Mrs. George B. Stoteimyer, Miss Margaret A. von Riedel, Mrs. P. J. Grady, Miss Josephine Martell, Mr. Norman Daly, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Brooman, Miss Margaret Fisher, Miss Clarita di Girolamo and Mrs. William Loudon Turner.

SO THIS IS RENO

Letters of a Capital Society Divorcee to Her Mother

Dearest Mother: I have bought a large calendar and scratched off four days. The hotel is thoroughly comfortable, the heat regulation in the rooms perfect, and the service good. Daisy, the chambermaid, is indefatigable in her attentions. The food could be improved upon and is very expensive. I have found some cheaper places to eat when I feel economical. There is a tea-room that serves a 50-cent lunch, and several restaurants where you see cowboys, lumberjacks and Basque sheepherders. These restaurants and the Reno streets are perfectly safe for women alone, even at night. The main street is a brightly lighted promenade and the Truckee River falls over a subterraneally lighted dam, and its banks garlanded with what I thought were Christmas tree lights, but I find they are permanent. The town looks beautiful now in a pocket of snow-covered mountains. Reno is not large enough to run one street car yet some of the shops have a Fifth avenue standard. Nevada is the most desolate country imaginable (not Reno but as you cross the State). The main industries are copper and cattle, and one wonders what the latter find to eat, as the plains are wastelands of dry gray sage. They say there is grass and a little moisture under the bushes. Even Reno is dependent for water on the snows, so they were delighted with the recent snowstorm.

You have never seen such grand warm sunlight. This is noted for being a land of perpetual sun, the day I arrived being the worst day they have had since last March. Five thousand feet above sea-level, the air is a cure for asthma and tuberculosis. Some few people are here for their health, but nearly all for divorces. I copy the following from a Reno pamphlet:

"There were 2,106 actions for divorce or annulment of marriage acted upon this last year, and it cost each one of the applicants an average of $50 for court fees alone. Then the divorce fees vary according to the lawyers, from $150 to $25,000. These people eat and sleep and buy and bring to Reno a revenue of from one to four million dollars. Though the marriages performed here far exceeded the divorces granted (because many of the divorcees remarry immediately, and also because the California law requires an interim of three days between the application for and the issuance of a license) this business did not produce the revenue that the divorce business did. It only costs $2 for a marriage license and the usual fee for a wedding is $5." There is a 24-hour divorce law in Nevada, the point of the six weeks being to become a citizen of the State. (It used to be six months and then three.) You have to swear in the court that you intend to live in Nevada all the rest of your life! The State has a population of something like 37,000 and in spite of its aridity I hear it is the richest State per capita in the country. Don't you think I have learned quite a lot in three days?

One wonders what Gen. Reno, of Civil War fame, would think if he returned now and found his name synonomous with divorce.

Stocks Take Higher Ground Under Leadership of Rails

Wheat and Dividend Data Aid Rise; Sales Total 664,621 Shares.

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Stocks managed to wiggle upward in today's late trading, thanks chiefly to a stronger wheat market and to expectations, later realized, that General Motors would vote a regular dividend.

During the morning and early afternoon the list settled sluggishly, but rails were fairly steady and at no time did offerings show any inclination to increase. Extreme declines were fractions to about a point; in many instances these were eventually converted into net gains of similar extent.

Utilities looked rather wan and failed to become particularly enthused over the late rally. Gold mining shares succumbed to profit-taking temptations, but many members of the industrial rank and file nosed out some improvement on the day. Wheat's spurt, based on weather news, and better hog prices, provided bright spots in an otherwise colorless financial day. Bonds worked lower, led by United States Governments.

Rails firmed cautiously when the market finally decided to advance. On recent declines, carrier stocks have kept a fairly comfortable distance from the autumn lows and their resistance has been favorably interpreted by chart followers. Colder weather should mean larger coal loadings. It was the decrease in this traffic that accounted for much of the falling off in total freight shipments week before last. Lackawanna, New York Central, Santa Fe, Union Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio finished with modest gains; Delaware & Hudson and Chesapeake & Ohio eased a little.

American Telephone made further excursions under par, going almost to 98, but halved its extreme loss of a point.

North American, Pacific, Gas and Public Service of New Jersey likewise edged off, but Consolidated Gas of New York, Standard Gas, American Water Works were steady to firm by closing time. In industrials, General Motors picked up fractionally as time for its dividend meeting approached, while U. S. Steel issues, American Can, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, National Biscuit, Nash and American Tobacco "B" averaged about half a point higher. The farm implements, Du Pont and Allied Chemical were up 1. Sales totaled only 664,621 shares.

Sterling exchange bounced up some 4 cents to a level that represented virtual return to the quotation of early last October. Strength was attributed to the lifting, at least for the moment, of equalization fund operations, perhaps because British financial authorities sought to check the influx of funds to London resulting from the boom in gold mining shares there.

Industrial news offered little new information for those who are watching for signs of a spring pick up. Steel mill activity apparently is flattening out a bit after its record of some gain in every week of the new year, though automobile production schedules are still going forward. Meanwhile, motor car manufacturers are studying the sales curve, hoping for a good seasonal lift.

Receivership Is Sought For Lexington Power

Charleston, S. C., Feb. 6 (A.P.).—A receivership was sought today for the Lexington Water Power Co., operator of the huge Saluda power project near Columbia.

Louis Mansbach, of New York, instituted proceedings in Federal District Court here, and Judge J. Lyles Glenn ordered a hearing at Columbia February 15, when the company is to show why a receiver should not be named to take possession of the property and operate it under court direction.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Mon.	Sat.
Advances	162	72
Declines	215	223
Unchanged	160	133
Total issues	537	428

Stocks.

Advances in late trading lifted stocks to higher ground. The average gain was one-tenth of a point. Dividend and wheat data aided, and rails led the recovery. Sales totaled 664,621 shares.

Bonds.

Some divisions were cheerful, but the general market sagged four-tenths of a point. The turnover was $9,283,000. Federal issues deserted the cheerful group. Germans showed rallying tendencies.

Curb.

Early losses were recovered. Prices gained in the final rally. Transfers totaled 150,000 shares, the same as last Friday. Utilities were somewhat heavy. Activity continued in gold stocks.

Wheat.

Buying activity sent wheat prices higher. Danger of crop damage from the cold wave aided recovery. Corn and oats followed wheat's advance. May wheat sold at 47⅝ to 47¾ cents.

Cotton.

Renewed buying enabled cotton to stage a small advance. Covering was also a feature. May sold at 6.04, as the general market gained 4 to 6 points. Liverpool reported lower prices under hedging.

BOND MARKET SAGS IN IRREGULAR SALES

Cheerfulness Fails to Halt Loss in Turnover of $9,283,000.

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Some divisions of the bond market took on a more cheerful appearance in the course of today's session, but the list as a whole was markedly irregular. The average price of 60 representative issues receded 0.4 of a point, and turnover amounted to $9,283,000 compared with $9,502,000 on Friday.

U. S. Government issues were not among the groups to show improvement. Some of the Treasury series were forced from 1-16 to 1-8 of a point lower on selling accompanied by rumors that Treasury officials might test the ground for long term financing this month in connection with March 15 maturities. Liberty 3½s and Fourth 4¼s were also heavy.

All through the German list strong rallying tendencies developed after early heaviness. German 5½s and 7s, which bore the brunt of last week's selling coincident with Hitler's accession to the chancellorship, came back 2 and 3 points respectively.

Rails and utilities had no definite trend. In each group certain members rose a point or two rather easily, and an equal number yielded in about the same degree.

Industrial descriptions were not featured either by unusual activity or wide price changes. The rubber and tire group was firmer than last week.

Railway Shares' Strength Becomes Market Feature

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—The ability of the railroad shares to hold up their heads in a drooping market has been a notable aspect of trends in the stock exchange during the past fortnight.

Railroad financing quarters offered a list of developments upon which better feeling may be based.

Drastic economies have been effected, so drastic that despite a shrinkage in gross revenues in December from a year previously of 14 or 15 per cent, preliminary estimates indicate that class 1 roads showed aggregate net operating revenues approximately 50 per cent above December of 1931.

The movement of freight is still well under a year ago, but rail executives hope the last half of 1933 will see the volume definitely above a year previously, for the first time since 1929.

But what has probably tended to buoy railroad hopes more than anything else have been developments looking toward a revision of the transportation act. The reported plan of President-elect Roosevelt to establish a governmental transportation bureau with jurisdiction over all forms of transport, including pipe lines and coastwise shipping, has been viewed with keen interest.

Furthermore, the national transportation committee, which was headed by the late Calvin Coolidge, plans to file its report making recommendations for solution of the carrier problem, later this month. In the meantime, the joint committee of railway and highway users has issued its report, saying that an agreement has been reached by these groups on a number of important points relating to taxation and regulation.

Legislative progress of the McKeown-LaGuardia bankruptcy revision bill to facilitate railroad reorganizations has lent encouragement. Reorganizations, where needed, would be less dreaded if they could be accomplished quickly without protracted and costly receiverships.

Stimulating to speculative sentiment, of course, was the announcement that Leonor F. Loree, through his Delaware & Hudson Co., had purchased a 10 per cent interest in New York Central "for investment."

Santa Fe President Doubts Slash Aid

Efficacy of Passenger Rate Cut as Relief Is Questioned.

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—William B. Storey, president of the Atcheson, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Co., said today he believed a general reduction in passenger fares would not augment travel to the extent of offsetting the reduced revenues.

Commenting on the position of the Santa Fe, Storey said that decreased earnings of subsidiaries, particularly the company's oil properties, and less income from interest and Pullman charges, had lowered "other income" in December to $200,000 from $1,450,000 in the same month of 1931.

He reported that total other income for 1932 amounted to about $2,700,000, compared with $4,400,000, in 1931. The road earned its fixed charges in December, he said.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—The sharp rise in sterling exchange and the consequent decline in gold caused a setback in gold mining issues which were most active on their improvement earlier in the session. Profit taking caused irregular movements in these issues later. The market was quiet otherwise, with British issues being inclined to droop and German bonds registering weakness. The market closed irregular.

Paris—Trading on the bourse was hesitant owing to the lack of encouraging reports from London or New York. Gold mining shares showed firmness and French industrials were resistant. The closing was irregular.

Berlin—The tone of the boerse was more confident and prices closed steady.

Note Delay Sought By Phone Utilities

Unless Maturity Is Extended Default Will Result, President Says.

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—The Associated Telephone Utilities Co. today asked holders of its $3,858,000 6 per cent notes, due April 1, to grant a two-year extension of the maturity. The company would maintain the same interest rate during the extended period.

William J. Wardall, president, said the company "is entirely solvent and is meeting its obligations currently as they fall due." It has funds for the interest on the notes but sees no possibility at present of acquiring the funds with which to pay the principal, he said. Unless the maturity is extended, Wardall asserted, the company will be forced to default on payment of both principal and interest, "which will in all probability mature the outstanding $24,823,400 debentures and result in receivership."

A preliminary statement for the year ended December 31 shows net profit of $17,876, before provision for cumulative dividends of certain subsidiaries in arrears for the period amounting to $28,666. In 1931 the company had net income of $1,479,246, equal to $1.35 a common share.

Rubber Closes Quiet.

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Crude rubber futures closed quiet. March, 2.98 bid; May, 3.03; July, 3.09 bid; September, 3.17 bid. Smoked ribbed spot closed 2.97 nominal.

CURB CLIMBS HIGHER IN CLOSING TRADING

Early Losses Recovered as Sales Reach Total of 150,000 Shares.

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—The curb market dipped a shade in the earlier trading today, but turned about in the closing hour, a number of leading stocks registering gains of a fraction to a point. Transfers totaled 150,000 shares, the same as last Friday.

The utilities continued somewhat heavy, although they rallied enough in the closing upturn to reduce earlier losses to small fractions. American Gas & Electric going slightly above its Saturday closing price. Cities Service was steady. American Superpower, Electric Bond & Share and Niagara-Hudson Power were a shade lower.

Turnover continued fairly active in the gold stocks, but they appeared to lose their zest. Lake Shore Mines yielded more than a point. Teck Hughes and Hollinger lost fractionally.

Aluminum Co. gained more than 1. Parker Rust Proof was firm. Singer and Great Atlantic & Pacific eased slightly. Newmont Mining gained a fraction.

The oils were again steady, Gulf dipped a scant fraction and Standard of Indiana and Humble holding last week's moderate gains.

Cord and Stutz receded fractionally. Deere was steady. Woolworth, Ltd., gained slightly.

Exports of Rayon Break All Records During '32

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Exports of rayon from the United States broke all records last year coincident with a sharp curtailment of imports from foreign countries, says the official publication of Tubize Chatillon Corporation.

Doubling of exports in 1932, together with the drop in imports, provided an export balance of rayon yarn for the first time in the history of the domestic industry. Exports totaled 654,000 pounds, against 313,790 pounds in 1931, while imports were cut to 164,446 pounds from 1,530,311.

Pound Advances In Light Dealings

Bankers Fail to Explain Buoyant Rise; Sells at 3.43½.

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—The British pound sterling advanced buoyantly in light foreign exchange dealings today. London cables were quoted at $3.43½ at the opening, a gain since Saturday of 3½ cents. Later the quotation moved somewhat higher.

Bankers and dealers here were at a loss for an explanation, but Wall street's London advices indicated the Bank of England's sterling equalization fund may have withdrawn temporarily from the market. It had been reported selling sterling in order to keep the quotation steady around the $3.40 level. One explanation was advanced that British governmental authorities desired to put a check on the boom in South African gold mining stocks. With sterling going higher, it would be more difficult to support such a boom.

Trading in foreign exchanges was reported quiet.

WHEAT VALUES RISE ON BUYING ACTIVITY

Damage to Crops Is Seen in Cold Wave; Corn and Oats Gain.

Chicago, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Increasingly active buying hoisted wheat prices almost 2 cents a bushel today.

Frigid temperatures prevailing and a forecast of worse tonight over the entire domestic winter wheat area threatened severe damage, the crop generally beging minus any protecting blanket of snow. A reduction of 2,556,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply total today was larger than expected.

Wheat closed strong at but little below the day's top figures, 1¼ to 1⅝ above Saturday's finish; corn, ¼ to ½ up; oats, ⅜ to ⅝ advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

Sold-Out Lines Reappear.

Extensive reinstatement of sold-out speculative lines was a feature of wheat trading, especially as the day drew to an end. Reports of dust storms in Kansas and Nebraska attracted particular attention, modified somewhat by late advices of a snowfall in western Kansas. Another stimulus to wheat buyers was 4 points jump in British exchange.

Official forecasts were for 5 to 20 below zero in Nebraska tonight. Anxiety as to likelihood of injury to wheat was augmented by reports that the most widespread and intense high barometer conditions this season covered Alaska and the Canadian Northwest, a circumstance interpreted as pointing to prolonged cold. Not only were fears expressed regarding hard winter wheat West and Southwest, but also for other wheat east of the Mississippi, where prospects heretofore have been favorable.

World available exportable supplies of wheat were officially estimated 11,000,000 bushels less than was the case a year ago, with new winter wheat acreage in fifteen countries showing a 5 per cent decrease.

Corn and oats borrowed firmness from wheat.

Provisions were responsive to hog upturns.

COTTON PRICES GAIN ON RENEWED BUYING

May Closes at 6.04 as General Market Rises 4 to 8 Points.

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Cotton had a small rise today on buying and covering. May contracts advanced from 5.85 to 6.07 and closed at 6.04, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 4 to 8 points.

The opening was 9 to 12 points lower in response to easy Liverpool cables and scattered liquidation, influenced by the declines of Saturday.

Initial offerings carried the market off to 5.72 for March and 5.98 for July, making new low ground for the movement. Later prices steadied on trade buying and covering on the strength of the grain market. Quotations worked steadily upward, with March advancing to 5.94 and July to 6.21, or about 10 to 12 points net higher, in the late trading. Closing quotations were 3 to 6 points below the best.

Liverpool Houses Sell.

Houses with Liverpool and continental connections were among the sellers during the early trading, but at no time was there any appreciaole pressure from the South. In addition to trade buying there were indications of investment buying on the early decline, according to local traders.

The New York Cotton Exchange service estimated world's consumption of all kinds for December at approximately 2,242,000 bales compared with 1,931,000 last season and said while world's spinners used 609,000 bales more American for the period August-December this year than last, their consumption of foreign cotton for the same period was 395,000 bales less. Consumption of all growths for this period was 9,900,000 against 9,686,000 last year. Liverpool cables reported a quiet market with prices lower under hedging. Exports today 33,485 making 5,203,261 so far this season. Port receipts 20,081. U. S. port stocks, 4,723,349.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil closed firm today at advances of 5 to 8 points on covering and buying by refiners, promoted by the firmness of cotton and lard and the late rally in grains and stocks.

Sales were 167 contracts, but 158 were in the way of exchanges, mostly from March to more distant positions. Bleachable spot closed 3.50, March, 3.63; May, 3.75; July, 3.86; September, 3.96.

Texas Pipe-Line Rates Ordered Cut on May 1

Austin, Tex., Feb. 6 (A.P.).—The Texas Railroad Commission today ordered pipe line rates reduced effective May 1. Members of the commission estimated the reduction would result in an annual saving of $3,847,797.26 to shippers of oil.

The new schedule was in accordance with the rates proposed by ten major pipe-line companies after the commission had demanded that charges be reduced. Representatives of the pipe line concerns said that under the new rates no company would be able to make a profit of more than 5½ per cent.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—R. G. Dun & Co. reports 660 commercial failures in the United States last week, against 702 in the previous week and 780 a year ago. The reduction in the past week, the agency said, occurred almost entirely in the West and South. In the Eastern section, embracing New England and the Middle Atlantic States, there was a slight increase, while a small decrease appeared on the Pacific Coast.

Engineers Public Service Co., in its preliminary statement for 1932, reports net income of $1,866,503, after all charges, equal to 98 cents a common share, against $4,117,412, or $2.15 a common share in 1931.

The American Department Stores Corporation announced today that more than 75 per cent of the 1,700,000 outstanding first preferred shares of the company had been deposited in response to the company's offer for the purchase of the stock. In addition, the directors authorized the company's officers to accept a substantial amount of stock which was mailed late. Under the plan, each first preferred stockholder is to receive $50 in 6 per cent debenture notes and one share of common stock. By this action, the company eliminated dividend arrears of $15.75 per share on the preferred stock.

Several important dividend meetings are scheduled for the next few days. In addition to the General Motors session late today, directors of Socony-Vacuum Corporation, Eastman Kodak Co. and Union Pacific, among others, are due to take dividend action before the end of the week.

The sugar melt of thirteen American refiners between January 1 and January 14 totaled 95,000 long tons, compared with 140,000 in the same 1932 period. Deliveries amounted to 100,000 long tons, against 125,000 a year ago.

The annual meeting of the American Zinc Institute's membership will be held in New York this spring instead of in St. Louis, which is usually the convention city. In announcing the change, the institute said "it was felt that in the interests of economy, the expense of a large convention should be eliminated for the present years." The meeting date is April 18.

REGULAR DIVIDENDS BY GENERAL MOTORS

All Shares to Draw Usual Quarterly Payments; Surplus Used.

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—General Motors Corporation today voted the regular quarterly dividend payments due at this time to the company's preferred and common shareholders.

To do so, the company had to dip heavily into its surplus, for the company recorded a loss in the fourth quarter of 1932. The draft on surplus, for the full year, amounted to $63,034,738.

However, the company still had $172,780,695 in cash, U. S. Government and other marketable securities at the end of the year, against $205,029,119 at the end of 1931. Net working capital stood at $225,437,194, against $273,915,923 the year before.

Payable March 13.

The quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the common will be paid March 13 to the holders of 43,500,000 shares of outstanding common shares of record February 16. The quarterly payment of $1.25 a share on the 1,875,366 shares of $5 preferred stock will be made on May 1 to stock of record April 10.

The company issued a preliminary earning statement for the year, showing net profit of $164,979 against $96,877,107 in 1931. The 1932 figure was after providing for depreciation of real estate, plant and equipment, a figure that totaled $37,173,647. Despite the lessening of business during the year, there was no change in the company's policy of making liberal charges against operations on account of depreciation.

The 1932 earnings were equivalent to only 9 cents a share earned on the $5 preferred stock. In 1931 the balance available for the common stock, after payment of the full preferred dividend, was equal to 2 cents a common share. These net figures were exclusive of the company's proration of profits or losses of subsidiary or affiliated companies, not consolidated with the central organization, and were after charges and taxes.

Twin City Rapid Transit Co. and subsidiaries had net income of $113,280 in 1932, compared with $395,129 in 1931. Current assets as of December 31 totaled $2,226,411, and current liabilities $836,080, compared with $2,722,584 and $1,009,224, respectively, at the end of 1931.

The Eureka Pipe Line Co. reports for the year ended December 31 net loss of $50,628 after profit and loss debit adjustments of $28,245. In 1931 the company had net income of $205,621, or $4.11 a share on the capital stock.

Southwest Pennsylvania Pipe Lines reported 1932 net profit of $29,273 after all charges, compared with $155,498 in 1931.

Chicago, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Household Finance Corporation and subsidiaries reported $3,645,280 net earnings for the year 1932, compared with 4,154,608 in 1931, equivalent to $4.29 a common stock share after providing $5 a share on the preference stock, against $4.99 in 1931.

The company announced the purchase of the Central Finance Corporation, of Toronto. Household Finance now has 154 offices in 95 cities.

MONTGOMERY BODY STARTS BOND QUIZ

Civic Group Wants Official Explanation of Proposed Issue for Highway.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Montgomery County officials will be asked to explain to the roads committee of the Montgomery County Civic Federation the necessity for the $600,000 proposed bond issue to complete the road program which has been approved by the federation, but for which adequate financing had been forecast. The bond issue has been approved by the county administration, since it was learned that money ordinarily assigned to the county from the gasoline tax for road building will be diverted to bond debt service instead, leaving a deficit of approximately $600,000 in the amount required to complete the road program.

The advisory and executive committees of the federation met last night with committee chairmen at the National Press Club in Washington to discuss materials to be presented at the next meeting, which will be Monday night at Bethesda Elementary School. Richard H. Akers, chairman of the roads, streets and bridges committee, said his committee had not had any intimation of the bond issue and was not ready to report, but would make a detailed study and report for the meeting. Robert E. Bondy, school committee chairman, reported that his committee will report on needs of school construction and the financing of school needs.

Stephen James, chairman, public finance and budget committee, said several subcommittees of his committee will report on possibilities for reduction of tax rate, possible economies in county government and the recommendations made by Gov. Ritchie to the Legislature. H. S. Yohe, member of the executive committee, gave a detailed report on the economy program mapped out by the Nonpartisan Tax Payers League.

Following a lengthy discussion of the possibility of repeal of blue laws for Montgomery County, the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce last night deferred action until later. The resolution presented by S. H. Miller embodied the provisions in the act which permitted Baltimore to throw off the blue laws yoke. Some members favored only partial repeal while others indorsed full repeal.

The chamber reaffirmed its opposition to any rezoning to permit commercial zoning on the Rockville pike between Bethesda and Rockville. A resolution opposing the sales tax for Maryland was referred to a committee. Local merchants feared that such a tax would drive trade to Washington. A motion that county taxes be collected semiannually also was referred to committee after considerable discussion.

The Sligo Park Hills Citizens Association will hold a card party tomorrow night in the parish hall of the Church of the Ascension, Silver Spring, Md. Committee members are Mrs. E. Francis McDevitt, chairman; Mrs. A. T. Coumbe, jr., Mrs. Perry O. Huff, Mrs. Vernon Brewster, Mrs. David Harger, Mrs. Harry Shaw, Mr. Harry Trainor, Mrs. Louis Yost, sr., Mrs. E. K. Nelson, Mrs. William Wight and Mrs. Milford Zimmerman.

A New Yorker at Large

By MARK BARRON.

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—A fast limousine picks you up on Manhattan, drives through the Holland Tunnel and soon sweeps onto the airport at Newark. A giant cabin plane awaits, its two powerful motors warming up in preparation for the quick flight southward.

As you step into the 26-passenger cabin, you are greeted by a slim, pretty young woman wearing a blue uniform. She's your air hostess, and more than likely will be Rita Brady, who has flown more than 100,000 miles.

Air Nurse.

The air hostess is a new type of feminine heroine. It is her duty to watch over the passengers as the plane wings southward at 100 miles an hour and 4,000 feet in the air.

She must be pleasant, calm and alert to handle any emergency that may arise among a group of passengers who are subject not only to the ordinary group of human complaints, but also may at any moment become air-sick, nervous or hysterical. It is a ticklish job more than somewhat.

She must be a very capable, a very strong young woman. And she can't weigh more than 125 pounds including her baggage. Any time she exceeds this weight, she is "grounded" until she reduces.

"Passengers are much calmer now than they used to be," says Miss Brady.

"You still run up against some funny ones, however. A few weeks ago a passenger bought a ticket at Miami, and just as he started to leave he asked the pilot not to fly higher than 500 feet at any time.

"It seems that he had heart trouble and his doctor told him that he must stay at a low altitude. Of course, we didn't carry him.

"Another time we came out of Newark and hit some rather bumpy weather. As the plane dropped into these air pockets, I noticed one man who wasn't feeling so good. Later we came into smoother weather and the bumping stopped. The man exclaimed, 'Gee, I'm glad we're out of those mountains, and in a smooth road again.'"

She admits that in her 100,000 miles of flying she has never been afraid, although she has weathered a number of bad storms in the air. Once her plane was caught in a 97-miles-an-hour wind, and couldn't land. It was very rough up there, indeed, but she never had one fear of landing safely when the wind subsided.

Trembles Ahead.

She seems to be a woman without nerves, but there is one thing that will make her tremble, that will make her heart jump in her throat as it never did in any of her air adventures. And that is when she makes her debut as an actress and has to face that hard-boiled first night Broadway audience.

About The Showshops

With NELSON B. BELL

IN case you have wondered a little about the symbolism of the feature picture currently on view at Loew's Fox, it may be of interest that Harry Lachman, who made it, had a very difficult fifteen minutes or so convincing his producers that he had even the vaguest notion of what picture-making is all about.

"Face in the Sky," stripped of its fanciful treatment, is an amazingly simple love story that often becomes as unreal as "Jack and the Beanstalk" or "Alice in Wonderland."

So you should know something about Master Lachman.

Lachman is a La Salle, Ill., boy who made good in the cities of Europe before he achieved any considerable fame in his native America. That was as an artist on canvas. He exhibited 55 paintings both in this country and on the other side, only to quit palette and easel to avoid being lionized beyond anyone's power to endure.

"People used to buy my dinner and tell me what a great artist I was," says Mr. Lachman, "but they didn't buy many of my pictures."

So in 1925 he became photographer, secretary and set-dresser for Rex Ingram, whose "Four Horsemen" and "Scaramouche" are probably his best-remembered American productions, who then was producing films in Italy. He codirected with Ingram and later, in France, directed four pictures for Paramount. He also made several in England.

Lachman's wife is Quon Ti, a Chinese opera singer whom he met in Paris. Quon Ti, however, was born in Pasadena, Calif.

All of which did not at all deter the producers of "Face in the Sky" from raising a mild hullabaloo when Mr. Lachman began bringing billboards to life and having them sing reassuring roundelays into the ears of Marian Nixon, trying to search Spencer Tracy, the sign painter, out of the rocky gorges of midtown New York.

"Billboards don't do that," said the producers to Mr. Lachman.

"My billboards do," said Mr. Lachman to the producers.

And because he was so adamant about it the scenes stayed in—as you can plainly see by a little first-hand research along F street.

With the passing of "the road" and the theater's consequent rabid attack of the doldrums—and I still wouldn't know a good, first-class doldrum if it walked up and smacked me right on the nose—an impression has become largely prevalent that no actors are left who carry on the noble traditions of their calling. Don't you believe it! Bend an ear to this for perpetuating a family tradition:

Luther Adler, who appears with Katharine Cornell in Sidney Howard's new play, "Alien Corn," opening in the Maryland Theater, Baltimore, on February 13, is the son of Jacob P. Adler, the famous Jewish tragedian. At present there are at least 17 members of the Adler family in active service on the stage.

All but born on the stage, his mother, Sarah Adler, having left her theater only a few minutes before his arrival, Luther made his debut at the age of 4 years with the noted Yiddish actor, Mogulesco, in Goldfaden's Hebrew classic, "Schmendrick." Since then he constantly has been before the public.

His first performance in English was with a road company in "Sonia," in which, at the age of 17, he acted a czar and an old ambassador. Thereafter he has alternated between the Yiddish and English-speaking stages. He was with Laurette Taylor in "Humoresque" and with Margaret Anglin in "Iphigenia."

Luther Adler's first leading role on Broadway was in John Howard Lawson's "Success Story," this winter. Guthrie McClintic saw him in this and engaged him for the poetic young professor in "Alien Corn," which McClintic is staging for Miss Cornell.

To get a little nearer home, Francis Moran, who studied in the Georgetown Preparatory School and is a graduate of Georgetown University, is also a member of the cast of "Alien Corn." Moran played a minor role with Miss Cornell in her recent production of "Lucrece." The only other member of that cast to be seen in the Sidney Howard play is Charles Waldron. Waldron was in "A Bill of Divorcement," in which Miss Cornell made her first deep impression on Broadway, and was the acidulous paterfamilias in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

The Mills Brothers and the Three X Sisters already having given the Capital a rough idea of what can be done in the matter of imitating musical instruments with the human voice, it has remained for Harry Foster Welch, the one-man band headlining the new floor show at the Club Michel this week, to do an entire orchestra one instrument at a time. Without artificial or mechanical aid of any kind, Harry is able to do 14 different instruments with his voice. I believe he does use his hands as a first aid to sound box building, but that is all.

Also among the new faces at Club Michel are Varkas and Wale, dancers; Lynn Dore, crooner of ingratiating melodies; Charlie Wright, the Club Michel Trio and others who are introduced by Marty Rubin, a master of ceremonies who has "caught on" with Michel patrons so emphatically that he has become a fixture it would be difficult to get along without.

Yesterday afternoon while some of the rest of us were still dawdling around with the interior decorators, Mr. Edward De S. Melcher, our afternoon contemporary, was decorating the interior of a group of New York Herald Tribuners and others of the metropolitan cognoscenti at an informal rout in his apartment up Dupont Circle way—which we are pleased to interpret as just one more proof, making 100 in all, that there ain't no justice! Mr. Lucius Beebe, I believe, was honor guest.

And if you think Mr. Thomas Matthew Cahill, the actor who turned honest and became a real estate editor, and I feel at home in all this spick-and-spanness left behind by the gentlemanly paper-hangers, you are one to believe that a mud turtle would enjoy a safety deposit box! Covering up all our pretty dirt—and all those swell phone numbers—is something like sweeping all the cobwebs out of Shoomaker's would have been!

Sidney Franklin, the Brooklyn matador, recently in Washington as a part of the preliminary ballyhoo for Eddie Cantor's "The Kid from Spain," in which he is currently supporting the button-eyed star at the Palace, was guest of honor at an AMPA luncheon in New York last Thursday, at which time he was called upon to make a few passing remarks upon the agile art of bull-fighting. Mr. Franklin was the personal guest of the president of the club.

The AMPA's president, of all things, is named Horne!

By NELSON B. BELL.

It was a prolonged and vociferous welcome back to the theater of the living from the celluoid canneries of Hollywood that Miss Tallulah Bankhead received from a large and representative audience last evening in this thinly fabricated fable of febrile love among the sophisticates.

Large baskets of fresh-cut blossoms were trundled over the footlights at the end of the third, and final, act, by way of punctuating what added up to something like eight or nine curtain calls, and may be taken as the tangible evidences of an auspicious and thoroughly enjoyed premiere of a play which, in its infancy, still falls a bit short of its full potentialities.

"Forsaking All Others" is a vocal and discursive comedy in which the authors have slighted the trivial matters of motivation, character exposition and a complete clarity of purpose to the manufacture of dialogue that is sometimes gay, sometimes almost too pungent, but seldom, if ever, downright stupid. Passages which last evening seemed either a trifle gusty or not quite so brisk as they might be, will take on a new quality of interest when the movement of the three acts has been more swiftly paced than was the case last evening upon what was, I believe, only the play's fourth performance. For a piece so new, it progressed with remarkable smoothness and only occasionally lapsed sufficiently to rob it of best effect.

As the title so eloquently forecasts, "Forsaking All Others" concerns itself with what are still jocularly referred to as the sacred bonds of matrimony and centers itself upon certain derelictions of an ostensible bridegroom which suggest "There Was I, Waiting at the Church" as an appropriate and illuminating theme song.

The play opens the day before the seemingly probable wedding of Mary Clay and Dillon Todd. Mr. Todd, however, between a late hour at night and an early hour in the morning, manages somehow to get himself more or less securely married to one Constance Barnes, a flaming ember from passion's consuming furnace to whose warm wooing we are led to believe many conjugal conflagrations may be attributed.

Miss Clay, by some miracle, finds it possible to condone her purported bridegroom's inopportune, if minor, defection and, after a convenient Mexican melting of the impetuous ties from the man of her heart and his sudden siren, is about to repeat her error when comparatively unforeseen events intervene to dissuade her from her charitable but misguided purpose and deposit her in the arms of a tried friend and true lover.

In its major imports, the gay little charade is agreeable, if not wholly comprehensible until almost too late. The first scene of the first act is pretty badly scattered, but the second, in which the bridegroom sends word virtually to the altar that he is sorry, but he forgot and married another girl, is crisp, pointed, a little blasphemous and decidedly amusing—the best scene in the play.

Subsequent developments occur in Charlie's speakeasy, for no very apparent reason, and in Mary's house in New York, not always, as has been said, with entirely clear intention. The fall of the final curtain, however, finds things sufficiently clarified to render earlier doubts of what it has all been about relatively unimportant.

Miss Bankhead's assumption of the role of Mary reveals her as a colorful, resourceful and charming young actress who plays with surety, poise and unerring good taste. Rather more of a blonde than the cinema would have us believe, animated and as competent as an emotional actress as comedienne, hers was consistently last night's dominant performance.

This would be a matter of small remark were the supporting cast composed of artists less proficient than Cora Witherspoon, Ilka Chase, Mary Duncan, Nancy Ryan, Fred Keating, Donald MacDonald, Anderson Lawler and Douglas Gilmore. Miss Witherspoon's is the most completely defined of all the characters, next to the star's. It is played with engaging frankness and spontaneity. Miss Chase's delightfully swackled maid of honor also is performed with disarming candor, but Miss Duncan's predatory Connie Barnes is a conspicuously underdeveloped figure in the action, which, of course, is the authors' not Miss Duncan's fault.

Among the males, Fred Keating alone stands upon Miss Bankhead's elevated ground, head and shoulders above his associates—a handsome leading man, both captivating and convincing in his ease, glibness and humor. This, again is at least in part the authors' fault, since they saw fit to write most of the smart dialogue into his part. Mr. Lawler's work in films would seem to entitle him to more than the minor role he has drawn here. For the character of Lennie Gross, played quietly and well by Neil Waterman, it is difficult to find any excuse. He wanders in and out for no reason at all, which must be very discouraging. Douglas Gilmore, as the renegade Todd, labors under the usual handicap of one delegated to be an unconscionable cad.

Altogether a generally bright, breezy and enjoyable study of the sinister and everlasting menaces of matrimony which, although in need of considerable carpentering—as what new plays are not, barring the "Design for Livings"?—prompts the belief that if the studios had ever fitted her talents half as nicely, Tallulah Bankhead would still be in the films and one of their most popular personalities.

SCHOOL BUDGET RISE IN COUNTY DEFENDED

Stewart and Kemp Point to Increase in Burden on Teachers.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST. Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Defending the increase as shown in the budget for the schools for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1933, Chairman of the School Board John M. Stewart and County Superintendent Fletcher Kemp yesterday issued the following statement:

"The total budget for the operation of the schools for the year ending June 30, 1933, amounted to $244,278.

"The proposed budget for the operation of schools for the year ending June 30, 1934, amounts to $254,848, which is an increase of $10,570 over the present budget. The major portion of this increase is provided for additional teachers for next session, and costs of operation incident to the anticipated increased enrollment. This estimated increase in enrollment is based upon the increase of enrollment of the present session as compared with that of the former session, and the fact that the present average teaching load is in excess of 35 pupils.

"The budget ending June 30, 1933, provided for $87,626 for debt service.

"The budget for the year ending June 30, 1934, provides for $180,740, which is an increase of $93,114. Of this amount, $60,000 is provided for an anticipated deficit to June 30, 1933, as against a deficit of $85,000 on June 30, 1932, which was not provided in the budget of that year. The remaining $33,114 was set up as a curtailment on outstanding literary bonds and loans."

Included in the loans for which the school board desires to set up a definite method of payment is a $50,000 note made in 1926 and which carries interest at 6 per cent, a much higher rate than would be demanded now for a like loan. Among other items included are $22,000 for past due bonds and $8,000 for past due literary fund bonds.

In further defense of the school board's budget, it was declared that the lack of employment has greatly increased the enrollments in the advanced grades. Many students who otherwise would have stopped school for employment are remaining in school and others who had stopped and are now without employment have returned to their studies.

Plans for the county's approach to the Arlington Memorial Bridge by way of the extension of Wilson boulevard are rapidly nearing completion, County Manager Roy S. Braden said yesterday.

It is hoped, he stated, that rights of way will have been obtained and work well under way by early summer.

Pursuant to the ruling of Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas that the operation of slot machines is a violation of the State law, Sheriff Howard B. Fields stated a campaign is on to remove all such machines in Arlington County.

The Arlington County Bar Association met yesterday and failed to receive a report from the special committee, headed by Emery N. Hosmer, appointed to make a study of county government, with a view to making recommendations for a reduction in taxes.

Mr. Hosmer said conferences with members of the county board have been held and it is hoped that a report will be forthcoming at the March meeting.

The Arlington County Kiwanis Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow at Windsor Arms, on Glebe road.

GAYETY

"BUY AMERICAN GIRLS." Empire Burlesque attraction, featuring Marion Morgan, Nora Murray, Joe (Hey-Hey) Yule, Sam Raynor and Jimmie Dugan. Jerri McCauley and Gladys Clark, guest stars. Reviewed Monday night by William L. Wright.

Continuing the high standard of his recent attractions, Maestro Jimmie Lake again rings the bell with a fast-moving show, featuring an imposing array of stars and stars to be. One of the kind that end all too soon.

The headliner of the long list of favorite players is pretty Marion Morgan, who hails from Chicago. At her first appearance, Miss Morgan scored a bullseye and later repeated her success again and again.

Held over by popular request, Jerri McCauley and Gladys Clark appear to advantage in brand-new numbers. Jerri's surprise finale brought forth a burst of thunderous applause.

Other charmers that can't be overlooked are Nora Murray, who contributes several nice vocal selections, and Joy St. Clair, a favorite of Washington audiences.

The beautiful "Ben Hur" and "Windmill" scenes must be seen to be appreciated. These stage settings, far more elaborate than the average, emphasize a new standard for burlesque in this city. Manager Lake is to be congratulated.

To keep the show well balanced, excellent comedy is on the bill. This serves to intrdouce Joe (Hey-Hey) Yule, a new face in the ranks of the funmakers. With the support of Sam Raynor, Sid Gold and Jimmie Dugan, Joe kept the laughs rolling across the footlights to the last curtain.

William H. Wood Dies in Alexandria

Washington Navy Yard Employe Was Fire Engineer in Virginia City.

William H. Wood, 75 years old, died suddenly yesterday at his home, 106 South St. Asaph street, Alexandria. For many years he was chief engineer of the Columbia Engine Company No. 4, of the Alexandria Fire Department, and at the time of his death was employed as a machinist at the Washington Navy Yard. He was a member of Alexandria Tent No. 10, Maccabees.

Surviving are these children: Mrs. Stuart Jones, Mrs. E. W. Markell, Mrs. William L. Lyons, William H. Wood, jr., and Harry Wood, all of Alexandria, and Mrs. W. L. Whiting and Mrs. Lindsey Birth, of Washington.

Funeral services will be conducted at the residence at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, by the Rev. William B. McIlwaine, jr., pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, and interment will be in Union Cemetery.

Kidnapers Release Woman on Coast

Music Dean's Wife Returns Home Weeping; Tells of Being Bound.

Los Angeles, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Released by kidnapers who had held her captive since last night, Mrs. Walter F. Skeele, 65, wife of the music dean of the University of Southern California, returned to her home in a hysterical condition at 8 o'clock tonight.

Almost exactly 24 hours after she had been lured away, she came feebly down the wide walk of her home, crying and nearly incoherent. She was met by her husband.

"They bound me and blindfolded me," she sobbed. "I don't know anything more." Authorities said they would wait until she was calm before questioning her as to her experiences. Police said the hue and cry raised over her disappearance evidently had frightened her captors into freeing her.

Brenner Named Policeman.

Robert A. Brenner, 25 years old, of 25 Spring street, has just been appointed a member of the Alexandria police force, to fill an existing vacancy, and will be sworn in today.

REPAIRING TO START ON ALEXANDRIA ROAD

Improvement of Highway to Capital to Be Paid For by Oil Tax.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU. 907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va. Phone Alexandria 523.

The work of improving the highway between Alexandria and Washington, or that part of it lying between the Potomac Yard bridge and Four Mile Run, within the city limits of Alexandria, known as the River Road, will be started next week, according to City Manager Wallace Lawrence. The work will start at Four Mile Run, and progress southward to Hume avenue, approximately three-quarters of a mile. The balance of the work will be done later as funds are available.

The funds for this work will be supplied by the State out of the gasoline tax, under the decision of the last Legislature that certain amounts from this fund are to be applied to the improvement of State highways lying within the corporate limits of cities and towns. The amount already appropriated by the State for this purpose is $13,600, and this amount is carried in the Alexandria budget for 1933. The cost of the work now proposed, it is understood, will be approximately $20,000. The road is badly in need of repairs, the recent snows having caused considerable damage. The total length of the stretch of road to be ultimately reconstructed is 7,400 feet.

The roadway is to be 28 feet wide, including a 5-foot concrete shoulder on each side, the center portion to be of bituminous macadam. The city manager will arrange for traffic to be detoured while work is in progress.

The city council, shortly before its reorganization, appropriated $45,000 for the reconstruction of this entire stretch of road, but the new council, which took office September 1 last, at its first meeting, reversed the action of the old body, and only appropriated funds for a portion of the work after assurance had been received that the State would supply the money.

The improvement work will be done under the supervision of the city engineer, and only Alexandria labor will be employed, in accordance with a recent resolution of the city council.

TWO POLICEMEN ARE WOUNDED BY COUNTERFEITING SUSPECT

northwest was the signal for a series of occurrences which brought to the scene every available emergency unit of the Police and Fire Departments and sent Policemen Arthur Gernhofer and H. L. Lay, of the Third Precinct, to Emergency Hospital.

A United States park policeman, Private W. K. Snider, walked into the restaurant shortly before 8 p. m. He stepped up to Robert Moorehead, 21-year-old manager, and told him to watch the actions of a man standing outside.

As Snider's jurisdiction takes in only parks and parkways, he left the warning and went to place his suspicions in the hands of a District policeman on whose beat the restaurant is located.

The man, who police say is DuMont, entered and offered Moorehead a $10 bill and asked for change. The manager, suspicious, took the bill and said he would have to go for change.

Moorehead said he then left and went to the corner of Eighteenth street and Columbia road northwest, for a policeman.

He returned and, apologizing for the delay, told the man he believed he could change the bill from money in a safe kept in the rear.

He went into the back, waited for some time, and then saw Lay coming in the front door.

As Lay approached, the man said to be DuMont became nervous and attempted to leave. Moorhead showed the bill to Lay, who in turn arrested the man on suspicoin after hearing the warning given by Policeman Snider.

Man Breaks Away.

Lay marched his prisoner to the patrol box at the corner of Eighteenth street. There the man broke away.

Private Gernhofer, standing on the opposite corner, waiting for Lay, saw DuMont break away and started across the street to his partner's aid. Meanwhile, Lay succeeded in grabbing his prisoner and with Gernhofer's arrivel, the three started a hand-to-hand combat.

The prisoner wrested free, shoved his hand into his coat pocket and the air was split with the report of a pistol.

Lay dropped to the street, shot through the upper part of his right leg. Gernhofer continued to grapple with the man and again a pistol report rang out.

In rapid succesion two more shots were fired, and Gernhofer grabbed his left knee. Knowing he was also shot and unable to stand on his leg, Gernhofer, rather than draw his own gun, reached for his "iron claw," an implement used by police in the form of a single handcuff.

Draws Own Revolver.

The policeman clamped his "claw" on the gunman's right arm, yanked his hand from the coat pocket, seized the gun and threw it into the street. Only then did Gernhofer draw his own revolver and at its point held the prisoner until the arrival of help.

Passersby carried Lay, the most seriously wounded, into the corner drug store, where first aid was given by Dr. R. M. Rosenberg, who happened to pass by. Gernhofer stood with his prisoner until reserves arrived, then went to Emergency Hospital in a taxicab.

The shooting alarm brought all available police reserves to the scene. Some one sounded a fire alarm and screaming engines added to the bedlam.

Lay, transferred to the hospital by the fire rescue squad, was found to have suffered injuries which may cripple him for life. The large bone of his thigh was splintered by the bullet. The slug which struck Gernhofer passed through his left kneecap, inflicting a painful injury.

Several persons told of their narrow escape from the flying shots.

Shortly after midnight a man who said his name was William Hart, of 1801 Calvert street northwest, was arrested by Third Precinct police. He was booked for investigation in connection with the incident. Police said he was in the restaurant when the attempt was made to pass the counterfeit bill.

Secret service agents, who Sunday night arrested Kermit M. Brasher, 23, in a downtown hotel, in connection with a counterfeiting inquiry, were called into the case last night. At an early hour, in company with Metropolitan police, they were conducting an investigation throughout the city with a view toward uncovering a ring, believed for sometime to be operating here.

DuMont told police he came here from New York early yesterday.

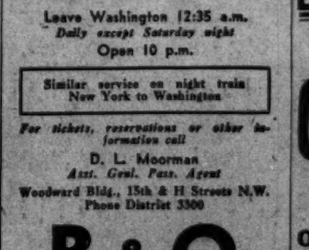
New Service on B&O night train to NEW YORK



Private Section Sleeper for COMFORT PRIVACY

A brand new feature of service on the Baltimore & Ohio night train to New York is the private section sleeper—similar to a regular section except that the beds are slightly recessed to allow standing position while dressing or undressing.

There is a permanent curtain which can be closed by a pull-cord, giving complete privacy of a room. Immediately adjoining there is a private washroom and toilet.

The private sections may be occupied by one or two persons for the price of only two lower berths.

GEORGETOWN FIVE REPULSES WEST VIRGINIA, 48-25

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE football rule book, already bulging with enough sections, amendments, penalties and marginal notes to make the undergraduate mind wonder what it is all about, would be the receptacle for still more half-baked theories if each recommendation were accepted forthwith.

Last week the football public was regaled with the benefits and advantages of a twelfth man on the field to direct the offensive play of the teams and another proposal that would give the team in possession of the ball a fifth down when within 20 yards of either goal on the theory that it would offset the advantage of the defense over the offense.

But these are only two of the absurdities that coaches would insert into the rule books. Whatever the complaints have been against the rules committee in the past, it must be admitted that the committee has not accepted 1 per cent of the theories on rules that have been advanced.

Ideas Ruled by Climates

Varying climatic conditions in different sections of the country have been responsible for many of the different ideas on rules as is testified by the attempt not so long ago of certain coaches in the Rocky Mountain Conference who sought to legislate against the liberal use of the forward pass.

Forward passing in that section was virtually rendered null and void after the first of November, due to the excessive cold which made the handling of the ball something not only downright difficult but extremely hazardous. Consequently when teams of the Rocky Mountain region left their base for warmer climes, they fell easy victims to the opposition with no forward passing attack of their own developed to combat the enemy's passing.

Thus Rocky Mountain coaches sought to restrict the use of passes. Needless to say, their recommendations fell on deaf ears but the situation is a glaring example of what the rules committee has to contend with from different sections of the country.

Dead Ball Rule Popular On Coast

There was the case out in the Pacific Northwest a few years ago when coaches in that region were agitating for a dead ball after fumbles. After the first of October, teams in that section rarely play on a dry field with seasonal rains continuing until after the football campaign. Consequently there is more fumbling per game on Pacific Northwest gridirons than in any other section.

Whenever Washington and Oregon sent their football teams down into sunny California, they were made to look grievously bad by the sure-handling of the ball by the Californians and usually absorbed bad beatings for their pains. Rarely having the opportunity to handle a dry ball, the Northwesterners could attempt none of the fancy tactics that their Southern opponents employed.

The dead ball rule on fumbles was eventually adopted by the rules committee, but not because it was peculiarly helpful to the Northwest elevens. That rule was enacted through the efforts of conservative Eastern coaches who wanted to insure that power would win to preclude the upsets that occurred when an inferior foe grabbed a loose ball and galloped to the winning touchdown.

10 States Seeking Pari-Mutuel Bets

New York, Feb. 6 (U.P.).—Laws permitting pari-mutuel betting will be considered this year by Legislatures of ten States, a United Press survey disclosed tonight.

Lawmakers of some of these and of other States also will deliberate upon measures liberalizing the conduct of boxing, notably in providing for fifteen-round bouts.

While many of the measures were inspired by the revenues they would produce, others reflect demands of the sports public.

States which have pari-mutuel measures before their Assemblies or in the process of formation are Missouri, Washington, Colorado, Ohio, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Texas and California.

BOZEMAN BEATS LAYTON.

Chicago, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—J. N. Bozeman, jr., of Vallejo, Calif., tonight made it one-two for his State in the world three-cushion billiards title tournament, defeating Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., 50 to 34, in 51 innings for second-place honors.

DARGAN WINS AT BILLIARDS

Andy Dargan lost the final block of his billiards match with Sun Lew last night by a score of 57 to 45, but the 45 points ran his total to 300, enough to win the match. Lew represented the Boys Club.

Central Five To Oppose Western

Coggins' Team Needs Victory Today to Assure Title.

Red and White Ready for Fight; Tech to Play Roosevelt.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

THE last games of the 1933 interhigh basket ball series will be played this afternoon at the Tech Gym, where Central meets Western in the first game and Tech tangles with Roosevelt in the second.

Central must win from Western to gain a clear claim to the title. If the little Georgetown quintet pulls a surprise and beats its more favored opponent, a triple tie will exist between Central, Eastern and Tech. The latter, of course, also has to down Roosevelt today to help bring this to pass.

Buoyed up by its recent game with Eastern, which the Lincoln Parkers won only after a stiff overtime battle, Western has high hopes of taking Central into camp. Jimmy Forney, Western's center, may give his team the advantage at the center circle since Central is minus the services of Jack Moulton. Forney, a tall lad, has improved rapidly and is well able to handle his position.

Bryant to See Action At Center

Bill Burke, naturally a forward, tried jumping for Central in its last game, but soon gave way to Bill Bryant, a sub, who, though not as smooth in passing and floorwork as his predecessor, succeeded in getting the jump more often. It is probable that Bryant will see action today.

Among other members of the Western team who have improved several hundred per cent are Jimmy Corcoran, Bernie Bierl and Al McPherson. There is no trace of the stage fright in their play, so noticable at the start of the campaign, and with a little more confidence under their belts, substantiated by determination, the boys may save the fans from an afternoon of complete boredom.

Unless Central loses, Tech's game with Roosevelt will be of little consequence. It is probable that the coaches of both teams will use every man on their respective squads to help them qualify for their letters.

Ruth, 39 Today, Off For Camp Thursday

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth, in the proverbial pink of condition, will celebrate his thirty-ninth birthday racing around New York tomorrow preparing for his annual jaunt to Florida on Thursday.

"I've got a million things to do," he said, "but I'll find time for a small party. I'm going to have a cake."

Ruth, training every day at Artie McGovern's gym, has kept his weight down and his muscles strong all winter. He had planned to drive to Florida, starting Wednesday, but adverse weather reports from points along the way have endangered the trip. He said he'd probably leave by train Thursday morning for St. Petersburg.

Frank Wykoff Wins Newark Sprint Series

Newark, N. J., Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Frank Wykoff, the Southern California speed merchant, who holds the world's record at 100 yards, galloped to victory in the three-event sprint series of the annual Seton Hall College games tonight, winning the 50 and 60 yard dashes and placing second in the 40-yard race.

All of the three dashes ended with blanket finishes, inches separating the leaders.

Edward Siegel, husky New Yorker, trailed the California Express across the line in two starts and won the 40-yard affair, to finish second in points for the series.

Bill Bruder, of the Newark A. C., who swept the series last year, finished third in each of the races.

RUTH SETTLES SUIT.

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Attorneys for W. J. McPherson, St. Petersburg, announced in Federal Court here today that suit against George Herman (Babe) Ruth, New York Yankee baseball slugger, had been settled out of court.

Judge Akerman was asked to dismiss the action. The suit involved purchase of a house in St. Petersburg several years ago.

Birkie Given Win Over Reds Barry; Near-Riot Results

New York, Feb. 6 (U.P.).—A near-riot resulted at St. Nicholas Arena tonight when Hans Birkie, German heavyweight, was given a ten-round decision over Donald (Reds) Barry, of Washington, D. C.

The fans were so displeased that many of them swarmed down to the ringside and were prevented from climbing into the ring by a group of special police, who jumped into the ring before them. The desturbance was finally quieted without injuries.

Newspapermen at the ringside credited Barry with winning at least seven of the rounds because of his aggressiveness and superior boxing.

The seasoned German fighter found it difficult to land a solid blow on the promising youngster from the Capital, meanwhile Barry jarred him repeatedly with short right jolts to the jaw in close fighting.

Barry's excellent defense caused most of Birkie's blows to slip off his elbows or circle his neck. In the eighth round the German boxer's right eye was almost closed and it was oozing blood as that session ended. Birkie tried to rally in the tenth, but they fought on even terms.

Barry weighed 196 pounds; Birkie, 199.

Snooty

Golf Clubs, Hit Hard by Depression, Now Admit Common Folks.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

SOME of the most luxurious golf clubs in the land have been compelled to abandon the Vanderbilt standard owing to the nonpayment of dues and assessments by their members. So now we will see the interesting but not necessarily tragic spectacle of hitherto choosey organizations frankly buttonholing the casual customer who happens along with his quiver of tools wishing to shoot a mess of golf for himself.

This would be an amusing turn of affairs to the late John McEntee Bowman, the hotel magnate, who was the first one to gratify and exploit the social ambition of the prosperous suburbanite after the war.

Sees Demand for Exclusive Club.

Mr. Bowman perceived that many thousands of suddenly prosperous executives and specialists of one kind and another living in new "developments" of the imitation Spanish, imitation English, and imitation Norman farmhouse types wished to belong to exclusive clubs. A large group of citizens were coming on in the world and wished to strut.

Meadowbrook, on Long Island, seemed to be the model. Meadowbrook and Piping Rock. Not very many people had seen Meadowbrook or Piping Rock, but everybody had heard of them, and it just seemed that if one could be tapped for either, one could then look around on all sides and in the social sense not see anywhere but down.

There would be beautiful and very refined girls sipping drinks on the verandahs or slipping into the amethyst pool or cantering up on their favorite chargers or leaning gorgeously all over magnificent roadsters, very gummy and toothy and vivacious. The advertising agencies sensed the same yearning and the illustrations for all manner of commodities, from mops to headache powders, portrayed scenes of great luxury around the clubhouse. The men were debonair devels in golf bloomers or flannel slacks and the girls were of a kind to cause serious unrest just in the pictures.

Outshines Meadowbrook and Piping Rock.

Mr. Bowman realized, of course, that all these people could not make Meadowbrook or Piping Rock, nor any of the hundreds of local Meadowbrooks and Piping Rocks around the country, so he did the next best thing. He organized in the outskirts of New York a club more luxurious, more magnificent than any of the old exclusive clubs, and promoted his membership from a class of people who had new money and wished to snub old friends. It was smart exploitation of the snobbery of a democratic people, and they responded strictly according to Mr. Bowman's plan.

He, more than any other individual, was responsible for the luxurious

Dougan and Burl Clash Tonight

Bantam Punchers to Battle in Portner's Feature Bout.

Davis Meets Cosden; Jacobs to Tackle DeBeve on Card.

LEROY DOUGAN, roaring little bulldog from Arkansas, sporting new trunks, shoes and a robe, will meet the challenge of Eddie Burl, of Jacksonville, Fla., himself a veritable wildcat when thrown into the ring, in an eight-round match at Portner's Arena tonight for the benefit of the Alexandria Day Nursery.

Dougan and Burl are legitimate bantamweights. When they jump on the scales in the dressing room at Portner's, Dougan is expected to weigh 121 pounds and Burl 122.

They are about the same size, just a few inches over 5 feet. Lithelimbed, they are strong-footed, strong-armed and, judging by their past performances here, are unquestionably strong-hearted.

Dougan Risks Record.

Tonight marks Dougan's first main bout at Portner's. In four previous matches he scrapped in a preliminary role, and enters the duel with Burl with an unbeaten mark. The Arkansas bulldog made his debut against Harry Kid Groves, of Baltimore, earning a draw. He whaled the daylight out of Joie Schwartz, of Baltimore, for a decision. Knocked down for a brief count by a wild swinging taxicab driver, Jack Gentile, Dougan arose to win a unanimous decision. His most important triumph—the triumph that carried him into the headline class—was scored at the expense of Izzy Caplan, sensational Baltimore youngster. It was here that Dougan rallied brilliantly after being on the brink of defeat, carving himself a niche in Portner's Hall of Praise.

Burl fought twice at Portner's, each a feature bout. To mention his stirring conquest of Jimmy Mack is only to revive memories of one of the most exciting and slashing fights in local ring history. Burl was not himself against Benny Schwartz, losing the verdict after being unable to cope with the Hebrew battler's provoking left and two-fisted attack.

While Dougan doesn't relish left-handers, he manages to weather the storm of their attack successfully. For example, Schwartz, Gentile and Caplan. Tonight he faces a right-hander for the first time in four fights, and an opportunity to use effectively his left hook will be offered.

Mann Predicts Knockout.

Burl is a good body puncher. In Dougan he faces a boxer who comes in. Matchmaker Frankie Mann has predicted a knockout. He does not think the duel will last over six rounds. Others think Burl is too smart for Dougan. Others think Dougan is too fast for Burl.

George King, the affable aid de camp in Prof. Joe Turner's office, yesterday declined to judge the main fight, since he felt he was the first to introduce Dougan to the public and had taken a personal interest in him. King's decision was made shortly before Matchmaker Mann got word from Burl's manager that he desired a change in judges. Jimmy Erwin, popular Alexandria fight manager, has been secured in King's place, although King will judge the other four bouts. Denny Hughes will be the other judge, Charlie Short, the referee.

Davis to Tackle Cosden.

The supporting bouts, each a six-rounder, savor of being rip-snorters. Roddy Davis, District lightweight pride, mixes with Bob Cosden, of the Eastern Shore in the semiwindup. Stumpy Jacobs, Hopewell lightweight, returns for a shot at Arthur DeBeve, former French champion. Doug Swetnam, Washington featherweight, opposes Buddy Grimes, of Norfolk, and Henry (Popeye) Irving, of the District, clashes with Bob Brennan, Norfolk middleweight.

Tickets may be procured at Rinaldi's. Portner's officials report a brisk advance sale and also bring word that the old brewery will be well heated for the fights. The fireworks begin at 8:30.

BOXING BITS' SELECTIONS—Dougan to beat Burl, Davis to beat Cosden, Jacobs to beat DeBeve, Swetnam to beat Grimes, Brennan to beat Irving.

G. W. Defeats Rider Five, 49 to 20

Hertzler's 15 Points Leads as Trenton Team Trails.

Score at Half 27-7; Defeat Is Second for Invaders.

GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY'S steam roller flattened another opponent last night at the little brick house on H street. Rider College, of Trenton, N. J., was the victim, and the final tabulation of points revealed 49 for the Colonials to 20 for the visitors.

Rider, which came breezing into town with only one defeat on its record, and that the result of an encounter with the Brooklyn Knights of Columbus, epected to meet a tough customer. It had heard of G. W.'s larly of its game with St. John's, but it is doubtful if the orange-clad courtmen expected the treatment they received.

It simply was no contest. Blond-haired Jimmy Howell, who is making university students forget Wick Parrick, recently declared ineligible, led the assault on the cords that produced a 15-3 lead shortly after the opening whistle. This was extended by several points before the half expired, the score reading 27-7.

Hertzler and Burgess Boost Total

Rider found the going just as tough in the second half with Hertzler and Burgess helping Howell boost the score. The visitors simply could not keep up with the pace set by the home team. George Washington kept the leather on the move from tap-off to basket at a pace that completely bewildered the invaders.

Coach Ted O'Leary sent the G. W. Reserves into the fray midway in the final period, and they held their own.

Mickey Reichardt, forward, and Vince O'Hara, substitute guard, were outstanding for the Northern quintet.

Johnson May Land Pilot Berth Today

New York, Feb. 6.—The name of Walter Johnson, former Washington manager, again was heard in connection with the managerial job at Jersey City at a meeting of the International League here today. Sam Colacurcio, owner of the "Skeeters," attended the gathering, but there was no indication as to what action the directors will take with respect to the club, which is said to be in such bad financial straits that the league may take over the franchise. If this action is taken, it is understood that the league will turn over the managerial reins to Johnson. Decision as to this may be made at a meeting called for tomorrow.

The league, beset with many hold-over troubles from last season, today solved some of its problems with the announmement of the sale of the Albany franchise, the adoption of a 168-game schedule, exclusive of the play-offs, and the approval of a player bonus for the team finishing at the top of the heap.

Joe Cambria, of Baltimore, with whom Clark Griffith, of the Nationals, has a working agreement in connection with the Youngstown Central League Club, bought the Albany franchise.

Jim Corbett Remains In Serious Condition

New York, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—James J. Corbett, former world heavyweight boxing champion, remained in a serious condition today, at his suburban home, with a heart ailment which sent him to bed last Tuesday.

Mrs. Hill Medalist In Miami Golf Play

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 6 (A.P.).—Mrs. Opal S. Hill, of Kansas City, added another trophy to her collection today as a round of 41—40—81 gave her medalist honors in the annual La Gorge Club's golf tournament for women.

Miss Bea Gottlieb, of New York, was second, with 43—41—84, while others of the 70 women competing ranged upward to 135 in their qualifying scores. Match play starts tomorrow.

3 Washington Boxers Lose in Baltimore

Special to The Washington Post.

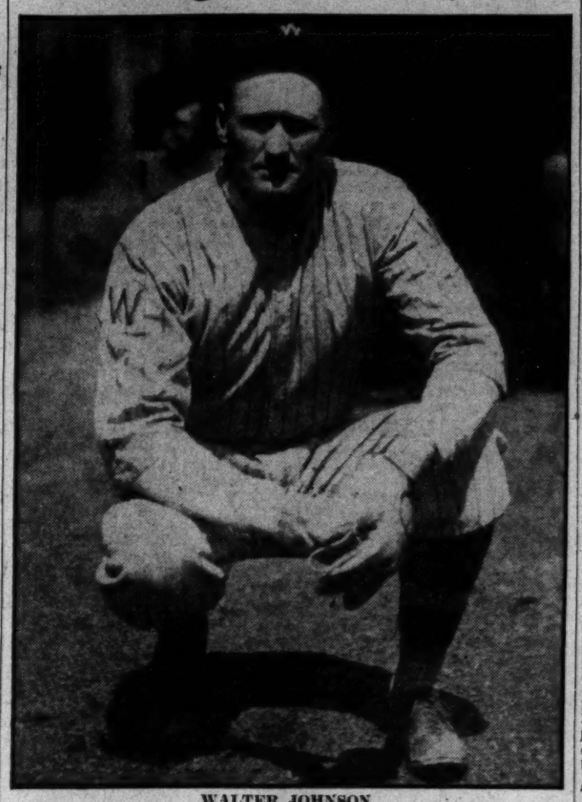
Baltimore, Feb. 6.—Charley Gomer scored a technical knockout over Sailor McKenna, of Washington, in the main bout of the night's boxing card at the 104th Medical Regiment Armory, Referee Charley Baum stopping the match after the third round. Gomer opened a deep cut under the Washingtonian's eye near the close of the second round with a stiff right punch.

Gomer had the better of the fight when the referee halted it. McKenna, a veteran of many ring battles, fought back, but his punches lacked steam.

Charley Thompson knocked out Roma Labona, of Washington, in the fifth round.

Sam Pinazza outpointed Walter Kirkwood, of Portsmouth, Va., in a six-rounder, the victor carrying off every session despite the boos of the crowd when the decision was announced.

Review for Contest Fans Recalls Johnson's No-Hit Feat Against Boston, 1920



WALTER JOHNSON.

Great Stop by Judge Disposed of Hooper, Last Man in 9th.

(Herewith is the tenth of a series of articles in conjunction with The Post's baseball contest.)

By BOB CONSIDINE.

BOSTON, July 2, 1920.

A slim little crowd, all too conscious that they were watching baseball history being made stood up on their chairs and yelled bloody murder. Out in the pitcher's box was Walter Johnson, hot, tired, disheveled. It was the ninth inning of the greatest game of his long career. With tremendous power he had just struck out two Boston pinch-hitters, Karr and Eibel, on eight pitched balls.

One man stood between him and baseball's Hall of Fame.

Up from the Boston dugout emerged a stocky, tobacco-chewing slugger, Harry Hooper, swinging three bats. Johnson mildly regarded him. Sweat popped out on his forehead. He remembered three previous occasions when one hit had marred his perfect pitching. He remembered in particular one cruel instance against Philadelphia, a few years before, when a harmless fly, ostensibly an easy out, fell into the overflow crowd and went for a hit.

Hooper Warns He's Up To Hit.

Now Hooper was at the plate. Johnson reflectively rubbed the ball in his glove. Hooper knocked a bit of mythical clay from his spikes and turned to Val Picinich. "Lissen, guy, tell the old boy he's gotta pitch to me. I'm going to bust it out of the park if I can."

Val took his time about signaling. Here was a moment where mistakes would have been cataclysmic. The din from the stands was terrific. What a tribute! Every man in the park yelling for an out-of-town pitcher to strike out a home-town favorite!

Johnson wound up with that flawless grace which only he possessed. ZIP—too high, ball one. SWISH, Hooper had missed one by a hair. Every man in the stands seemed to know that Hooper would hit the next one. Walter let it go with every last ounce of strength in him. Hooper met the ball right on the nose. At terrific speed it shot down between first and second base. If ever a ball was labeled, "Hit," this was it. Hooper was off like a shot.

And so was Joe Judge. The Washington first baseman dove through the air, stuck a glove in front of one of the most viciously hit balls he ever saw and through some miraculous gift stopped the ball. But he was far off first base. Hooper sped down the lane. And Johnson, running like fury to cover the bag, beat Hooper there and took Judge's peg to cut off the Bostonian by an inch.

Judge threw his glove away and did a war dance. The crowd swarmed

First League Win Scored By Hilltop

Hargaden's 18 Points Lead Way to Easy G. U. Victory.

Score at Half, 30-10; Mountaineer Spurt Falls Short.

By DAVE HERMAN.

FLASHING some of its finest form of the season, with Ed Hargaden, smooth-working center, and Tom Carolan, guard, as the spearheads in its concerted drive, Georgetown University's basket ball team crashed through with its first victory in the Eastern Intercollegiate League last night at Tech High School's gymnasium, swamping a husky West Virginia outfit, 48 to 25, in a game that saw the Hilltoppers dominate throughout the proceedings.

Hargaden, sensation of the 1932 Freshman team, was all over the floor like a flash, pumping in goals from all angles, from all distances, and putting a high polish to his spectacular shooting with a pot shot from practically three-fourths the distance of the court just as the final gun barked.

Hargaden Scores 18 Points

Hargaden pocketed eight field goals and two fouls for a grand total of 18 points, more than twice the number scored by the leading scorer from West Virginia, Sortet. Hargaden was virtually unstoppable in the first half, sifting through the Mountaineers' defense, sinking goals, paving his way for eventual goals by his team mates.

Carolan, who with Hargaden, spread terror in the ranks of the invaders from the opening whistle, rang up 13 points, 6 of which were field goals.

Georgetown's play in the first half was far superior to that of the second. Its passing was swift and baffling in the first 20 minutes; its man-to-man defense worked effectively, and its shooting was the answer to any coach's prayer.

Sweeping into a hurried lead when Crowley deposited one from mid-court, Georgetown tallied eight points in three minutes before West Virginia took time out. After seven minutes had ticked by Sortet plunked in a long shot to give West Virginia its first goal. Then Hargaden got busy and had a run of eight points before Slate shot a goal for West Virginia, making the score 16-4 in favor of Georgetown with eight minutes to go for the half. The Hilltoppers skyrocketed their lead to 26-6, and left for intermission ahead by 30-10.

West Virginia players took a new lease on life in the second half and tossed goals with reckless abandon. Klug's entrance into the game added pep, to the Mountaineers, while Georgetown's defense and offense slowed down considerably as Stydahar, center; Wilson, forward, and Sortet, guard, found their range both from the floor and from the foul line.

West Virginia pulled up to 15-35, and with five minutes to go were up to 35-24. Georgetown came back as Parcells scored a field and two foul goals in rapid succession. Stydahar's foul goal completed West Virginia's scoring. The Hilltoppers finished strong, Connors scoring two quick goals in the few minutes that were left, and Hargaden sinking one of the

No Compromise With Quality

I PASS, AT $37.90, UPSETS DOPE IN HIALEAH FEATURE

Plunkett Colt 1½ Length Victor

Semaphore Is Second With Pardee a Close Third.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 6 (A. P.).—I Pass, 4-year-old son of Thunderer—Two No Trumps, belonging to E. R. Plunkett, gave the wash-day crowd a surprise here today when he sped home in advance of five others in the St. Augustine Purse at odds at $37.90 for $2. The colt beat the Greentree Stable's Semaphore by a length and a half in a drive, while Pardee, showing improved form, was a half length out of the place position. The time for the mile was 1:38 4-5.

Charlie Corbett rode a perfect race on the winner. He kept his mount in second position under wraps while Pardee whirled along on top with a daylight advantage in the stretch. Then Corbett asked I Pass for his best and the colt bounded into the lead. Semaphore, the favorite, staged a strong closing rush on the outside but could not menace the winner. Big Beau was pocketed on the inside in the last furlong and lost the show by a length.

Bannach Lath Finally Scores.

The Anali Stable's Bannach Lath finally graduated from the maiden ranks when she showed the way to eleven other nonwinners in the 7-furlong curtain raiser. Favorite at $4.50 for $2, Bannach Lath outlasted the Greentree Stable's Uppercut to score by a neck. Miss Axenstein was six lengths away in the show hole. Our Moment led the pack until rounding out of the back stretch where Bannach Lath and Uppercut took command to stage a duel all the way to the judges.

Fort Boxers Beat Groves A. C. Team

Fort Humphreys boxers pounded out a 5-2 victory over the Groves A. C. leather pushers in a match at Fort Humphreys last night. George Solomon's knockout of Dan Hardester in the second round of their bout featured the match.

170 pounds, Solomon defeated Hardester, knockout; 147 pounds, Julius defeated Johnson; 142 pounds, Wirkowsky defeated Smith; 126 pounds, McGuire drew with Green; 135 pounds, Loury defeated Repbitt; 145 pounds, Lis drew with Lenox.

Hitting the Headpin

Whip Litchfield, who won the Howard Campbell Sweepstakes Saturday night, missed his tenth 400 set of the year by five pins bowling for the Colonial Ice Cream Team against the King's Palace in the National Capital League at Lucky Strike. The Colonials won the match, rolling 1,902, their third 1,900 set of the season. Eddie Espey finished with a triple-header strike for a 391 set.

Temple rolled 636, 618, 586 for an 1,840 set to win all three from Rendezvous in a District League match on the latter's alleys. Ed Blakeney's 160 and 402 furnished the high scores.

Dave Crockett smashed the season's record with a 166 game in the Typothetae League at Lucky Strike. Harry Hight's 382 set was best. Craftsmen toppled a 592 game, while Barton-Duer & Koch had a 1,683 set.

Frank Bartlett topped the Odd Fellows in bowling at Convention Hall with a 130 game and 340 set. Friendship's 535 and 1,562 won prizes.

La Billes, with 580 and 1,631, led the Sanico loop at Convention Hall. Tom Bradford's 145 and 400, the latter a new mark for the season, bagged the individual prizes.

Cohn's 142 and Jacob's 365 were high in the Merchants League at Convention Hall. National Shirts had a 540 game and 1,543 set.

Charley Bernhardt led the District Government loop at Arcadia with a 148 game and 373 set. Fire Department had 584 and 1,692 to lead in team scoring.

Frederick's 159 and Hargett's 396 were outstanding in the Men's Federal League at Arcadia. Patent Office had a 628 game and 1,694 set.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

Polar Brush swept home at a $14.80 mutuel and Bill Bennings can still boast that he hasn't been shutout any day since the meeting opened. My other horses did a little bit of everything but didn't hit the win column. That nine-way field bet in the baby race today pulled a load of play. Nobody had confidence in any particular animal, but everyone seemed confident that one of the group would win. Full Tilt finally, turned the trick and the boys were disappointed when the totalisator showed him only a fraction over even money. I Pass didn't pass in the fourth, but stayed to win at better than 17-1.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—CHU CHU remains the sleeper in this sprint at the weights. This one has been groomed for a fling at the big dough and should pay a fat mutuel three ways. IRENE'S BOB ran a brilliant race last week and will be the one to beat. JUDGE SCHILLING has a certain amount of class that will land him in the pay.

SECOND RACE—GOFORTH has shown enough to warrant a top position in this baby test. SHILLY SHALLY and HAIR TRIGGER look best of the others. The upset may come out of the first-time starters.

THIRD RACE—GENERAL A. seems best suited in this sprint. Has shown a world of speed since being turned loose here. WISE COUNT, aided by a 13-pound shift in the weights, bids to give the top fellow some trouble. ROBINSON CRUSOE to take the show.

FOURTH RACE—ALGERIA has won twice here and packs enough foot to take care of this field. THE PELICAN is speedy but fades too quickly after 5½ furlongs to suit my purposes. IDLE STEFAN is ever dangerous.

FIFTH RACE—CABEZO seems to have the edge in this mile. Comes to the race with excellent works. HIBALA appears ready to make a contest of it all the way. CLEAN PLAY is one that I'm expecting to wake up with a bang—soon if not tomorrow.

SIXTH RACE—SOLACE, I don't believe, will pass up the opportunity offered here for a purse. Gets the edge over CAMP BOSS which scratched today with this race in mind. HAPPY PLAY is coming along with his knitting and will step down any day now.

SEVENTH RACE—GARLIC, NEWGRO and IMPEACH will battle it out for this and I like them in the order named. IMPEACH may do the surprising. Garlic's last was a beaut and he may pick up again in the stretch.

AMERICAN U. FIVE HOST TO ELON

Only College Game Here Tonight; Trio Listed Tomorrow.

ELON COLLEGE'S basket ball team, which was annihilated Saturday night at the hands of George Washington tries its hand at another local foe tonight when it meets American University, at A. U., beginning at 8:15 o'clock. It is the only collegiate contest on the books for tonight.

Tomorrow night marks the local swan song of the Catholic University iron-legged, iron-man team. The Cardinal combination of Sheary and Augusterfer, forwards; Gearty, center, and White and Rosenfield, guards, runs up against Wake Forest, a perpetually good Southern team, at C. U.

Georgetown, Maryland Hosts Tomorrow

Georgetown tomorrow night meets an ancient foe in Mount St. Mary's, at Tech, and Maryland plays an equally venerable competitor in Washington College, at Ritchie Coliseum.

Thursday night G. W.'s revamped squad sees what it can do about the Wake Forest situation and Maryland takes on Virginia, at the respective local gymnasiums. Friday is a barren spot on the week's card, but Saturday night's program is made up of six events, bringing all the local schools in action.

American rules a favorite to trim Elon tonight. From a competitive sense, it will be a better game than the G. W.-Elon fray.

JOHNSON'S NO-HIT GAME IS RECALLED

down on the field. Walter Johnson had carved himself another niche among the baseball immortals. Walter wired his 5-year-old son and told him the game was a birthday present to him.

If there was any mar on the day's proceedings it was the seventh inning, when Bucky Harris booted an easy grounder of Hooper's and the latter was safe. But he was forced a moment later when Mike Menoskey, former Washingtonian, rolled to Harris.

Hank Shanks' Bat Prominent.

Hank Shanks was the hero of the Washington stick attack, with three bingles out of four trips. Bobby Roth, clean-up man for Washington, scored the winning run on one of Shanks' hits. Shanks, showing his utter versatility, played third base that day. Only five Boston players hit balls out of the infield. Johnson struck out ten.

The game took too much out of Johnson. His arm became swollen and the no-hit endeavor virtually finished his season. His percentage table for that year showed 8 wins and 10 losses, the fewest games he had appeared in since 1907.

Joe Judge and Sam Rice had great years in 1920. Joe batted .333, the highest mark of his entire major league career, and Sam whaled the ball for .338. Throughout most of the season Bucky Harris, Clyde Milan, Hank Shanks and Frank Ellerbe batted .300 or more, but Washington finished on top of the second division. Cleveland won the pennant and went on to beat Brooklyn in five out of seven games, with Stan Coveleski winning three of them.

Sore Arm Stops Johnson; Zachary Signed.

To take the place of the ailing Johnson, Clark Griffith, serving his last year as manager of the team, secured a long, gangling fellow who had been pitching for Philadelphia off and on under the name of Zach Walton. The name was an

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

SEVERAL manufacturers have placed inexpensive antenna kits on the market, designed to eliminate and greatly reduce the interference caused by electrical devices in the same or in adjacent buildings.

"These outfits consist essentially of a short antenna wire to be suspended in the clear as far above the roof as practicable with a small transformer connected to the antenna and from the transformer shielded lead-in conductors to the broadcast receiver," according to Commissioner Harold A. Lafount. "In some cases a filter in the power line supply is also desirable. This type of antenna should give reasonably clear reception from nearby stations to many listeners now troubled with local electrical noises caused by local electrical machinery.

"There is no provision in the radio law or any other Federal statute for the control or elimination of interference due to electrical devices. Some cities have local ordinances designed to control man-made interference, but locating the sources of such interference is a tedious, difficult and expensive matter."

MARIA KURENKO, who was heard in one of the first of the Five Star Theater's Tuesday night operatic concerts over WJSV, will sing once again for the same audience tonight, beginning at 10 o'clock. The program follows:

Overture, "Masaniello" (Aubert), orchestra; Jewel Song, from "Faust" (Gounod) and Lullaby (Gretchaninoff), Maria Kurenko; Gypsy Dance, from ballet music, "Henry VIII" (Saint-Saens), orchestra; Serenade Francaise (Leoncavallo), Princessa Triste (Maduro) and Czardas, from "Die Fledermaus" (Strauss), Maria Kurenko; Scheherazade (Rimsky-Korsakoff), orchestra.

Ed Wynn will return to the Times Square studio, from which the stage comedian launched his radio career a little less than a year ago, for his regular weekly broadcast over WRC at 9:30 o'clock tonight.

"THE technocratic secretary is the latest thing in modern office buildings," said Orestes H. Caldwell, president of the New York Electrical Society.

"Such a secretary is never late in the morning, never takes time out for lunch and never pouts when the boss has sixteen letters to dictate after 5 o'clock. Electronic tubes, loud-speakers and a central service bureau form the key to this modern business miracle, which has already been applied in several cities.

"If the Smith Co.'s office is left alone for an hour and some one enters, a sweet voice from a loud-speaker in the wall immediately confronts the startled caller. 'Mr. Smith will be back in fifteen minutes. Please tell me your name. Oh, yes, Mr. Jones. Mr. Smith left those papers there on the table for you to read while waiting. And just press that red button if you want to call me again.'

"On Mr. Smith's own desk is another row of buttons. He presses the one marked Stenographer and dictates. A few seconds later his letter is read back to him, and is then written and mailed without further bother. Other buttons summon messengers, typists, &c. Telephone calls are supervised and answered in the absence of the tenant."

Irvin S. Cobb will again join Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit before the microphone at 8 o'clock tonight over WRC. Angelito Loya will again contribute two solos, sung in Spanish—"La Violetera" and "Mujer." Frank will sing "I Like Mountain Music."

"I am a great admirer of Miss Sanderson and Frank Crumit, but the minute any one in our house hears that musical laugh some one turns the dial," a listener writes apropos our criticism of forced laughter over the radio. "I hope you have sent them your article, as they surely bear down on laughing at each other's puns. Their act has lost it's kick."

MARGUERITE CROMWELL, soprano, will sing "Do You Mean What You Said Last Night?" "I'll Follow You" and "With a Song in My Heart," during the Wilkins Quarter Hour (WRC, 7:30 o'clock) tonight. She will be accompanied by Rudolph Schramm's Orchestra.

Howard Claney, who announces the Lucky Strike Hour, has devised a system of hieroglyphics that is strongly reminiscent of Benjamin Franklin's first system of shorthand. In explaining it, he pointed out that it has helped him considerably in announcing.

The system itself, Claney declares, is extremely simple, comprising a number of symbols such as "x's," "o's," brackets, parentheses and vertical, horizontal and diagonal lines which, scattered throughout the continuity, aid in its delivery.

"My system," Claney explained, "is not original with me but is the outgrowth of a practice several announcers have of drawing a vertical pencil line at the end of a sentence or other point where they mean to pause. I added other symbols slowly as the need became apparent. When certain words or phrases in my script required special attention, they received a special symbol."

At present Claney has over twenty symbols that he uses constantly on the Magic Carpet and numerous other programs that he announces.

"I CAN NOT understand why the N. B. C. should spoil a good symphony concert by permitting a few minutes of local advertising at the opening," writes Louis Smith, of 2025 I street northwest, referring to the spot announcement over WRC. "This advertising can not possibly get any results, as it irritates the listener who has lost the opening announcement and also a valued part of the music."

Mervyn Leroy, motion picture director, will speak on the California Melodies program at 9:30 o'clock over WRC.

WHEN Jerome Kern, composer of "Show Boat" and more than 30 hit shows in the past two decades, arrived in the studio the other night to take part in the dramatization of his own career for the "Inside Story" series, almost every musician in the building rushed to peek through the doors at one of America's finest masters of melody. . . . Kern, wearing a floppy brown hat three sizes too big, and a voluminous rainbow-tinted Paisley tie, looked like a bespectacled gnome from the Black Forest, or an old-fashioned German professor about to give a music lesson . . . with intense blue eyes, crisp silvery hair and a hawk-like face that's a bit severe in repose. Kern lounged about the studio during rehearsal, wincing like a true composer whenever the orchestra had to play a passage or modulation different from the way he had originally written it.

New Salvation Army Official Is Welcomed

A luncheon welcoming Staff Capt. W Herbert Bartlett as new divisional secretary of the Salvation Army, was held yesterday at the Evangeline Hotel. Maj. James Asher, commanding the District division, presided.

Capt. Bartlett succeeds Adjt. Charles Dodd, who after serving here for three years, left to accept a post at Charleston, S. C. Capt. Bartlett was formerly a second lieutenant in the United States Army Air Corps. He served during the World War and has been engaged in work for the Salvation Army for eighteen years.

Bob White
The Old Philosopher
SAYS:

Question: My father is a prominent attorney in ———, and wants me to follow in his footsteps. I am at the university working for my A.B., but haven't the slightest inclination toward the bar. I highly respect my father, and hate to offend him, but how can I go through with a thing that I positively loathe?

Answer—You can not. It would be more unfair to your father than it would be to yourself. It would be doing something for him in a half-hearted way that would lend no credit to the family name, and may lend discredit. Fathers, however, are like this. And so are sons. It is perfectly natural for a father to want his son to carry the flag forward, to follow in his steps, as it were. To let fall the mantle of Elijah upon one whom he considers worthy. It is perfectly natural for a son to choose a profession, usually opposite that of his father; maybe for the only reason of long association within the family circle. And this is as it should be. Rarely do we find a son great enough to follow his father; the son, however, finding his own greatness in another sphere of activity. When a son reaches the age of discussing his life's work, he is old enough to make his own decisions and to attempt to alter these is playing with fire. The natural bent in a man is toward successful achievement . . . in any line he may choose. To force upon a son a trade or profession which by natural aptitude he is wholly unfitted for is placing the cross of crucifixion upon him, and starting him off with a handicap that is likely to mar his whole life. As fathers, we may only advise, take into counsel, hope . . . and leave the rest to fate or fortune.

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL, at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

Dickens' Novels to Be Discussed.

The Business and Professional Women's Club of the All Souls' Unitarian Church will discuss women of Dickens' novels at a meeting at Pierce Hall, Sixteenth and Harvard streets northwest, at 8 o'clock tonight. Several members will present character sketches.

GOSH, THIS IS A WONDERFUL DANCING SALON! I CAN HARDLY BELIEVE I'M ON A BOAT!!
GOODNESS, I WONDER WHO THAT HANDSOME CHAP IS, OVER THERE? I HAVEN'T NOTICED HIM ON BOARD BEFORE!!
I WONDER WHY HE ISN'T DANCING! I'VE BEEN STANDING HERE TWENTY MINUTES, AND HE HASN'T GIVEN ME OR ANYONE ELSE A TUMBLE YET!!
DID YOU SEE THAT BIG, HANDSOME BRUTE WHO STOOD ON THE SIDE LINES WHILE EVERYONE ELSE DANCED?
THEN I GUESS I'M NOT THE ONLY ONE! HE DIDN'T ASK ME TO DANCE, EITHER!!
EVERYONE ELSE? HE DIDN'T ASK ME TO DANCE!
WELL, THERE'S ONE CONSOLATION ANYWAY —
--WE'RE ALL IN THE SAME BOAT!!!

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

THE notes in the musical epitaph shown above read, by the sol-fa system, as follows: La re la sol la me la. In French this phonetically evolves to: La rale. la sole l'a mis la. This French statement, translated into English, is: Ray, sole put nim there. In other words, he ate too much ray and sole; hence his death.

• • • •

Too old to change his own habits, but wanting his sons to lead lawful lives, Moha Ou Hammau, Morocco outlaw chief, sent his fourteen sons to the French camp to surrender and ally with the French rule.

The French commander accepted the allegiance of the famous outlaw's sons, and suggested that the father, too, accept the French rule. To this suggestion Moha Ou Hammou replied that it was too late in his life to change. He continued as an outlaw the rest of his life and was killed by French soldiers led by one of his own sons.

The canny old chief foresaw that the tribesmen could not resist the French, and by ordering his sons to surrender he saved them from losing their property, and made sure that one of them would become chief of his tribe.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

LEXICON OF TABLOIDIA.

SOCIETY GIRL—Any girl not known to be factory hand, gypsy or laundress.

Estate—Any bungalow, shack or one-family house situated in the suburbs and pretty well run-down at the heels.

Millionaire—Any crime or scandal victim whose average for clean collars is fair, who doesn't peddle shoelaces and who eats regularly.

Costly Private Yacht—Usually anything from a 26-foot lobster dory to a 35-foot catboat rebuilt for power.

Fashionable Shore Colony—Any shore settlement not exactly bordering on the clam flats.

Beautiful Debutante — Invariably an ugly-looking girl about 36 years old who keeps books at the glue works.

Child Bride — Any middle-aged woman who discovers she has made a mistake and brings suit against a millionaire pretzel king for intolerable cruelty.

Clubman—Any male involved in a scandal of the better sort.

Broadway Butterfly—Some ungainly girl from Cohoes who came to the big city and never attracted any attention until hit by a bottle thrown by an intoxicated stove manufacturer in a night club.

Bluebeard—Any man who was sap enough to marry a second time and who can't state offhand whatever became of the first bride.

Prominent Banker—Any man who has ever had any connection with any institution, however inconspicuous, in which money has been handled. In seven cases out of ten a cashier.

Noted Horsewoman — Any society woman whose ancestral home had a barn in the back yard.

Heir—Any playboy involved in any scandal, any time, anywhere.

Night Club Czar—Usually some pug looka who has a one-fifth interest in a club that is dying on its feet.

Siren—Just a good name for any woman in whose life more than one man has figured.

Prepossessing Widow—This covers any unattractive woman whose husband is dead.

Wall Street Broker—Any crime or scandal victim who is obviously not a street car conductor, oyster opener, cop, barge captain or bologna importer.

Country Showplace — The home that, before he became involved in a scandal, was just a seven-room house with a one-car garage.

Orgy—Any party where somebody opened three bottles of beer, played the phonograph, ate ham on rye sandwiches and giggled near an open window.

Millionaire Importer—As a general rule the man who runs the banana stand down by the depot.

Heart Balm—Any soft money sought by any woman from any man after she decides it was all an awful mistake.

Probe—A term to describe three or four detectives asleep.

A TEMPTING PROSPECT.

Now that Hitler has become kingfish in Germany those ideas of a flight to the moon by rocket are becoming suddenly very popular.

A swimming pool is to be put in the White House for President Roosevelt, and we'll wager that already the movie companies are planning to have some Hollywood bathing beauties there to dedicate it properly.

Hollywood, by the way, is sending a big delegation to attend the Roosevelt inaugural. Is this an indication that Mr. Roosevelt's administration is to be a "talkie?"

Rain Will Accompany Milder Weather Today

Temporary relief from the cold weather was forecast by the Weather Bureau for today, but the rising temperature will be accompanied by rain, according to the prediction.

The temperature will drop tomorrow and the weather will be cloudy, the forecast stated.

Lincoln's Birthday Permits Are Given

Three Organizations to Hold Services at Memorial on Anniversary.

Permits have been issued to the Italian World War Veterans of Washington, the District of Columbia Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, and to the Colored Boy Scouts of Washington to hold memorial services at the Lincoln Memorial on Lincoln's birthday, February 12.

The Italian World War Veterans will have as their guests members of the organization from Philadelphia and New York and have invited members of the Italian Embassy staff to participate in the ceremony which is scheduled for 11:30 a. m.

The District of Columbia Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion will lay a wreath at the memorial at 3:30 p. m. L. C. Crawford is chairman of the memorial committee. E. L. Mattice will head the delegation of the Colored Boy Scouts who will pay homage to the memory of the emancipator at 4 p. m.

Belmont Rezoning Action Is Delayed

One of Three Cases Put Off Indefinitely; 14 Others Come Up Today.

Although the District Zoning Commission spent the entire afternoon in executive session yesterday, action on 14 of the 17 petitions for rezoning heard last Wednesday was postponed until today and in the other three cases indefinitely.

Among the three was the application of Perry Belmont, New York and Washington financier and clubman, to rezone his mansion at Eighteenth street and New Hampshire avenue in order to convert it into a half dozen de luxe apartments.

Action likewise was deferred on the petition of the Chevy Chase Land Co. to rezone certain property on Connecticut avenue between Albemarle and Davenport streets and that of parties interested in establishing a funeral home on Wisconsin avenue between Jenifer street nad Military road.

FUN AND FRIVOLITY RULE BAL BOHEME IN GALA PROGRAM

Pageant Series of Colorful Episodes; Dancing Lasts Into Early Hours.

With the grand ballroom of the Willard Hotel decorated with inflation in the way of balloons and repression in the way of detective sergeants in lavender smocks and berets as the scene of their gaiety, a myriad of mummers danced out the measures of the Bal Boheme last night.

With consideration of the "Castles in Air" motif to rule the selection of their costumes, the throng attending ran down the scale of history from Archimedes to Zoroaster and of mythology from Bacchante to 5-cent beer.

It was like a masque ball. The old familiar faces were there: Will Shakespeare, the Three Musketeers, the Four Marx Brothers, Catherines, Garbos, Sadie Thompsons, languorous ladies and languorous gentlemen. A careful scrutiny revealed no one as Gandhi, a fire alarm box or a lame duck.

Awards Are Made.

It was with difficulty that the judges were able to determine the most effective costumes. To Lester Shafer and Marian Chace was given the award for the most original dress. Senorita Rebecca Alfaro's Latin-American costume was judged the most beautiful. Honorable mention in the most beautiful class went to Miss Lois Balcom and Lenore Romney.

Dancing had begun when the formal portion of the program broke into resounding applause as the brilliant pageant began. There was a parade of effective costumes, of mirage and rainbow in keeping with the motif of the occasion.

From the pageant evolved a series of dance entertainment, eyed with appreciation by the many prominent parties which filled the boxes lining the ballroom. There was a "cloud dance," a "rainbow dance," "the storm," "the bluebird dance," climaxed by the "crowning of the eagle."

Cabaret Entertainment.

During the evening a cabaret entertainment was offered with a program of songs, skits and comedy, effectively staged by both talented professional and amateur performers.

The pageant was inaugurated by the entrance of the men's floor committee which heralded in prosperity. It was said that this year's crowd was not as great as that of previous years.

Into the early hours of the morning the dancing lasted, assuming a new personality from the ordinary—the inspiration of a gay abandonment of the dancers.

Series of Episodes.

The pageant, arranged by Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest and Mrs. Maude Howell Smith, was a series of episodes representing the various cultural arts, music, sculpture, drama, literature, painting and architecture.

Among the boxholders at the ball were: Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mrs. Robert E. Lee, Mrs. Charles Reading Williams, Mrs. J. C. Wailes, Mrs. R. M. Kauffmann, Miss Mary B. Adams, Mrs. Frank Anderson, Mrs. S. T. Cushing, Mrs. Randolph Keith Forest, Mrs. Fay, Mrs. William M. Hannay, Mrs. Christian Heurich, Mrs. R. D. La Garde, Mrs. Fulton Lewis, sr., Mrs. H. Hobart MacCubbin, Mrs. Gerrit S. Miller, jr., and Mrs. Eugene R. Woodson.

Lone Armed Thief Cows Three Men

Robber Escapes With $13 Filched From Till of Filling Station.

A lone robber who entered on the pretext of using the city directory early last night held up and robbed a filling station at Third and Kennedy streets northwest.

When Joseph T. Wirth, the night manager, turned around with the directory, he found himself looking into the barrel of a .45-caliber automatic "Stick 'em up," ordered the holdup man. His command also included Wirth's colored helper, Byron Diggs, but when a customer drove up he told Diggs to "service the man." He then jammed his gun into the ribs of the driver, Isaac Newton, 733 Madison street northwest.

Next, he took the attendants back into the station, where he held them at bay while he rifled the cash register of $13. After pocketing the money, he walked coolly from the station, got into his car and drove away.

Armed Man Robs Store On Pennsylvania Avenue

A lone robber, entering the store shortly before closing time, held up John Leonard Boyer, jr., of Alexandria, Va., manager of the Beck Hazzard, Inc., a shoe firm at 911 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, late yesterday and looted the cash register of about $28. The robber was armed with a small revolver.

Adding to the Gayety and Beauty of the Bal Boheme

COURSE IS FINISHED BY RED CROSS CLASS

Gray Ladies Are Graduated at Episcopal Hospital Ceremonies.

The first class of Gray Ladies of the District Chapter of the American Red Cross trained in a civilian hospital in Washington was graduated yesterday in the assembly hall at National Red Cross headquarters.

The class was trained for service in the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital under the direction of Mrs. Reeve Lewis, chairman of hospital and recreation service of the District Chapter, and Mrs. Raymond Marron, vice chairman of hospital and recreation.

Delivering the address of welcome, Brig. Gen. F. R. Keefer, chairman of the District Chapter of the Red Cross, said: "It is always a satisfaction to observe expansion of Red Cross work, especially in the direction of volunteer service. The organization requires a few salaried persons to insure knowledge and continuance of policy, but where there are 10 paid persons in the service there are 1,000 at work in a volunteer capacity."

He complimented the Gray Ladies on the services of their organization and said that last year they gave more than 8,000 hours of volunteer service in Army and Navy hospitals in Washington.

The address to graduates was given by the Rev. Calvert Edwards Buck, superintendent of the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, who reviewed work done by the graduates during their training period and outlined their present duties.

The class was presented by Mrs. Reeve Lewis, and Mrs. Marron.

Members of the class are, Mrs. Rutledge Irvine, Miss Josephine Lee, Miss Mary Lou Lester, Mrs. Blaine Mallan, Mrs. Raymond V. Marron, Mrs. W. Porter Ogelsby, Mrs. Francis Rose, Miss Mary Thatcher and Mrs. Pierce Van Vleck.

Starling Problem Baffles Citizens of Georgetown

While heartily agreeing that something should be done, the Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown last night frankly admitted that the starling situation in downtown Washington was a problem for which they could offer no solution.

The Dupont Citizens Association asked that association to join in a campaign for extermination of the starlings, but members of the Georgetown group pointed out that the best minds had failed to offer an effective measure, hence what was the use?

6 Washington Students Win Georgetown Honors

Six out of the ten honor students in the College of Arts and Sciences at Georgetown University during the first half of the academic year were District of Columbia students.

The honors were awarded yesterday at the midyear reading of marks by the Rev. Vincent J. Hart, dean of arts and sciences. While Washington students won a majority of honors, William A. Pindar, of New Jersey, led all with the highest academic rating. The District of Columbia students on the honor list were Joseph Michael Barker, senior; Pinckney J. Harman, junior; Philip A. Tumulty, sophomore A. B.; William S. Abell, freshman A. B.; William J. Shaughnessy, freshman B. S., and Robert A. Herring, jr., freshman B. S.

TWO FAMOUS BANDS TO VIE AT INAUGURAL

Ticket Sales Are Mounting; Cooperation Is Asked in Renting of Rooms.

Representatives of families who can trace their lineage several centuries back of the Mayflower invasion will vie with first generation Americans in providing music for the inaugural ball, according to the announcement made yesterday by Mrs. John Allen Dougherty, chairman of the inaugural ball committee. Negotiations just concluded make certain the presence of the United States Indian Reservation Band from Oklahoma and the Philadelphia Harmonica Band as the twin musical attractions for the social festivities to be staged at the Washington Auditorium on the night of March 4.

Both musical organizations have reputations national in scope. The Indian band appeared here four years ago for the inaugural charity ball. Chief Roaring Thunder, basso, and Princess Young Blood, coloratura soprano, will appear again this year. Several tribes are represented in the band's membership. Its Pawnee members four years ago adopted Mrs. Dougherty as a member with the name "Princess Guiding Star." In the period since the last inaugural the Indian band has filled countless national engagements and was featured at the International Exposition in Paris, where it played at the American Building.

Received Grand Prix.

The Philadelphia Harmonica Band, composed of youngsters between the ages of 12 and 17, was the official band of the Philadelphia Sesquicentennial and received the grand prix there.

Arrival of the tickets for the ball has increased the activity at inaugural ball headquarters. The reduction in the price of tickets this year to $5 for a single admission and $15 for box seats has brought the sales total forward much more rapidly than in former years.

Many Applications.

Announcement of the full program for the inaugural concert, embracing such musical celebrities as Lawrence Tibbett, Rosa Ponselle, Efrem Zimbalist and the National Symphony Orchestra under Hans Kindler, has already resulted in a flood of applications for tickets for that event.

Letters were being addressed to all inquirers and to music organizations throughout the country notifying them that the range of prices will be $10 for box seats, $5 for the entire orchestra and the front of the balcony and ranging to $3 and $1.50 for the remaining portion of the balcony. In addition to the calls which have reached the committee other inquiries for tickets have been made at Garfinckel's and to C. C. Cappell, of the National Symphony, who have agreed to assist in ticket distribution. Details of the concert and the general entertainment program will be discussed in a radio talk Friday night at 6:45 over WRC.

Aid in Renting Rooms.

An appeal for immediate coöperation on the part of the Washington public with the inaugural committee on housing and hospitality was made yesterday by Mrs. Blair Banister, chairman, in order to prevent any deficiency between the demand and supply of rooms to accommodate inaugural visitors. Mrs. Banister said that at the rate at which rooms were being registered it was almost certain there would be a rush at the last moment of those desiring to rent rooms and those who wished to find lodging which would result in a jam. Mrs. Banister emphasized that the services of the inaugural housing and hospitality committee are entirely voluntary and that there is no charge or commission of any kind involved in making use of its services.

That the inaugural movement to Washington this year will be as heavy if not heavier than in the past is indicated by reports which have already been received from railroad, bus and air transportation companies.

The creation of a committee on ticket sales outside of Washington was announced yesterday by Daniel C. Roper, chairman of the committee on ticket sales. It consists of W. D. Jamieson, chairman; H. Bocorselski, Ethel M. Parks, Margaret K. Rauber, P. J. Schardt and Kahl Spriggs.

Tree Census

Of Washington Is Started; Rock Creek Park Has 222,300.

How many trees are there in the public parks of Washington?

In order to answer that question with a fair degree of accuracy, a census of park trees is being conducted by the office of Public Buildings and Parks. Preliminary returns from the count indicate that the tree "population" of Rock Creek Park alone is about 222,300, it was reported yesterday.

Auto Runs Wild; 3 Children Hurt

Swerving Around Another, Car Mounts Curbing to Land in Parkway.

Three small children were injured, two of them seriously, yesterday afternoon when an automobile swerving around a double-parked car, ran over the curbing into the parkway at 714 Twenty-first street northwest, where they were playing.

The injured children were Norma Jean Turvis, 7, of 2112 H street northwest, who was the least seriously injured, suffering only minor bruises; Betty Jane Henchman, 7 of 802 Twenty-first street northwest, who suffered a possible fractured right leg; and June Ballinger, 9, of 2112 H street northwest, who suffered possible internal injuries.

Hamilton H. Thornton, 53, colored, of 2225 Thirteenth street northwest, was held by police.

Chamber Truck Quiz Is Planned

Nearby States' Regulations on District Vehicles to Be Probed.

A committee representing the transportation group of the Washington Chamber of Commerce was appointed yesterday to investigate regulaitons governing operation of District delivery trucks in Maryland and Virginia. It was charged that the regulations have imposed large cost burdens on local merchants.

Recent experiences in Maryland were reviewed by Allen V. deFord and it was pointed out that even judges in that State are finding contradictions which make it difficult for them to apply regulations affecting commercial motor vehicles from the District.

It was also charged that new State and local taxes on District owned trucks operating in Virginia are being imposed by public officials of that State. The committee appointed to investigate included W. C. McDermott, William F. Friel, Charles H. Frame, Arthur C. Smith and Mr. deFord.

Grocery Store Is Robbed.

Merchandise valued at approximately $36 was stolen Sunday night from a Sanitary grocery store at 4532 Georgia avenue. Henry E. Simms, manager, told police the burglars forced open a rear door.

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

Classifying the various types of drivers who cause most of the accidents today, a psychologist places the "timid soul" near the top of the list.

In this class are a large group of women drivers.

People in this class should not drive where traffic conditions are tangled. A lack of confidence in itself is a sure sign of an accident sooner or later.

The accident figures to date are:

	1932	1933
Deaths	10	6
Injuries	375	348
Accidents	829	866

BEARD IS SENTENCED IN EVASION OF TAXES

Bookmaker Fined $12,500 in Addition to Term of 18 Months.

Samuel R. Beard, Washington bookmaker, was sentenced to serve 18 months in a Federal penitentiary by Judge W. Calvin Chestnut in Federal Court at Baltimore yesterday. Fines totaling $12,500 were also imposed upon Beard, who was convicted several weeks ago of income tax evasions.

In passing sentence, Judge Cheanut said that he had taken into consideration Beard's expressed willingness to pay to the Government the whole of the back taxes, plus a 50 per cent penalty, which would make a total of $108,000.

He also said: "I take into consideration the fact that your counsel did not file a motion for new trial in your case and have announced that they intended to take no appeal, and that you are regretfully acquiescent in the conclusion of the case."

Beard heard the sentence calmly. With him were his attorneys, William Curran and Morton P. Fisher. Simon E. Soboloff, United States district attorney, and his assistants, Cornelius Mundy and Charles G. Page, who conducted the prosecution, were also in the courtroom.

Petworth Group Asks Local Labor Be Used

Following a discussion of local unemployment, the Petworth Citizens Association, meeting in Petworth School Building, last night, advocated that at least 50 per cent of the labor used in District construction work should be local residents.

The association disapproved of the expenditure of District funds for the purchase of an airport outside of the District. Any money spent should be used to develop a site within the District, it stated.

Diocese Auxiliary to Meet.

Mrs. John E. Hill, president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Harper Sibley, of Rochester, N. Y., will address the members of the auxiliary of the Washington Diocese at a meeting at 2 p. m. today at St. Stephen's Church.

WOMAN BOUND OVER ON NARCOTIC CHARGE

Attorney Gets $10,000 Bond Set by Turnage Reduced to $5,000 By Rover.

Despite the spirited opposition of Attorney Charles E. Ford, United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday ordered Mrs. Lillian Maddock, of 2519 Third street northeast, held for the grand jury on a bond of $10,000 when she was arraigned on a charge of sale and posession of alleged narcotics.

An hour after the commissioner had set the bond, Mr. Ford went to the office of United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and had the bond reduced to $5,000, which Mrs. Maddock posted. She also is under a $10,000 bond on a charge of conspiring to violate the narcotic laws.

Several agents of the narcotics division testified that when they raided Mrs. Maddock's home they found a large quantity of narcotics. She was not at home and while they were waiting for her, they said, several men and women made their appearance. These visitors were arrested and held as witnesses.

Assistant United States Attorney William A. Gallagher, representing the Government, pictured to Commissioner Turnage several transactions which he alleged were in violation of the narcotic laws. It was revealed at the hearing that Mrs. Maddox attacked the man who "informed" on her, and knocked him down in police headquarters, necessitating hospital treatment.

Park Curve Death Prompts Request

Citizens Ask That Action Be Taken to Remove Hazard.

The Park and Planning Commission was requested by the Sixteenth Street Highlands Citizens Association last night to remove the traffic hazard on Blagden avenue in Rock Creek Park where Park Policeman James Groves was fatally injured several weeks ago. A motion adopted by the association asked that Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d inspect that section of the road and place stop signs where needed.

The association's delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations were instructed to assist delegates of other associations in the investigation of the price of milk, bread and water in the District.

A committee was delegated to investigate a report that upper Sixteenth street was being zoned for apartment houses. The association would oppose such action. A motion was adopted indorsing Senator Cordell Hull's bill to prevent further issuance of Federal tax-empt bonds.

MEASURE ADVANCES TO ALLOW D. C. TO GET R. F. C. AID LOAN

Delegation of Single Jobless Men Seek Help at Senate Hearing.

A bill authorizing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to lend the District up to $2,500,000 for unemployment relief, yesterday was ordered favorably reported to the Senate by the Senate District Committee.

Action followed testimony by Public Welfare Director George S. Wilson, District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan and Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride that the authorization is necessary if the District is to cope with growing relief needs.

A delegation of unemployed single men appeared on the measure, seeking administration of relief funds without reference to marital status. Although no such provision is made in the bill, Director Wilson promised this will be done if the District gets the money it needs.

Six Other Measures.

Six other local measures were ordered favorably reported by the committee, including a bill equalizing District insurance company taxation at 1½ per cent on net premium receipts, and the Board of Education's bill to give Wilson and Miner Teachers Colleges accredited standing among universities awarding degrees.

Other measures approved would require 60 days' notice on all damage suits against the District government, appropriate $25,000 for the District Commissioners to provide additional police protection during the inaugural ceremonies, facilitate disposal of property in the hands of the police property clerk and permit sale of the old Potomac School in Southwest Washington.

Sensational Testimony.

Sensational testimony was presented by P. T. Horne, who said he is unemployed and has had overtures made to him by local Communists. He said he would not hesitate to take part in a revolution if that is necessary for him to get food.

Edmond Johnson, leading the "forgotten men" delegation, asked that District single men out of a job be adequately cared for by local charities.

Inauguration Hours Set For 3 Points of Interest

In order to make it possible for the influx of visitors expected here for the inauguration of President-elect Roosevelt to visit the Washington Monument, the Lincoln Museum and the house where President Lincoln died, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, Director of Public Buildings and Public Parks, has announced that regular week-day visiting hours will prevail on both Saturday, March 4, and Sunday, March 5.

The Monument will be open from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., the Lincoln Museum and the house where Lincoln died from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. and the Lincoln Memorial from 9 a. m. to 9:30 p. m.

R. J. Rothstein Elected By Dental Association

R. J. Rothstein was elected president of the Dental Laboratory Association at a meeting last night at the Hamilton Hotel. Others elected were: E. L. Harwood, vice president; E. Rynex, treasurer; A. I. Davidson, secretary, and C. Ryan, sergeant at arms.

Dr. A. J. Stearne, of Philadelphia, will address the group tonight at a special clinic on the construction and use of new denture material for artificial teeth, conducted at the Carlton Hotel.

Brick Convention Will Start Today

150 Delegates in Capital for Annual Session of Association.

Approximately 150 delegates to the sixteenth annual convention of Common Brick Manufacturers' Association of America registered yesterday at the Shoreham Hotel, convention headquarters.

Meetings held yesterday were preliminary to the official business of the convention which starts today. The convention will close Thursday.

Local men who will take a prominent part in the convention are Perry West, member of the board of control of the association; E. Taylor Chewning, Jordan A. Pugh, manager of the Washington office of the association; Dr. John M. Gries, Federal director of Home Loan Bank; Delos H. Smith, David Lawrence, newspaper editor; Col. Nelson B. Gaskill and Joseph Ulmer, Department of Commerce.

House Member Attacks Mills on Slump Remedy

In a lengthy discussion of the depression, its causes and cures before the Forest Hills Citizens Association, Representative Jeff Busby, of Mississippi, last night roundly criticized Secretary of the Treasury Mills for his attitude on curative and relief measures.

He charged that Secretary Mills failed to take a humanitarian viewpoint in regard to the measures.
